SEEK OUT STATIONS

Gas Shortage Cuts Traffic

By JEFF GREER

Almost deserted highways and clusters of cars at the few open filling stations today marked the second day of the four-day gasoline drought in Marin and Southern Sonoma counties.

One San Rafael motorist, apparently losing his temper over the long wait, backed his truck into a San Rafael police officer directing traffic at an open station. He was arrested on misdemeanor charges.

San Rafael police reported no other trouble, but threats were made against some of the Larkspur stations that remained open.

Meanwhile, other areas' operators joined Bay Area gasoline dealers in the shutdown protesting Phase IV price controls.

Service stations in San Luis Obispo County closed, as did dealers in some areas of Washington state.

Operators reported they were planning to attend a "council of war" in Chicago tomorrow, to increase pressure against the gasoline price freeze.

Meanwhile, the California Hihway Patrol, the California State Auto Association and other agencies were urging motorists to heed the old World War II slogan: "Is this trip really necessary."

Motorists apparently either heeded the warnings, or spent their time waiting in line at the open stations. Traffic on Highway 101 was far lighter than normal for a Saturday, motorists reported.

But lines often were a dozen cars long for each available pump at open stations.

A Union station on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Larkspur opened for business yesterday, but closed after receiving a telephoned bomb threat, Larkspur police said. A neighboring Shell station also was threatened, officers reported.

No threats were reported in other cities.

Every Marin County store that normalls sells metal gasoline containers reported selling out of them yesterday. Motorists also were ignoring the law and buying plastic containers.

The highway patrol warned that even metal containers stored loose in car trunks or left protruding outside vehicles could turn vehicles into deadly firetraps in colisions.

Organist Slain As Patrons Look On

Estranged Husband Is Object Of Search

By PAUL PETERZELL

A 48-year-old organist and mother of six was murdered last night by her estranged husband as terrified patrons of a Corte Madera restaurant looked on helplessly, police reported today.

The murder suspect was still at large today and was believed by police to be armed.

Beverly Pitts, musician at Le Tonneau, 5625 Paradise Drive, apparently died immediately of a bullet wound in the back of her head.

Police said her husband, Patrick Joseph Pitts, 52, a San Jose gas station employee, strode in the front door of the bar portion of the restaurant at about 11:10 p.m. and walked through the bar to the rear lounge where his wife was playing the organ.

After a brief argument, he drew a gun, believed to be a .357 Magnum, and fired three shots, patrons told police. He held onlookers at gun point for a few moments, then left through the front door. No vehicle was seen or heard leaving the area, according to police.

The husband, who has a record of convictions resulting from assaults with a deadly weapon, was described as 5 feet, 6 inches tall, weighing 160 pounds and with dark balding hair and brown eyes.

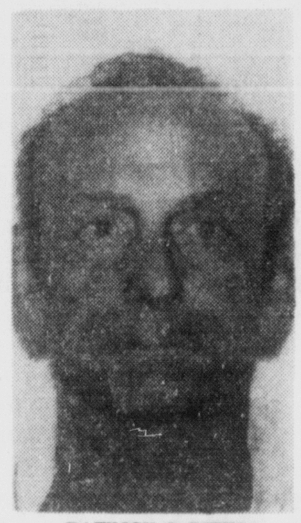

He was believed driving his own car, a 1962 bronze Thunderbird with Ohio license plates K724B, or California plates JRD 717, or possibly a 1971 Thunderbird, color and license plates unknown.

San Anselmo police thought they spotted his car at 9 a.m. today, but nothing came of the report.

Deputy County Coroner Bill J. Thomas pronounced the victim dead at 11:45 at the lounge. He said she also was shot in the right arm pit. A third wound could not be found, but X-rays were to be taken today of her body to see if a third bullet could be found. It may be in her head, he said, noting such a large caliber weapon is "pretty devastating."

Thomas said the third shot reported by patrons may have been an echo of an earlier shot.

San Rafael police said Pitts was placed under arrest by his wife in San Rafael in June 1972, for assault with a deadly weapon and brandishing a weapon in a threatening manner. The charges were reduced to a mis-

Merchant Fears Disaster Repeat

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —"I still duck every time a plane flies over," said Kit Dickson, an attractive employee of a Sacramento clothing store.

When wind whistles through the shop, another employee shudders and gets the eerie feeling "there might be ghosts." Their fears are not surprising.

The Peddlers fashion store was built on the ruins of an old fashioned ice cream parlor known as "The Happy Place," which became a deadly inferno one year ago.

On a summery Sunday afternoon Sept. 24, 1972, partying children were eating sundaes when a Korean War era F86 Sabrejet belonging to the corporate empire of the late William Penn Patrick barrelled into the Far barrelled into the Farrell's Ice Cream Parlour in an aborted takeoff following an air show.

Twenty-two persons, including a dozen children, were killed and another 28 injured in the tragedy, the worst of its type in U.S. history.

The National Transportation Safety Board said the "probable cause" of the accident was "inadequate pilot proficiency in the aircraft." It also issued many recommendations to prevent similar future crashes, some of which have been carried out.

The pilot, Richard Bingham of Novato, survived with only minor injuries. He still has a pilot's license, according to the Federal Aviation Administration, (FAA).

The board said Bingham took off at too steep an angle, forcing the jet to stall.

The runway at the Sacramento Executive Airport which the Sabrejet used was aimed directly at the parlor and ended only 500 feet from a shopping center and homes.

The Safety Board recommended that there should be regulations prohibiting shopping centers, housing developments and other congested areas from being located adjacent to airports. But little has been done.

"There are situations like this all over the country," said Pat-

Marinite To High Post In Pentagon

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Thomas C. Reed of Ross, nuclear physicist and Republican leader, has been named special assistant to Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger in a "broad range of technical management areas," it was announced yesterday.

Prior to joining the Pentagon staff, Reed was president and chairman of the Quaker Hill Development Corp., a mining and land development firm.

He was regional director of President Nixon's reelection campaign in 1972 for Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Hawaii and Texas.

Reed, who is 39, was elected to the Republican National Committee as a California representative at the Republican convention in 1968.

He worked in 1964 on the presidential campaign staff of Sen. Barry Goldwater and in 1966 was Northern California chairman of the Reagan for

STRAWBERRY POINT AREA

'Undesirables' Being Protested

By PAUL LIBERATORE

Residents of Strawberry Point are protesting to Marin County officials the arrival of "undesirables" on the shores of a picturesque cove near their homes.

The object of their protest is a small flotilla of barges, the homes of refugees from the Gate 5 and Gate 6 area north of Sausalito.

The residents, 15 families who live on Starboard Court, say crescent-shaped Harbor Cove off Great Circle Drive is becoming "a freebee place for hippies," according to a local real estate saleswoman who is their unofficial leader.

They have pressured the owners of the three-acre cove to file a tresspass report with the Marin County Sheriff's Department, which has sent the report along to the district attorney's office. The report, signed by Joseph Kitterman of Alameda, one of the six owners of the property, was received by the district attorney yesterday.

The protesters hope the district attorney will determine that the barges and several small boats at the cove are a public nuisance and order them from the point with the threat of criminal charges if they won't move.

In a similar case several years ago, the district attorney did just that. A year later, the Starboard Court people brought the presence of a houseboat on the beach to the attention of the county assessor's office, which assessed the boat as the property of the beach owner, who then ordered the vessel from the beach post haste, according to the real estate woman, who requested to remain anonymous for fear of reprisal.

"The county has been promising to do something about this problem since 1966," she said. "What happens is it gets all bogged down in red tape at the Civic Center over who has jurisdiction. But something must be done now because this is going to get worse. The freeloaders are leaving Gate 5 and 6 and this is the only place for them to go."

The woman, bitter about her floating new neighbors, says they have filthied the beach with trash and dead animals, kept her and other residents awake at night with the clatter of bilge pumps and that they and their friends use Great Circle Drive as their own private parking lot. "The people who live here are afraid to even walk by that beach anymore," she complained.

The 74-foot-long Dredger Golden Gate arrived at Harbor Cove in June. The owner of the awesomely large, two-story grey hulk is Scott Diamond, a 24-year-old veteran of the houseboat scene at Gate 5.

He claims a seaman's right to occupy the cove to repair a vessel that is leaking, citing a centuries-old tradition.

The 350-ton Golden Gate is firmly ensconced on the beach wile Diamond uses low tide to calk and replank the dredger's worm-eaten bottom. No matter what the county does to him legally, he says, there is no way that vessel, where he and several friends live, can move until December when tides are high enough to lift it from the beach.

NEW HOUSEBOAT HASSLE — This cluster of dredge, barge, ark and other makeshift maritime dwellings in Harbor Cove has stirred the wrath and fear of homeowners on the upland shores of Strawberry Point. The wrath is inspired by what is held to be desecration of a picturesque landscape. The fear is that these practitioners of a different lifestyle are the vanguard of an invading multitude. But the barge dwellers say this is but a brief visit to make the repairs that will prove their homes can be upgraded to the point of respectable acceptability on the other side of Richardson Bay where a massive cleanup is under way.

Agnew Reported To Be Deciding Future

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is deciding if he should resign and plead guilty to a lesser offense in a federal probe of corruption in Maryland, a congressional source said today.

The source, who declined to be identified, told UPI that Agnew's lawyers were negotiating with Justice Department attorneys the possibility that Agnew would resign in exchange for a guilty plea to a minor offense or exemption from prosecution.

The source said the negotiations between Agnew's lawyers and the Justice Department team, headed by assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen, apparently began in earnest Thursday and were presently in a delicate stage.

The Washington Post reported today that Agnew's lawyers were involved in the negotiations, and quoted its own Capitol Hill source as saying, "we've got it on good authority that Agnew is engaged in plea bargaining — that Agnew's resignation is part of the plea."

The Post's source predicted Agnew would announce his decision within a week.

Agnew was informed Aug. 1 that he was under investigation by a federal grand jury in Baltimore investigating political corruption in Maryland. A series of reports have accused

REFUGEES — Part of a group of 74 refugees from Chile awaits immigration clearance at Mexico City's Benito Juarez International Airport in another airlift operated by the Mexican government from Santiago. The youth (left) reads of the Chilean military junta's outlawing of the Marxist Party. As a result of the order, a Communist professor has been reported killed in Santiago. (UPI Telephoto)

Three Executions Reported In Chile

SANTIAGO (UPI) —Soldiers and national police killed a Communist professor in a roundup of leftists and executed two persons accused of manufacturing bombs, the government announced today.

The 12-day old military junta yesterday declared illegalall Marxist parties.

The U.S. Embassy said the junta had released four Americans imprisoned on subversion charges at the height of last week's coup and soon would free two detained Maryknoll missionaries.

The new military government also absolved the United States and other foreign countries from any involvement in the bloody coup that overthrew Marxist President Salvador Allende.

A military court in Antofagasta, north of the capital, condemned to the firing squad two men the army said had made more than 2,000 bombs to assassinate officers and their families.

In Rancagua, south of Santiago, soldiers and national police claimed to have rounded up and arrested 34 "political organizers" in the overthrown socialist-led Allende regime.

Spokesmen said Prof. Luis Almonacid, 42, was killed in a shootout there when he resisted a raid on his house.

The military government has three times carried out its threat to summarily execute any person attempting violence against the armed forces.

An embassy spokesman identified the freed Americans as Adam and Patricia Schesch, who were working for the University of Wisconsin on a land tenure program in Chile; John Ceretti, 22, and Henry Warlow, 22, occupations and hometowns unknown.

The spokesman said the Schesch's were asked by the government to leave the country and that the two would depart today. The Schesch's, Ceretti and Warlow were among an estimated 5,000 persons taken prisoner during the Sept. 11 overthrow and held in the national football stadium in downtown Santiago.

The release of Catholic missionaries Brother Joseph Dougherty, 29, and seminarian Francis Flynn, 27, was "imminent," the embassy said. The spokesman said there was no word on two other detained Americans, identified only as Carol Nesso and David Cusack.

Meanwhile, the situation in the Chilean capital began returning to normal. International flights resumed yesterday. Santiago's international airport had been closed since the coup. The junta declared today a work day to make up for lost work time during the disturbances that followed the overthrow and said workers should work for four hours without pay.

Astronauts Prepare Outside Of Ship For Unmanned Operation

HOUSTON (UPI) —Two Skylab astronauts walked into the starkness of space today with bundles of film and a soft camel's hair brush to prepare the giant station for six weeks of unmanned, radio controlled operation.

Bean and Garriott were back in the station at 10 a.m. EDT after two hours and 40 minutes outside.

It was the third and final spacewalk for the crew on history's longest space flight, which is scheduled to end Tuesday. The telescopes will be operated by radio from Mission Control in Houston until the third Skylab crew flies to the station in November.

Bean and Garriott retrieved the used film containing precious photos of explosive solar activity which scientists say will advance man's understanding of the nearest star to Earth far beyond anything that could be done from earth telescopes.

It was Bean's first trip outside Skylab, although he spent more than seven hours on the moon's surface during the Apollo 12 mission, America's second lunar landing. The pilots opened the hatch at 7:18 a.m. EDT while flying 270 miles above the Pacific Ocean on their 808th orbit of the globe of the 59-day flight.

"Gollee, what a place to visit. Whooee," Bean said merrily as he worked outside. "We're having fun out here.

"Everything's turning sort of reddish pink as the sun goes down."

Garriott said he could see an aurora as the station passed into the earth's shadow.

"We've got a nice aurora just off to the left," he said. "It's got several curtains and sweeping green arcs."

Bean said several wrinkles in a sunshade awning placed over the station on the first spacewalk had stretched out in the two months exposed to the intense solar rays.

"I was just looking at the friendly little twin pole sunshade and it looks pretty much like when Jack put it out," said Bean. "The accordian has come out pretty much."

"You sure can get around easy out here," said Bean. "The solar panels look nice and clean. You can feel the sun on your gloves. Hey, the blue handrails have turned turquoise on us. A nice place to visit up here."

"It's even a nice place to live," replied Garriott.

Bean said the side of their crippled Apollo ferry ship was scorched by the sun and some foil coating was bent up.

Garriott, making his third spacewalk, said "it's fantastic, just fantastic."

The exuberant explorers, reluctantly preparing to leave space in three days, were complimented again by earth scientists eager to get at their bonanza of orbital research data.

Peron Issues Warning On Threats; Vote Is Tomorrow

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Juan D. Peron, considered a cinch to sweep tomorrow's presidential elections after 18 years in exile, warned yesterday "we are surrounded by threats" similar to those that led to last week's coup in Chile.

Winding up his campaign with a national television appearance and an impromptu news conference in his home, the 77-year-old Peron also admitted he has named no successor to lead his Justicialista Liberation Front movement when he dies.

"We are surrounded by threats, and when we see the defeat of one of our neighbors who like us wants to achieve freedom, we have to be on the alert," he said in his TV address. "The example of Chile has to be valuable to us because in the world of today we have to worry more about events beyond our borders than those inside our nation."

Peron's vice-presidential running mate is his third wife, Isabel. Her choice on the "Peron-Peron" ticket was seen as a move to avoid a split among the disparate elements in his Justicialista Front.

"I'm living on borrowed time," Peron told newsmen following the TV interview. "When I no longer exist, it will be the movement that decides who will succeed me."

Peron faces three opponents in tomorrow's balloting.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Maintains Stand

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Rebecca Ann King of Colorado returned yesterday to the city where she was crowned Miss America 1974 and said she would stick to her stand on legalizing marijuana and a woman's right to an abortion.

"I feel all individuals should be able to make moral decisions," she said. "The government can't be big brother from marijuana to seatbelts. Abortion is not necessarily my moral choice nor is marijuana."

Miss King, whose selection as the nation's new beauty queen has been criticized in more than 200 letters written to pageant officials, said the 10 judges did their best to find a winner who was both attractive and intelligent.

Accepts Apology

ROME (UPI) —Italy has accepted a Libyan apology for the strafing of an Italian warship in international waters and considers the incident closed, a government source said today.

Libyan jet fighter planes yesterday strafed the Italian corvette with machine gun fire, wounding two sailors.

The source said no further protest was planned over the attack by Libyan Mirage jets on the corvette De Cristofaro 33 miles off the Libyan coast. The covertte was on routine patrol accompanying Italian fishing boats.

Now In Compact

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Gen. Creighton Abrams, the nononsense Army chief of staff, has swapped his shiny black $12,500 limousine for robin's egg blue compact car costing the government less than one-fourth as much.

"He decided he didn't want that big limousine and asked for something simpler," a spokesman for Abrams' office said Friday.

It was a move typical of the cigar-smoking Army chief, who has little use for the pomp and circumstance of office.

Quarantine Lifted

ADAK, Alaska (UPI) —The Navy has lifted the quarantine at its air station where three persons are believed to have become ill with meningitis.

The quarantine was set Wednesday when two children and a woman, all military dependents, were admitted to the hospital.

Hanoi Demand

SAIGON (UPI) —North Vietnam said today that the search for 2,400 dead and missing Americans in Indochina depends on South Vietnam's releasing its political prisoners.

The announcement repeated a strategem the Communists have used continually since prisoner releases began last Feb. 12, when the Viet Cong delayed the release of 27 Americans in South Vietnam for 10 hours.

There was no immediate comment from the U.S. Embasay.

On the battlefront, heavy fighting across South Vietnam's mid-section and in the Mekong Delta killed 151 Communists and 23 government soldiers yesterday and today, the government high command reported.

Parents To Continue 'Blockade'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Angry parents in Highland Park, Mich., kept their human blockade around the school board building today, and vowed, weekend or not, not to lift it until the board of education and striking teachers negotiating inside reached a settlement of the 17-day-old strike.

The Highland Park strike was one of several across the country that has left more than 500,000 children out of school.

"This is no fun," Mrs. Matila Foster, mother of three school-age children in Highland Park said. "We're numb and we feel the way we look. All we want is for our kids to get back to school." About 60 men and women participated in the blockade, many dozing in sleeping bags, some singing gospel songs while others shivered in the 60 degree weather. The weatherman also predicted rain.

The dispute, one of 19 in Michigan, left that state hardest hit by strikes. Detroit, the nation's fourth largest city, was included in one of the strike districts. All total, about 459,000 Michigan students were out of school.

In Kenosha, Wis., teachers voted 424-191 Friday to accept a new contract, ending a strike that started Sept. 5. Teachers began returning to the class room immediately after the vote, and a normal class day was expected Monday for the city's 22,000 public school children.

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian government troops went on the offensive today, recapturing a pagoda in embattled Kompong Cham and conducting clearing operations near two other besieged towns.

DEFUSE BOMB — A 700-pound bomb, planted in a laundry truck outside Belfast's main telephone exchange, was dismantled by experts early today, following a seven-hour effort. Meanwhile, the outlawed IRA reported today the execution of a Roman Catholic for spying. (UPI Teletphot)

Outlawed IRA Stages Execution Of Catholic On Spying Charges

BELFAST (UPI) —The outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) said today it "executed" a Londonderry Roman Catholic for spying for the British army. In Belfast, an IRA leader wounded in a gunbattle with British troops died in a hospital.

The deaths raised the death toll in four years of strife among Northern Ireland's Protestants, minority Catholics and security forces to 886.

The senior British explosives officer in Northern Ireland, Lt. Col. Malcolm McKenzie, early today defused a 700-pound bomb planted in a laundry truck outside Belfast's main telephone exchange. A wide area surrounding the heavily guarded exchange was evacuated.

When the delicate seven-hour job was over, McKenzie said the bomb—the largest ever planted in Belfast—would have destroyed the exchange building and damaged others for 200 yards.

"If you ask me, mate, he's (McKenzie) a bloody hero," said an army spokesman. The Provisional IRA in Londonderry said it had "executed" James Brown, a 26-year-old Catholic whose body was found in a street Friday night.

The Provisionals said Brown, who was married last year and whose wife is pregnant, had confessed to giving information to the British which led to army raids on its hideouts and the arrest of IRA men. It said Brown was paid $300.

"The IRA again warn all British agents and informers, irrespective of age, sex or beliefs, that the punishment for such crime in wartime is death," the IRA statement said.

James Bryson, a 26-year-old senior officer of the Provisionals who was wounded in a shoot-out with British troops three weeks ago, died in a Belfast hospital early today. Another member of the outlawed army was killed and a third wounded in the shoot-out, which occurred when an IRA ambush went backfired, the British army said.

Bryson was famous in Republican circles for his two escapes from British custody.

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gerald L. Baker, former director of tourism for the Denver Convention and Visitors Bureau, yesterday was named to direct the Division of Tourism of the California Department of Commerce.

New Army Boss For The Capital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The black officer who broke racial barriers in the U.S. Army's top command, Maj. Gen. Frederic E. Davison, was named yesterday to take charge of all Army troops in the nation's capital.

A Pentagon spokesman said Davison, now commander of the 8th Infantry Division at Bad Kreuznach, West Germany, would assume command of the military district of Washington Nov. 12.

Davison, 54, was born and reared in Washington, D.C., and received his bachelor's and masters degrees in science from the city's Howard University.

The biggest change in FAA regulations because of the tragedy was an increase in the minimum pilot training needed before a person may fly a highpowered surplus military jet.

Bingham had only 7.5 hours flying time in the Sabrejet before he flew it from Oakland to the air show. He had 2,500 hours of total flying time.

Now pilots must go through a formal military-type training program involving up to 50 hours flying time before they can fly solo in surplus military jets.

the vice president of accepting kickbacks from state contractors while he was governor of Maryland.

The Baltimore Sun quoted Agnew lawyer Judah Best as saying the vice president will file suit to block the proceedings next week. "I'll let the papers speak for themselves," Best was quoted as saying.

The Post said that Lester Matz, a Baltimore County consulting engineer and longtime Agnew supporter, told federal investigators that he gave Agnew between $25,000 and $50,000 during the past 10 years. The Post said Matz told the investigators that the payments were not necessarily made in exchange for specific contracts.

CBS News reported that Agnew was seeking exemption from prosecution in exchange for his resignation but was taking a "hard line" and that Petersen was demanding that he plead guilty to some offense.

The Justice Department has been holding over Agnew the possibility that they might give any damaging evidence they discover about him to the House for impeachment proceedings instead of presenting it to the grand jury, it was reported.

Agnew and President Nixon met privately for one hour Thursday at the Vice President's request. Afterwards, both the White House and vice president's office refused to divulge any details of the meeting.

"The vice president has not resigned."

Nixon and Agnew have met three times since Aug. 6, when it was publicly announced that Agnew was under investigatiom Neither side would say whether resignation was discussed at the Thursday meeting.

Soybeans Will Start Leaving Nation Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Soybeans will start leaving the country again soon, production of baby pigs will remain constant and fertilizer should be removed from price controls, government officials said yesterday.

As the Labor Department told consumers that food prices rose in August by the highest amount in 27 years, Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent confirmed that export controls on soybeans, which are used to feed livestock, will be lifted on Oct. 1.

The controls on soybeans and related high-protein feed were imposed early this summer, along with predictions by government officials they would be lifted soon. Dent's announcement came after recent estimates predicted a record 1.6 billion bushel soybean crop during the 1973-74 marketing season.

The Agriculture Department, however, said pork supplies will remain at relatively low levels through most of next year because of exports.

Corn belt farmers, the department said, are not planning to increase their production of baby pigs during the fall or winter because foreign shipments will keep corn prices relatively high.

Baby pig production from June through August, which supplies meat counters in fall and early winter, was down four per cent from one year ago. Yesterday's report estimated that 2.3 million sows would give birth from September through November and 2 million from December through February, the same figure as last year.

Based on those predictions, the supply of bacon, ham and pork chops will remain constant until at least next autumn.

In a related development, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz urged the Cost of Living Council to lift price ceilings on fertilizer, saying that a shortage could threaten food production next year.

In a letter to the council, Butz said that foreign fertilizer prices are higher than the controlled domestic prices and that "we are confronting a potentially serious domestic shortage of fertilizer, particularly nitrogen and phosphate.

Flood Control Plan On Tap

The Army Corps of Engineers will report to the Novato Flood Control Zone board on a proposed Novato Creek flood control project at 8 p.m. Thursday at Lu Sutton School, 1800 Center Road, Novato, according to Col. J. L. Lammie, district engineer.

The corps also is scheduled to present project plans before the Novato City Council at 8 p.m. Oct. 9 at the Novato Community House.

The district will have a $4.5-million bond measure on the November ballot to go toward financing a $19 million project being designed by the corps.

JUST FILL'ER UP PLEASE

The shutdown of gasoline stations in Northern California by dealers protesting Phase IV price controls seems to have effected the children at Bo Peep Nursery School in Salinas as they emulate the plight of their elders who have lined up at the few open stations. The children, with the help of their elders, rigged up the "station" yesterday.

Youth Facing Lesser Charges

A San Anselmo youth will be prosecuted on a misdemeanor assault charge rather than felony counts of burglary and attempted rape, according to the Marin district attorney's office.

James McMahan Jacobson, 18, originally was charged with the more serious crimes after San Anselmo police arrested him on suspicion of breaking into a house and trying to rape a 16-year-old girl Sept. 8.

But Judge Robert A. Smallman of Marin Municipal Court reduced the felony counts following a preliminary hearing Thursday.

A pretrial conference, at which a plea bargain will be sought to avoid taking the matter to trial, was set for Monday.

Joint Meeting Set On Novato Plan

The Novato City Council and Planning Commission will hold a joint meeting on the city's general plan and proposed growth limit at 9 p.m. Tuesday at the Novato Community House.

The council is scheduled to meet at 7:30 p.m. to discuss requirement for low and moderate income housing at the planned Cheda Farms development and then have a hearing on acquisition of land for a civic center before the joint session.

Saturday Jewish School Scheduled

Congregation Kol Shofar, Marin County's Conservative synagogue, which meets at the Marin Jewish Community Center, has announced the opening of its new Saturday school.

The school will meet every Saturday morning, under the supervision of Rabbi Jacob Milgram. The school offers classes for children of all ages and for adults. The curriculum emphasizes traditional observance and synagogue ritual, literature, history, and skills in both Hebrew and English.

Registration will be accepted the rest of September and instruction begins on Saturday, Oct. 13. Weekday instruction is also available. Further information is available from Dr. Louis Levy.

DON'T LET THE GASOLINE SHORTAGE DRIVE YOU TO A CRISIS OF SMALLER PROPORTIONS.

A Volvo can get almost twice the gasoline mileage of some popular big cars.*

Yet unlike small cars, Volvo has about the same front seat legroom as a Cadillac de Ville. As much back seat legroom as a Lincoln Continental. And more trunk space than the Pinto and Barracuda combined.

But Volvo isn't just roomy. It's comfortable.

The bucket seats are orthopedically designed to give support to all the contours of the body. Even to the point of having an adjustment that gives the small of your back firmer or softer support.

And in a Volvo, you won't have to gather your courage to enter crowded highways.

Its responsive, fuel-injected engine lets you move out into traffic before onrushing traffic moves into you.

And once you're out there, you'll actually feel the rigidity of Volvo's body—welded into one solid piece of steel with thousands of closely-spaced spot welds.

So instead of overreacting to the gasoline shortage, respond thoughtfully. By getting a Volvo.

That way, you can drive a big car without adding fuel to the energy crisis.

'Undesirables' Being Protested

"This doesn't float until mother nature lets it," Diamond remarked.

He said he has no intention of forming a new community at Harbor Cove, although several other water dwellers and their families were towed in this week, arrivals further infuriating the middle-class residents of Starboard Court.

Newest arrivals are Richard Salty Forrest, 32, and Danny Romero, 30, and their wives and children.

Forrest and Romero own a 114-foot-long barge, The Delight, which has a rectangular shack built on its deck, containing a workshop and living quarters for the two families. The barge was towed to the cove from Gate 6 Wednesday. Forrest and Romero also are patching the bottom of their barge with cement to make it seaworthy.

They don't have the money, they say, to have the repair work done at a commercial marine repair, and are at the mercy of economics and the tides, which limit the times of day then can work.

They have spoken to county marine inspector Richard Larson and have promised to be off the beach by Monday or Tuesday. Taking the posture of righteous property owners trying to upgrade their homes, they ask only the time to improve their boats and move on.

Beside The Delight is a make shift tugboat and on empty barge, owned by a friend of Forrest and Romero. Those boats will leave when the barge leaves next week, they say.

The beach is not cluttered with people garbage, like papers, cans or bottles. It is covered with rotting timbers studded with rusting spikes, planks and pilings. The houseboaters claim that junk has been there for years, floating onto the beach from the Sausalito waterfront.

One resident of the Golden Gate, a young woman identified only as Laura, said the barge dwellers recycle all their cans and bottles and have compost heaps aboard for organic waste. She blames the trash near Great Circle Drive on fishermen, who throw their styrofoam cups and bear cans beside the road.

"We don't want a hassle with the Strawberry people," said Forrest. "We want to prove we can do the work. It's not good to fight about it. It is a question of taking the opportunity and doing something with it."

The opportunity of which Forrest speaks is to qualify for a place in the plans by Donald Arques, who owns gate 5; the Kappas family, who own Gates 6 and 6½, and Mimi Tellis, who owns a houseboat pier off Gate 6, to clean up the houseboat scene.

"The scene," as the regulars call it, is "a mixture of millionaires and beggers, the millionaires living in stylish floating homes and the beggers inhabiting rundown hulks where they live rent-free.

The owners of the gate areas plan a two-year program to install sewer hookups for the boats, whose waste currently goes straight into the bay, as well as new piers where slips will be rented. They will ask to move all houseboats that can't come up to county codes. The byword around the gates these days, Forrest said, is "that if you don't want to work to clean things up, then you're not too welcome."

Forrest is a long-haired, bearded young man, an excapee from Haight Ashbury bursting with ideas for the waterfront, from floating stages near the SFO Heliport to an ingenious plan to rid Richardson Bay of the controversial drydocks, owned by artist Chris Roberts, a personal friend of his.

Forrest and Romero plan to tie their barge near the drydocks and take them apart piece by piece, selling the wood, which is gorgeously weathered.

They hold the hope that the gates will not become the exclusive area of "floating tract homes," inhabited by middle-class romantics from San Francisco. The artists who made the houseboat scene famous and desirable, Forrest says, should be allowed to contribute, to create something truly beautiful at the gates that is not American plastic.

But if he and the others are forced to move, he said, the infamous drydocks will be their escape. He plans to build a floating town on the dock's massive deck, big enough for 50 families.

"We will tow the docks out to sea, hook into the Japanese current and float to New Zealand," Forrest said, the telling of the incredible scheme bringing a smile to his lips. "It sounds far out, but let me tell you, it will work if it has to."

Two Misdemeanor Charges Are Filed

Two misdemeanor charges — resisting arrest and failing to drive on the right side of the road — have been filed against David Ruecker, 29, of no known address.

Ruecker originally was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of assaulting a police officer, a felony. Belvedere police said Ruecker kicked an officer who was attempting to arrest him for a traffic violation Thursday.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Rights Saving Many Drivers

"Offisher, I absholutely assure you I have imbibed nothing more intoshicating that a couple of beers—"

The officer manages to stay politely quiet. But he knows too that his "two-beer" driver may spend up to six months in jail and lose his license for a first offense.

For a second offense within seven years, the judge must order a sentence of five days, must order a fine and must suspend the driver's license for a year. If Mr. "Alky" drives without a license, there are other mandatory jail penalties.

Do these severe penalties work? How well are they enforced? And what really happens to Mr. Alky?

A recent study shows that many first convictions were being declared invalid. This meant that "repeaters" were being punished as if for a first offense. They weren't hit with mandatory jail sentences and license loss.

In 1969, an appeals court said that if the first conviction wasn't proper — or valid — it could not be used against Mr. Alky for "second offense" punishment. Why would a conviction be invalid? Perhaps the defendant pleaded guilty without being told of his right to counsel. In many early cases, this happened.

True, the defendant can waive or give up his right to an attorney, but not just to "get the case over with." Nor could he be very intelligent about his rights if he isn't quite sober. Or if he was just out of jail and went into court without a chance to talk to an attorney about his rights.

In another recent ruling, the court said that before a defendant pleads guilty, he must be told of his right to trial by jury, his right to not incriminate himself, and his right to cross examine his accusers. He may bring in witnesses to help defend himself. He has to intelligently "give up" or waive these rights before he pleads guilty.

Mr. Alky must also be briefly told of the consequences of his plea: that he may be fined, may go to jail, and may have his driving privileges affected.

Under these decisions, drivers with prior convictions have been able to challenge their convictions. Judges now extensively inform defendants of their rights.

Woman Is Found Dead In Auto

A 25-year-old Bolinas woman died last night after she apparently took her own life by running a garden hose from the exhaust of her car into the vehicle.

The victim was Barbara L. Milner of 117 Terrace Street.

Coroner's deputy Bill J. Thomas said Mrs. Milner was found in the back seat of the car in the family garage about 8 p.m. by her husband, Paul.

A hose had been attached to the exhaust and run through a window which had then been taped shut, Thomas said.

Mrs. Milner was still alive when she was discovered, and her husband called the local fire department who took her to Marin General Hospital, where attempts to revive her failed. She was pronounced dead at 10:05 p.m., Thomas said.

Mrs. Milner and her husband were both self-employed photographers. She was a native of San Rafael.

An autopsy was to be performed today at Russell and Gooch funeral home in Mill Valley, where funeral arrangements were pending.

New Role For Angela Davis

VALLEJO (AP) — Black militant Angela Davis took a break from her activist labors to serve as godmother to a 20-month-old child at the child's christening.

Angela Chantill DeOcampo was christened in a nighttime ceremony Thursday at St. Basil's Catholic Church here by Father Michael McFadden, assistant pastor at the church. The little girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Constancio H. (Tino) DeOcampo of Vallejo. The father is a Miwok Indian and has been active in Indian rights movements in the state.

Demo Party Boss Urges Attempt On Reform Rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss made a surprise appearance before the party's Delegate Selection Commission today, urging members to ignore reports that they are too widely split to write compromise reform rules.

Strauss appeared before the second day of the 73-member commission's weekend session which is supposed to clear the path for new party rules for the selection of delegates to the 1976 national convention. But the commission, which spent yesterday spatting over procedure, showed few signs of being able to unite on the substance of compromise rules.

Strauss said he had read reports that "the reformers are in one group and the regulars are in another. But it was the press that put us there."

Strauss made one concrete peace overture to "New Politics" commission members who believe the chairman and other old line Democrats are attempting to roll back the party's 1972 reforms.

Strauss received a legal opinion Thursday which said that all of the actions of the delegate selection commission were subject to approval of the Democratic National Committee. This did not please commission chairman Barbara Mikulski, and Strauss said that at her request he was asking for a second opinion from former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg.

No Complaint Yet On Concealed Guns

No complaint was filed by the Marin district attorney's office yesterday against Robert Scott Sinclair, 32, of Bakersfield, arrested Tuesday on suspicion of carrying concealed weapons.

The district attorney's office said it is investigating the case. Tiburon police booked Sinclair after they reported finding two pistols and a rifle in his truck, which was stopped for lacking brake lights.

Suits Slap Natural Gas 'Deregulation'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three members of Congress and two consumer groups yesterday filed suit in U.S. District Court here for an injunction to block a temporary "virtual deregulation" of natural gas rates by the Federal Power Commission (FPC).

The suit asks the court to overrule an FPC ruling issued Sept. 14 authorizing "emergency sales" of natural gas supplies in certain categories through next March 15.

Sausalito Shares Problem With Cities: Integration

By PAUL LIBERATORE

Sausalitois the only school district in suburban Marin that has been forced to deal with a common big city problem: integration.

With a student population equally divided between black and white, the district has suffered all the emotional tumult characteristic of urban areas wrestling with the difficulties of providing an equal education for all its children.

"What began as a beautiful dream of a fully integrated educational institution where children, regardless of social background, might mingle, work, play and learn together has turned into a nightmare," said a scatching report on the district issued by the Marin County Grand Jury in February 1970.

But Sausalito is now in a stabilization period, a time of recovery from wounds of racial antagonism opened during the black activism and white backlash of the last decade, believes Donald W. Johnson, new district superintendent.

Although the 42-year-old Johnson has been at the reins in Sausalito only two weeks, he is no newcomer to the problems of integration.

Named director of desegregation and integration for San Francisco schools in 1970, he was credited two years ago with the successful integration of elementary schools in that city. The achievement becomes even more impressive considering Johnson had only four months to do it. The deadline was imposed when a U.S. District Court judge in 1971 ordered all the district's elementary schools integrated by the following September.

The key to that success, Johnson said was in "being open and honest and encouraging as much involvemen from parents and students as possible."

The greatest danger, he said, comes from dealing with problems in private.

"People are less apt to become violently opposed to something they are involved in, whether they agree with it or not," he said.

DONALD W. JOHNSON

Sausalito school enrollment is healthier this year, he pointed out, with 515 students, slightly higher than last year, attending the district's two schools, Martin Luther King and Bayside.

Johnson said a goal will be to improve the emotional health of the district as well.

"It is my personal observation that a common denominator in all successful schools is an enlightened, excited faculty and administration. We can't have an in-service course in enthusiasm but we can pick good teachers, work with staff to maintain good teaching and select top administrators."

Another goal is to meet the educational needs of high achievers while working with less motivated students to make up ground.

"Districts that have failed," he remarked, "are those that have blatantly neglected one for the other."

Is Sausalito meeting the needs of both?

"I haven't been here long enough to know, but that is what I intend to find out."

He is certain that traditional education has not worked, and compensatory education programs, intended to lift underachievers closer to the head of the class, have only served to maintain substandard performance, preventing poor students from falling even farther behind.

"There is no simple solution to the education of all kids," he said. "We must develop a system in which as much individual attention as possible is paid to each student and teachers are enthused, that enthusiasm spurred by administration. There also must be the highest amount of parental involvement."

Before being appointed director of desegregation and integration, Johnson was coordinator of the National Teacher Corps Project in San Francisco. He began his career in 1953 as an elementary school teacher in San Francisco Public Schools and after three years in the Army, returned to teaching until receiving a Fulbright scholarship to London.

After teaching in London for a year, he returned to the U.S. and was named assistant principal at Anza Elementary School. He later became principal, a post he held from 1966 to 1969.

Johnson and his wife, Alice, and their two children have lived in San Anselmo for the past three years.

A San Francisco native, he attended public schools there, graduating from Lincoln High School. Interestingly, he was in charge of integrating two elementary schools he attended as a boy.

Johnson plans some tutorial programs for younger children and will attempt to restore public confidence in the district's teachers.

Change requires time and careful thought, Johnson said, and he plans no radical turnabout or program shuffle.

The calm that follows the tumult of integration is a natural evolutionary process, like growing up, he explained.

"People now are trying to regroup, to pull themselves back together, and trying to concentrate on curriculum."

Miss Sands, who attended New York's prestigious Performing Arts High School, played numerous roles including: "An Evening with Will Shakespere," "World of Sholem Aleichem," "Black Monday," "Brecht on Brecht," "Tiger Tiger, Burning Bright," "MacBeth," "Ceaser," "Cleopatra," "Phaedra" and "Anthony and Cleopatra."

Her motion pictures include "Four Boys and a Gun" in 1957, "A Raisin in the Sun" in 1960 and "An Affair of the Skin" in 1963.

Besides her Outer Circle stage critics award in 1959, the black actress received the OffBroadway magazine award in 1958, the International Artist award in 1961, the Theatre World award in 1963, an Obie Award in 1964, as well as Toni and Emmy Award nominations.

A hospital official said Miss Sands entered the hospital about three weeks ago. Funeral arrangements were not immediately disclosed.

San Quentin Six Member Halts Case

San Quentin inmate John Larry Spain, using a technique perfected by Ruchell Magee, yesterday halted the San Quentin Six murder and conspiracy case.

Marin Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick stopped proceedings after learning Spain had filed a "writ of removal" in U.S. District Court in San Francisco.

Such writs halt proceedings at state superior court level while the federal court decided if a fair trial is possible.

The San Quentin Six, accused of complicity in a bloody escape attempt at the prison's maximum-security adjustment center Aug. 21, 1971, had been scheduled to plead yesterday.

Magee, charged with murder and kidnapping stemming from the August 1970 Marin Civic Center shoot-out, frequently delayed his trial by filing such writs.

Earlier, Judge Broderick refused to disqualify himself and, when attorney Howard Moore Jr. continued arguing the point, found Moore in contempt, fined him $500 and sentenced him to five days in jail, which was suspended.

Among spectators in the bullet-proof courtroom were Angela Davis, her sister Fania David Jordan, Soledad Brother John Clutchette, now on parole, and Erika Huggins.

Even before the federal court halted proceedings, the defendants tried to stall by insisting the court had no jurisdiction in the case.

First Louis N. Talamantez, then Hugo Pinell, and finally Willie Tate were ejected. They were taken to a nearby holding cell.

David Johnson and Fleeta Drumgo stayed in court, but stood mute when asked to enter pleas.

At one point, a doctor was summoned to examine Pinell, who said he suffered muscle cramps in his mouth. But the physician told the court Pinell wouldn't permit himself to be examined.

There was no indication when the federal court would rule on Spain's petition.

Breakwater Permit Is Being Asked

J.H.M. Corp. of Sausalito has applied for a Department of the Army permit to build a 297-foot floating breakwater and a 37-foot gangway to an existing floating dock on Richardson Bay at the foot of Johnson Street.

Persons objecting to the project must send protests by Oct. 10 to the Army Corps of Engineers, 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco, 94102.

Purpose of the breakwater is to protect the adjacent Sausalito Yacht Harbor, owned by Herb Madden, from northeasterly winds, according to Col. J.L. Lammie, district engineer.

Madden said J.H.M. Corp. is a land-holding firm in which he is a partner. He said plans for the gangway and Johnson Street docks are by Ned Martin of Sausalito. Martin has not been available for comment but, Madden said, he proposes to install boat slips and berths for houseboats.

The Bay Conservation and Development Commission has authorized the installation of piles for the breakwater. Fifteen piles were driven at the site in November 1972 without knowledge that an Army permit was required, according to Lammie.

At this time, it does not appear that the proposed project will require an environmental impact statement by the Corps of Engineers, Lammie said.

The firm has not yet applied to the City of Sausalito for a permit for the project, according to Herb Case, planning director.

The decision by the Engineers will be based on an evaluation of the impact of the proposal on the public interest, which includes environmental concerns and aesthetic considerations, Lammie said.

Excessive Spending Is Attacked

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —Excessive government spending is the cause of inflation, Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday Friday in a speech aimed at gaining support for his tax ceiling initiative, Proposition 1.

"We know inflation is the most critical problem we have in the United States today," the governor said. "Inflation is caused by government spending, and our people are caught in a vicious treadmill."

Proposition 1 was designed to allow take-home pay to grow faster than what the government takes out of paychecks, Reagan said in his address at the convention of the California Real Estate Association.

Increased government spending leaves taxpayers less able to look after their own needs, and they turn to government for help and become dependent and easily manipulated, Reagan said.

"The choice is very simple," he said of his ballot question. "The people will either control government or government will control the people."

The total income of all persons in the state in 1972 was $102.2 billion, and the total taken in taxes was $45.7 billion, or 44 per cent, Reagan said, explaining the thrust of Proposition 1 was to put a ceiling on what government could take.

The total that state government takes now is 9 per cent, and the initiative would scale that down over the years to 7 per cent, he said. Even so, the state budget would be allowed to double in 10 years, Reagan said.

He said he was turning to the people because previous proposals to return budgetary surpluses to taxpayers had been "a little like getting between the hag and the trough."

Center Seeking Overnight Permit

A request by a San Rafael primal therapy center for patients to be allowed to sleep overnight at the facility will be reviewed by the San Rafael Planning Commission at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in city hall.

The Marin Center for Intensive Therapy at 1715 Lincoln Avenue is seeking permission for live-in patients, despite neighborhood protest to a similar provision deleted from the center's original permit, city planners said.

The therapy involves patients who are led through "screaming sessions" to vent frustrations.

A preliminary hearing for Ronnie Fayell Brandon, 27, was set for Oct. 11 by Judge David R. Baty of Marin Municipal Court.

Pension Picture Is Strengthened

By ROBERT P. HEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — Congress appears well on its way toward ensuring that the pensions which millions of American workers ultimately expect do not prove as illusory as the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

Between 30 million and 35 million Americans today are covered by private pension plans of varying quality and standards. Yet by conservative estimates between one-third and one-half of them never would collect one thin dime of their expected pensions unless this or some similar proposal becomes law.

In recent years unknown thousands of workers who had expected to collect pensions upon retirement did not, when they lost their jobs shortly before retirement age, their companies were dissolved, or for a myriad of other reasons.

That is why the Senate now has unanimously passed a major proposal to establish the first federal regulations on the pension plans of the nations' private employers. The assetts of these plans now are $150 billion a year and climbing steadily.

While the Senate was voting Wednesday, the House of Representatives also took action on the pension issue on two fronts.

The House Labor Subcommittee approved and sent to the full education and labor committee a similar bill to reform pensions. Committee sources expect the full committee to debate and vote on the proposal the last of September.

At the same time, the House Ways and Means Committee decided to speed up House consideration of the issue by foregoing hearings on the Senate-passed proposal. Instead the acting committee chairman, Al Ulman, D, Oregon, announced that the committee was inviting all interested organizations and parties to comment by Oct. 1 on the Senate-approved measure.

At present the ways and means committee is tied up with consideration of important trade legislation; it hopes to conclude work on this by early October. Shortly thereafter, it expects to take up the Senate-approved pension proposal and decide whether to amend it or vote for its approval. No one expects the issue to be defeated in committee.

Key features of the Senate measure are:

A requirement that pension programs permit each employee to have a permanent right to some portion of a full pension after five years' work, even if the employee leaves the firm before retirement.

The percentage of the pension to which he is eligible upon reaching retirement age is to increase after every year of additional work.

After 15 years, the employee would be eligible to collect upon his retirement the full amount he and his employer have put into the pension plan in his name. Typically this would be about half what he would have collected had he worked for 30 years with the same company and then retired. This is called "vesting" rights.

Establishment of a federally administered insurance program to insure that all eligible employees will receive their pensions even if the pension plan should fail financially.

Establishment of minimum financing standards which all pension plans must meet.

A set of stringent standards to prevent pensions funds from being misused.

Yet the road is not without hurdles for the pension issue. First among them is a possible jurisdictional dispute in the House, which was averted in the Senate.

The key here is for the two House committe es considering the issue to work out a compromise between whatever differences exist in their views.

This was done in the Senate, with the Labor and Public Welfare Committee and the finance committee compromising their differences.

If a similar accommodation can be reached in the House the pension proposal possibly could be ready for a vote by the full House by late October. It is expected to pass the House easily once it reaches this stage.

Backers of the Senate version are quietly hopeful that the House will use their compromise as the vehicle for avoiding confrontation.

The next and last possible hurdle would be the White House attitude.

President Nixon has supported pension reform, but the Senate approved proposal goes beyond his recommendations, although it does not go as far as some Senate liberals had sought.

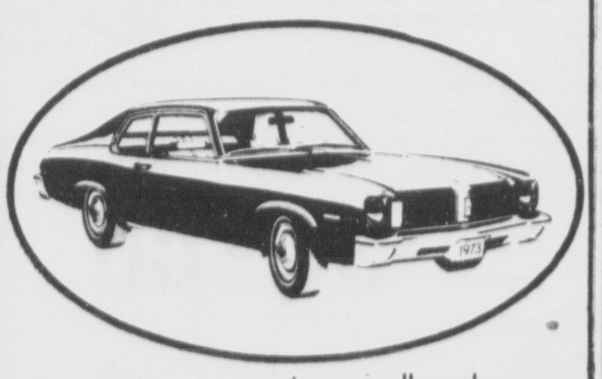

Cautious optimism was expresssed by some supporters of the Senate measure that it would be signed into law, when it reaches the White House. Most Nixon vetoes, said one Republican Senate source, have been "based on concern of excessive government cost."

He pointed out that the only government cost in this proposal was administrative; and that this was a relatively modest cost. "I don't think cost is a factor here," he said, adding; "I would not expect a veto."

Prospective Mothers Not The Only Women In Maternity Clothes

By BETTY FROST

Wrong.

A random survey of Marin maternity shops shows that 25 per cent of the customers are not pregnant women at all. Furthermore, this is nothing new. Today, however, women who like the fit of the expandable garments are more open about it. They are coming out of the "maternity closet."

The proprietor of one shop explained, "as the average woman gets older, she spreads across the abdomen and her bust measurement increases. However, her shoulders stay narrow. By going to a larger size in standard clothes, she will need extensive alterations to accommodate those figure changes. However, maternity clothes are designed for development of the abdomen and bust, and are so constructed that they fit narrow shoulders well, too."

Another maternity shopkeeper says that her lifelong customers range from teen-age girls to women in their 80s. Anyone who is slightly heavy-set up to a size 22, can find a good fit in these well-constructed garments, she claimed.

THE ENTIRE maternity line, including lingerie and panty hose, is a big help to these hard-to-fit women.

Sometimes an older woman will go into a maternity shop with her daughter and end up buying for herself, too. The non-maternity customer who has made the decision to shop where she can be fitted is usually a realistic, good natured and friendly woman, the shopkeepers agreed. She not only becomes a steady customer year-in and year-out herself, but also boasts about her discovery to her friends.

Some maternity clothes are designed for the young mother in the 18 to 25 age bracket; other lines are created for women 25 to 40 years old. The latter styles are just as suitable for even more mature women.

Maternity clothes have more fabric, are designed slightly longer in the front than the back, and special attention is paid to clothing construction.

The stretch fabrics used for pants mean that women can wear these garments after the pregnancy is terminated. Older women, too, like the comfortable fit and the designs with extra length in the crotch.

Sports clothes are particularly helpful for the hard to fit woman. In the maternity lines, jamaica shorts are cut longer, they can find chic tennis dresses and the swim suits are a boon.

"A surprising number of women would never get near the water, if it weren't for bathing suits designed for the expectant mother," one shop owner confided.

Birth statistics show a decrease in both the number of births in the United States and the national birth rate. In 1960, the total number of births in this country was 4,257,850; in 1965, 3,760,358; in 1970, 3,718,000, and the projected birthrate for 1972 was 3,252,000.

THE BIRTH rate measures the number of babies born in one year for each 1,000 persons in the population at the midpoint of that year. In 1960, the United States birth rate was 23.7; in 1965, 19.4; in 1970, 18.2, and in 1972, 15.6.

Baby-connected industries, such as manufacturers and retailers of maternity apparel, are bound to experience some decrease in sales as the birth rate goes down.

In Marin's population of 206,558, some towns show an increasing percentage of older persons. The percentage of those over 65 is 12 per cent in San Anselmo, 10.7 per cent in Mill Valley, 10.4 per cent in Belvedere, and 9.4 per cent in Sausalito.

If these population trends continue, maybe the local specialty shops will be giving equal emphasis to maturity and maternity.

JINI LAMA'S JOB

Teaching Single Mothers To Cope

By JOAN LISETOR

"You're the housekeeper, cook, nurse, gardener, repair man, electrician and counselor and are so busy trying to be a mother that you forget who you are.

"There are so many problems to being a single mother that it is hard to pinpoint the greatest one," said Jini Lama.

Mrs. Lama, the mother of two teen-agers, has been single for 12 years. She coped alone with a minimum of problems until an illness left her totally disabled in 1968.

That was five years ago and today, Mrs. Lama said, she is a stronger person for it. Since the illness, she has received a degree from the College of Marin and gained insight into the problems facing many other single mothers in Marin.

In a tiny office in the counseling center at the College of Marin with $16,586 granted from revenue sharing by the Marin County Board of Supervisors, Mrs. Lama is operating Single Mothers of Marin. On the wall behind her desk is a chart outlinging the steps she will take to reach the goal of Single Mothers of Marin.

THE FIRST step is to recruit 200 mothers; the goal is to have these woman function effectively in their homes and communities, according to the chart.

Single Mothers is the outgrowth of a project sponsored by the Big Brothers. Two years ago mothers of "Little brothers" formed a group that met at Mrs. Lama's home in San Rafael to discuss their problems.

"The group just kept growing until I didn't have room for everyone," Mrs. Lama explained. "Also everyone felt a need for further support."

At that time the group, composed mainly of low income mothers, became a subcommittee of the Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee of the Marin County Department of Public Social Services. Funding of $11,000 was authorized but because of federal cut backs to the Office of Economic Opportunity program, the money was never received and the subcommittee disbanded.

Her next request for funding, submitted to the Board of Supervisors in June, was accepted, which prompted her to seek office space at the college.

"It is important to be on the College of Marin campus for several reasons," she said. "First the college has a positive feeling, which help agencies do not have. I want to get some of the mothers back to school by having them take one course that they really enjoy."

SCHOOL IS not the first step, however, because Mrs. Lama believes a person cannot have outside interests if she doesn't feel good about herself. Women she is seeking to serve have low self esteem and are turned off by helpers who appear too secure and self contained. Being a single mother herself, the project director said, she knows the appropriate approaches.

Workshops, or fun shops as she prefers to call them, and programs are being set up to deal with the immedaite problems, such as child care, housing, money, loneliness and other matters of survival. Once she is secure in the solution of her immediate goals a woman can pursue the longer range goals, which are improving relationships, employment situations and education.

"Women need help whether they are just going through a divorce or have been single a long time," she said. "When you have been alone a long time you develop patterns and have to learn what these patterns are to change them.

"Many single women have one goal — to get married. Goals like that have to be changed to realistic goals."

She mentioned a woman, alone for 10 years with a child, who told her she had no time for herself after teaching school all day.

"Taking care of the child and her home was all she had time for, she thought. What it really was, all she wanted was to get married again, so she was missing out on everything else in life," the project director said.

"BEING SINGLE is not 'just a matter of time.' A lot of single people isolate themselves, living in a suburban community with mostly married couples or are isolated in apartment complexes, so they think the only solution is getting married. There are alternatives to the loneliness, such as communal living."

Another problem is combatting the images portrayed in singles magazines, which shows the women young, trim and with perfect teeth always showing through a bright smile.

"For a woman who is overweight, middle-aged and just average looking this can be terribly discouraging. She thinks she has to look like models in the magazine if she is to adjust to single life," Mrs. Lama said.

Most organizations for single persons do more harm than good, she said, because they give both men and women a false sense of belonging.

"People go to those parties, and they find a partner for the night, but the loneliness they have to face the next day is worse than if they had never had the companionship," she said.

Single Mothers of Marin has a board of directors comprised of the women it is serving, and Mrs. Lama wants to broaden its prospective by interesting others in the community in serving on the board.

WOMEN COMING to the office will be counseled individually, and when Mrs. Lama thinks it necessary she will direct them to other resources in the community.

Most women think their problems would be solved by a windfall of money, Mrs. Lama has found. But wouldn't a better and more realistic solution be to train them for better jobs and teach them to budget money?

Jini Lama thinks so.

JINI LAMA of San Rafael is project director of Single Mothers of Marin and works out of a small office in the counseling center at the College of Marin. Her aim is to recruit 200 mothers and help them to become effective members of the community.

I am crazy about music. I play the flute, drums, piano and other instruments. Dad bought me a flute when I was in grade school, but I have to borrow the other things. I practice piano at school, but the janitor doesn't like me being there after hours. My teacher thinks I should have a piano at home.

I saved $5 from my allowance to buy a recorder, but it took me two months because I don't get much of an allowance. At that rate, I'd be 70 before I could buy a piano.

Dad says we haven't got room for a piano and we can't afford one, but I know better, because he makes between $3,000 and $5,000 a year.

Please help. — BEETHOVEN

DEAR BEETHOVEN:

I've got news for you: "Between $3,000 and $5,000 a year" may sound like a lot to a young teen on a low allowance. But it won't buy pianos — not unless your father can find a second-hand bargain.

However, anyone this anxious to learn should get all the encouragement possible. I'm quite sure you and your father can work something out with the school so that you can stay after hours and practice. — HELEN AND SUE

RAP:

"Liberal Conservative" said her attitude toward premarital sex was changing, but she didn't want her teenagers to know it. Maybe her kids should do as I did.

My parents and I had an honest, open discussion on premarital sex. They listened to me, and I listened to them. Both viewpoints were understood and respected, though not necessarily accepted wholeheartedly.

Just because I know now that my parents are a little more liberal than I supposed does not lead me to believe they're giving me the okay. But it has brought me closer to them and has given me a good feeling to know I can discuss my attitudes without being turned off by a lecture — or fear.

Wish more kids would try this. They'd be surprised, maybe, at how well they can get through to their parents. — ONE WHO IS GLAD SHE DID ONE:

Great.

What more parents needs these days is a sort of birds and bees talk in reverse — with the kids starting the conversation. — SUE

DEAR ONE:

When they learn that their kids have a well developed sense of responsibility and commitment — and they don't consider sex merely a plaything — they may stop being so frightened. — HELEN

DEAR RAP:

My friend Cathy is 14 and she's getting messed up with a married man of 25. She told me she was on the pill. He's got her so wrapped around his finger she'll do anything he asks. She even believes he isn't married.

Other girls have been to his house while his wife's away, but she won't believe that. How can I convince her she's a little fool? — CATHY'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND:

Let her parents convince Cathy she's a little fool. We feel you should get word to them (even if you hate being an informer) not only to help your friend, but because this 25-year-old lecher should be stopped. — HELEN AND SUE through the Sierra; but we weren't we were sailing," said Mrs. Basil Knauth of her cruise to Alaska.

Rose and Basil Knauth have just returned to their Belvedere Lagoon home after cruising along Canadian fjords to Skagway, Alaska, aboard the West Star.

The 300-passenger ship was better able than larger boats to navigate into fjords such as Tracy Arms where glaciers spill down from cliffs.

Telling of snow capped peaks "like Switzerland's," blue waters and glorious weather, Mrs.Knauth said even the captain was on deck taking pictures.

The Knauths disembarked in Victoria, B.C., where they took a ferry to Seattle to visit their daughter, Mrs. D. L. MacLachlin.

Next week they plan to celebrate the birthday of their other daughter, Beryl, in Truckee.

MRS. PHILLIP McCoy of Kentfield is among those planning the Oct. 3 invitational reception for the opening of the Hans Popper Collection of Oriental Art at the Center of Asian Art and Culture in Golden Gate Park.

Chief curator Yvon d'Argence of Mill Valley worked with Mrs. Popper to select the objects from the collection of her late husband to include in this first traveling exhibition of the Asian Art and Culture center. It will go from San Francisco to Worcester, Mass., Baltimore, Md., Cleveland, Ohio, and Seattle, Wash.

THE ANNUAL silver tea was given Wednesday afternoon by the women of Faith Lutheran Church in San Rafael for the residents of the Fifth Avenue Convalescent Hospital in San Rafael.

The group and Rev. and Mrs. O. T. Erickson from the church provided and served refreshments and some members presented a musical program and led a sing-along.

SEW SIMPLE

Wool Garments Need 'Pro's' Touch

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

DEAR EUNICE,

Whenever I sew with wool, I am disheartened by my finished product because of the pressing. It seems that I always end up with vertical wrinkles even though I press with a damp layered piece of cheesecloth. Can you explain what I am doing wrong and how this can be corrected?

MISS C.J.

DEAR MISS C.J.,

I don't approve of a dampened piece of cheesecloth or any other fabric for final pressing of wool. You are sure to get too much moisture in certain areas, causing other areas to shrink out of proportion. I recommend a chemically treated press cloth. The moisture is controlled and you are actually pressing with steam instead of water.

May I suggest you take your garments that have been pressed unsatisfactorily to a professional dry cleaner for a final pressing. All your marks should be gone. Pressing is the real secret for professional look to your clothes. After completion, give them careful scrutiny, and you will often decide that the extra money spent on a professional pressing is more than worthwhile. If you examine ready-to-wear, you will note that no matter how poorly a garment is made, or how cheap the fabric, it will always be pressed well. Many home sewers are aware of the importance of proper pressing.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have several blouses I like and don't want to discard. However, I have trouble keeping the shirt tails neatly tucked into my skirts and pants. I like the body shirts so much. Is it possible to make these blouses into body shirts somehow?

MRS. M.A.C.

DEAR MRS. M.A.C.,

Several readers have written me that they have had great luck by attaching their blouses to a pair of bikini pants.

If the blouse buttons down the front, button the last button and machine stitch across the opening to close it permanently and make it more secure. Don't worry about the fit, it should still slip on easily without the use of the last button.

Bikini panties are best to use because they are just about the right length. Pants that come to the waistline would be too long.

DEAR EUNICE,

I don't like zippers in boys' sweater knit shirts. Is there any way they can be avoided and still slip over their heads?

DEAR MRS. C.T.,

This depends on the amount of stretch in the ribbing you use as well as the style of the sweater. Since zippers are placed in sweater knits without the usual seam allowance, we, as home sewers, have a great advantage when it comes to this decision. You can experiment by making the shirt without a zipper closing, then pop it over your boy's head and see if it will slip on without too much discomfort. If it is too tight, you can apply a zipper at this point. Examine ready-made shirts, you will find many of them for men with zipper closings. It's not a feminine detail only.

SWEATER KNITS

(Neckline finishes for sweater knits is the last and fourth part of this series.)

Before any binding of edges, be sure your ribbing has enough stretch and recovery. Binding: self or ribbing for round or scoop neck can be cut crosswise or lengthwise if there is enough stretch.

A normal neckline is two inches lower in front than in back.

A "V" neckline is four inches lower in front for men, three inches for women, two inches for children. Binding ratios: Width of binding is two times the finished width plus the two seam allowances.

Length of the binding for curved edges, use 2 inches of ribbing to three inches of edge.

Length of binding for a straight edge, use 18 inches for a 20 inch edge or 19 inches of a self band to the 20 inch edge.

Sleeves should be one-inch larger than armhole for proper ease.

Mark the neckline and binding in quarters. With sides together, stretch one edge of binding to fit the neckline and sew with a stretch stitch, keeping the binding on top. Turn binding over edge to wrong side and "stitch in the ditch" to keep underside in place.

If you are simply turning the cut edge under, a line of control stitching is necessary at the seamline. If possible, zigzag over a thread, then you can pull the loose thread for a nice and smooth edge.

Next, turn the raw edge to the wrong side and top stitch to hold in place. Avoid stretching the neck edge at this time.

For a "V" neckline, reinforce point with machine stitching through iron-on interfacing or hair tape. Clip to point after stitching.

A. Stitch from point of "V" around neckline, stretching as necessary and ending at back, do the same for other side. Stitch binding together at the "V" so the stitching is a continuation of center front when folded, turn, reverse mitering and stitch in the ditch.

B. Fold binding in half and stitch to neck, beginning at point on one side, stretching as necessary and stopping the width of the band from the point. Lap bands and continue stitching through all layers to point.

A Lot Behind Dress Or Pants In Stores

You go to store and buy a dress or a pair of pants, and it's as simple as that. Well, not quite, for the process started several years before actually, when the fabric people began designing the fabrics for the clothes you are buying now.

The fabrics are then sold to the apparel manufacturers, who must design five separate collections every year — spring, summer, fall, winter and holiday.

These collections are shown to the department and specialty store buyers during Market Weeks in New York and other major cities including Los Angeles, Dallas and Miami. Buyers flock to New York, from all over the country, during these Market Weeks, to visit the thousands of individual apparel manufacturers' showrooms, located along Seventh Avenue and Broadway.

Each building in this garment center specializes in a certain kind of garment — 1407 and 1411 Broadway, for example, are sportswear buildings; 530 and 550 Seventh Avenue house better dresses.

The American apparel buyer is among the most sophisticated in the world, making buying decisions often worth tens of thousands of dollars, guessing four to six months before you go to the store, what you will want to buy.

Legislature's Space Needs To Be Studied

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Two private companies have been hired for $30,000 to "thoroughly reevaluate" the space requirements of the Legislature prior to construction of a new state Capitol or rebuilding the existing one, it was disclosed yesterday.

"This is an important first step," said Louis Angelo, chief executive officer of the Legislature's joint Rules Committee.

He said the space need information developed by the two firms would be critical in making the decision on whether the Legislature should move into a new office building, add to the current 104-year-old structure or some combination of both.

Their findings, Angelo said, will be compared with the space needs requirements recommended by Sacramento architect Harry DeVine who was hired by the Legislature and has drafted preliminary designs for a twin-story, skyscraper legislative building.

The joint Rules Committee met last week, Angelo said, and authorized two contracts of about $15,000 each to make "comparative evaluations" of the lawmakers' need for more space.

The contracts, with orders to report back by Oct. 31, were awarded to Reel-Grobman Associates of Burlingame and Economic Research Associates of San Francisco and Los Angeles. Economic Research performed economic feasibility studies for Disneyland and Cal Expo.

The Joint Rules Committee sent a memorandum to all legislative offices notifying them of the hiring of the two firms to "conduct a thorough reevaluation of space requirements" of the Legislature.

Angelo said the committee wanted to find out through "independent analysis" if the space need findings computed by Devin "are really valid" and which of the proposed solutions "is most feasible."

The San Rafael Board of Education will consider appointments to the citizens' advisory committee when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the district's administration building.

Street Repaving Work May Result In Brief Delays

Street repaving work in San Rafael may result in brief delays for motorists next week, according to the city public works department.

Streets involved are Northgate Drive from Las Gallinas Avenue to Manuel T. Freitas Parkway; intersection of North San Pedro Road with Civic Center Drive; intersection of Las Pavadas Avenue and Manuel T. Freitas Parkway; intersection of Del Ganado Way and Manuel T. Freitas Parkway; and Manuel T. Freitas Parkway from Las Gallinas Avenue to Highway 101 overpass.

Next Friday marks the end of the $165,000 month-long improvement project under which about 30 city streets have been resurfaced, a spokesman said.

SPORTS ANALYSIS

Tars Probe Loop Change

By LEW CODDINGTON

Officials from the College of Marin were more than interested spectators yesterday at a meeting which considered the possibility of breaking up the Camino Norte Conference and forming new leagues from its membership.

Although generally happy with the conference, Marin is troubled by a spectacularly unsuccessful football program, and was ready to embrace "releaguing" provided certain criteria were met.

Consequently, dean of students Irwin P. Diamond, athletic director Harry Pieper and assistant athletic director Pete Limm were scheduled to go to Chabot College in Hayward yesterday to attend a meeting of the releaguing subcommittee of the athletic committee of the California Junior College Association.

The subcommittee meets at changing sites and irregular intervals when requested by schools interested in changing leagues. Several schools on the Peninsula, including West Valley of Campbell, Foothill of Los Altos and De Anza of Cupertino, made this year's request, Diamond said.

Reportedly, they were interested in forming a league of Peninsula schools. Such a move would break up the Camino Norte and give Marin a chance to help form a new league where its football program would be more competitive.

The subcommittee was supposed to listen to all comers yesterday, mull things over, and pass a recommendation up the bureaucratic ladder to the state committee next month.

This is the method by which the Camino Norte Conference was created in 1968, after Marin left the smaller Golden Valley Conference with a long history of dominance, especially in football and basketball.

The Camino Norte has not been an entirely hospitable dwelling for the Tars, despite their basketball championship last winter. The football program has suffered tremendously.

Following the golden years of 1967-68, when Marin went to the state grid playoffs, there came a mediocre 3-5 season in '69 and three disastrous years. Marin was 2-25 overall and 0-15 in the conference, and last year lost consecutive games by 62-12, 43-7 and 60-7.

A losing season, even a winless season, is one thing. People accept it, albeit with considerable gnashing of teeth. But a non-competitive season, in which the team has no hope of winning, is another story entirely.

IT TAKES nothing more than a look at the enrollment figures to see why. Marin has 4,500 full-time students, according to head football coach Dick Read. West Valley has 12,500 and De Anza 7,500. Those are the schools which win.

Another important factor is school attitude, especially that of the administration and student body. "We have a philosophical approach to athletics, sort of amateur and instructional," said Pieper. The students are apathetic, and the administration does not press hard for athletic excellence as determined by won-lost record.

Community support is limited, also. It's reflected in the small attendance at Tar games (averaging around 200 or 300, estimated) and the fact that star players occasionally choose to attend junior college elsewhere. Marin Catholic's Ben Partee (Menlo) and Novato's Dean Davis (Santa Rosa) are examples.

Since junior colleges may not recruit outside the limits of their counties, there is no flow of incoming athletes to match the flow out. This geographic rule tends to be limiting in another way, since the Marin high school teams from which Read draws generally lose to the East Bay and Peninsula prep teams from which the conference's other junior college teams draw.

THE PROXIMITY of San Francisco, with its sophisticated alternative forms of entertainment, also tends to dampen football interest.

U.S. Retains Ryder Cup Golf Crown

EDINBURGH, Scotland (UPI) —The United States retained the Ryder Cup Trophy Saturday when they gained an unassailable points lead over Britain and Ireland in the 20th biennial match-play golf international at Muirfield near Edinburgh.

The Americans, undefeated for 16 years won 3 of the first 4 afternoon singles, to lead 16-½ points to 11-½ with four matches to go.

Gay Brewer crushed Scotland's Bernard Gallacher 6 and 5, Lee Trevino hammered England's Neil Coles by the same margin and Jesse C. Snead clinched it by beating Scotsman Brian Barnes 3 and 1.

Snead also gained the winning point for the United States in the last Ryder Cup match two years ago.

The teams were level at 8-8 after yesterday's foursomes and fourballs, but the United States showed superior strength in singles play as Billy Casper, Tom Weiskopf, Homero Blancas and Jesse Snead chalked up victories with halves coming from Gay Brewer, Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino.

Tommy Aaron, the 36-year-old U.S. Masters champion from Gainsville, Georgia, was the only American to suffer defeat, losing 3 and 1 to 26-year-old English star Tony Jacklin. Aaron paid the penalty losing his place to Arnold Palmer in the afternoon line-up.

Casper, the 42-year-old Californian from Chula Vista, trailed Brian Barnes by two holes at the turn, but came back strongly on the back nine to overhaul the 28-year-old Scot, who had eagled the eighth and ninth holes. Casper's second half rally left him with a 17-hole total of 68, one over par.

Blancas burned up the course in overwhelming Englishman Peter Butler 5 and 4 with the best golf of the day.

J.C. Snead had to struggle for his one hole victory over Christy O'Connor. The 48-yearold Irishman, the "Grand daddy" of the competition with a record ten Ryder cup appearances, put up a great fight after trailing throughout. Snead nearly slipped up with a bogey sixth at the 542-yard 17th, but hung on to halve the last hole for victory with a completed round of 72, one over par for the 6,917 yard-course.

TV Blackout Ban Is Bad Move

By LARRY ELDRIDGE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Give sports fans an inch and it won't be long before the politicians start demanding a mile. That's the moral of today's story.

The issue is the standard practice of television blackouts in the city where a game is being played. This is obviously a logical thing to do if you want very many people to show up at the stadium. It is also no business at all of the U.S. Congress.

Publicity-seeking politicians have always sensed a popular issue here, so there have been various attempts at anti-blackout legislation or court action. Such gestures in the past have invariably ended up on the scrap heap, where they belong. But just in time for the 1973 National Football League season, both branches of Congress late last week reshed through legislation ending blackouts on games which are sold out 72 hours in advance. President Nixon signed the legislation into law late Friday afternoon.

Thus it appears that, for this season at least, the battle is over. The politicians undoubtedly will make pious-sounding statements hailing the outcome as a victory for the public. But a closer look indicates that in the long run nobody is likely to benefit.

Personally, I never cease to be amazed at the assumption some people make that ownership of a TV set gives them a constitutional right to see every sporting event that comes along.

The only person who has the right to see a game is the one who buys a ticket. Anything you get free on TV is strictly gravy. And no reasonable person would expect a team to damage its prospects at the gate by televising home games.

But television has produced a new and unreasonable breed of fan — the kind who seldom if ever goes to a game, but who likes to prop himself up in a chair and havethe action spoonfed to him. Instead of considering himself lucky to get all this free entertainment,the New Breek thinks it is somehow owed to him.

(Christian Science Monitor Sketch)

"And by the way," he starts grumbling, "how dare they black out the home games."

The reason, of course, is the essense of simplicity: whoever heard of giving away something you are attempting to sell? Try to get a ticket to a big Broadway show, a Rolling Stones concert, or other such major entertainments, and you'll find out quickly that football games aren't the only things which sell out in advance. Yet you don't hear any hue and cry to put these attractions in our living rooms free.

Why then should sporting events be singled out and told they must give away their product?

There is no logical answer, of course, but when did politicians ever need logic? People like to watch football games on television, so any bill which will help them do this is going to be popular.

Arguments about fairness or possible long-range repercussions don't make much difference to Joe Fan; he just wants to know whether the game will be on TV Sunday. If you vote for it, he's on your side. If you don't, you're one of the bad guys. Now three gusses which way the polls are going to vote.

Superficially, the anti-blackout forces present a convincing argument with their 72-hour stipulation. How can this hurt anybody, they ask, since all the tickets are already sold.

Pro Football Commissioner Pete Rozelle has answered this question in testimony before congressional committees. The politicians went through the motions of listening to him, but one gets the impression it was all a charade, and that their minds were already made up.

First of all, Rozelle told one committee, pro football is duly worried by the lesson of boxing

Petaluma Snaps Rancho's Grid String

By PAUL DWORIN

Two first quarter touchdowns last night at Durst Field carried host Petaluma High School to a 14-6 non-league football victory over Rancho Cotate High of Rohnert Park, ending both the Cougars' 18-game winning streak and two-year domination over the Trojans.

Playing his first game at split end, Junior Rick Schroeder got Petaluma on the board at 6:24 of the first period, catching a Tim Wallmark pass. Schroeder broke two tackles on his way to the end zone on the play covering 53 yards.

Rancho Cotate's only score came in the second period, as Bob Haas connected with Ray Jones on a screen pass covering 56-yards. The Cougars' extra-point pass attempt failed.

The win gave the Trojans a 2-0 record and revenge for last year's 22-18 loss to Rancho Cotate. It was the first loss in two years for the Cougars, who are now 0-1 this season.

"We lost because they're a good football team," Cougar coach Claude Brock said afterwards. "In the first quarter, we gave up a couple of touchdowns that we shouldn't have and missed a couple that we could have had."

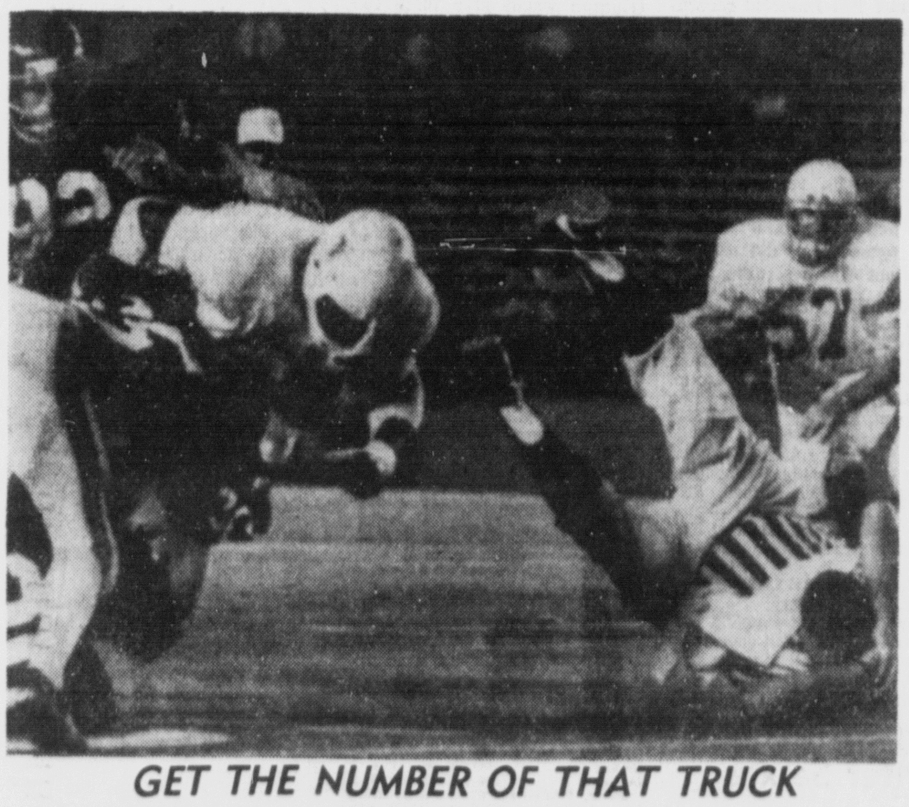

"When the pressure was on, our kids came through," commented Trojan coach Tony Kehl, whose team was outgained, 336-247 yards, for the night. "That's what it's all about (coming through)."

GIANTS' ROOKIE SHINES

Satisfying Win For D'Acquisto

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The 1973 pennant race is over for the San Francisco Giants but they are looking forward to 1974 because of a 22-year-old pitcher.

John D'Acquisto, making his second major league start, struck out 11 and pitched a four-hitter to give the Giants a 7-2 second game victory and a split of a doubleheader with the San Diego Padres last night.

It was a particularly satisfying triumph for D'Acquisto, who is a native of San Diego.

"I know all their players," D'Acquisto said. "I used to work out with them when I was in high school. They were going to sign me but then changed their mind."

D'Acquisto had a 16-12 record with Phoenix in the Pacific Coast League before he was called up by the Giants three weeks ago.

"I was nervous in my first start but not this time. Even after the home runs, I still felt good," he said. He gave up homers to Nate Colbert and Gene Locklear.

"I hung a curve to Colbert but Locklear hit a good fast ball," D'Acquisto said.

The Giants scored three runs in the first inning to make it easy for D'Acquisto. Mike Sadek drove in two runs with a double and triple and Garry Maddox and Gary Matthews also drove in two runs each.

Matthews, a strong candidate for Rookie of the Year in the National League, hit his 11th homer. Maddox got credit for a run batted in when Bobby Bonds scored from third on a pop fly behind second base.

The Padres eliminated the Giants from the pennant race with a 3-1 victory in the first game. A two-run homer by Clarence Gaston sent Jim Barr to his 16th defeat. He left the game in the seventh with a pulled muscle in his back.

The victory went to Bill Grief, 10-16, who got relief from Mike Caldwell in the last two innings.

Juan Marichal (10-14) pitches against Steve Arlin (11-13) of San Diego today.

Reggie May Be Back In Lineup

CHICAGO (UPI)—About the only good news in the Oakland A's' camp today is that outfielder Reggie Jackson may return to the lineup.

The A's are in Chicago for a two-game series with the White Sox after dropping an 8-3 decision yesterday to Minnesota at Bloomington, Minn., their third straight loss to the Twins.

However, the A's' magic number for clinching the American League West title dropped to two when Chicago nipped Kansas City 6-5 in 12 innings. Any combination of Oakland victories or Kansas City losses adding up to two will send the A's against into the American League playoffs.

Jackson, who pulled a hamstring muscle two weeks ago, will probably see action today against the White Sox as Jim Hunter of the A's seeks his 21st victory. Stan Bahnsen (18-19) hurls for the Chisox.

Jackson's return is balanced with the loss of outfielder Bill North due to a severely sprained ankle. North suffered the injury against the Twins Thursday night and will be out at least until the start of the playoffs Oct. 6.

Minnesota has taken 11 of 15 decisions from Oakland this season. The Twins scored five quick runs off loser Ken Holtzman (20-13) in the second inning, highlighted by Glenn Borgmann's three-run double.

Ray Corbin (7-5) gave up six hits in going the distance for the Twins.

Oakland spoiled Corbin's shutout bid in the sixth on two singles and a grounder by Vic Davalillo. Rookie Manny Trillo doubled home two runs for the A's in the seventh.

San Mateo Defeats Tam, 14-6

SAN MATEO — Hit by "key mistakes and penalties" at crucial times, Tamalpais High School suffered a 14-6 non-league football loss to San Mateo yesterday.

"We had a couple of good drives going in the second half, but key penalties, especially holding, stopped us," said coach Jess Racines. The Indians (1-1) were penalized seven times for 50 yards and had four pass completions called back by flags.

After San Mateo seized a 7-0 lead in the second quarter, Tam retaliated on a 20-yard pass play from Mark Davis to Mike Lamb, but missed the conversion kick. San Mateo scored the final touchdown with 3:10 left in the game after a sustained drive.

Davis completed 11 of 16 passes for 137 yards with none intercepted, but was sacked five times for 74 yards. The running backs were able to account for only 46 yards, however.

Murphy had four receptions for 59 yards, John Hanley four for 36 and Lamb three for 42.

Colorful Cards Win 1934 World Series

DETROIT — St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Dizzy Dean is confident with an 11-0 lead in the final game of the World Series in October, 1934. He, along with his brother Paul (Daffy) Dean and Cardinal cohorts have held the spotlight this season.

They came from nowhere to win the National League pennant on the last day of the regualr season.

They have come from behind in this series and need only two more cuts and they will be the world champions.

There is one man on, and slugger Hank Greenberg comes to the plate.

Diz strikes out Hank and then laughs at hom as he has already done before in this game.

The next batter is Marv Owen. Marv grounds to Leo Durocher at short, who flips to Frankie Frisch covering second and the game, and the season, is over.

This final game was not close but it provided the baseball world with one of its most bizarre moments.

In the bottom of the sixth inning, Redbird Ducky Medwick was prevented by the fans from taking his left field position. In the top of the sixth, Medwick was involved in a kicking and pushing incident at third base that cleared both benches.

The Tiger fans already bitter about their favorites being far behind in the game, went beserk and when Medwick came out to left field a few moments late, they sprayed him with garbage from the outfield bleacher seats.

At that point the commissioner of baseball, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, held an on the spot trial in front of the Cardinal dugout with the result being Medwick banished from the game. Then and only then the game was able to continue.

It's been a wild season and a mad, mad series. Dizzy, Daffy and Ducky have had a lot to do with making it all happen.

Redwood, San Rafael Are Marin League Favorites

By LEW CODDINGTON

Redwood High School will have a new coach, San Rafael a new philosophy and the Marin County Athletic League perhaps a new water polo champion this year.

Terra Linda, which has won five consecutive titles and 38 of 40 games, will be "very, very inexperienced," in the words of coach Chuck Metz.

If the graduation-riddled Trojans (11-1 in 1972) cannot play up to their past form, perennial bridesmaid San Rafael and experienced Redwood will battle for the championship.

San Rafael (10-2 last year) relied primarily on Mike Kamler, who set the MCAL record for goals in a season (98), but Kamler graduated and the Bulldogs will function "more as a team unit this year," states coach Bill Ranney.

The team has only two senior, goalie Mike Sisemore and defensive man Bryan Snazelle (like Ranney also a star race walker), but "has worked together as a unit for two years." Jeff Kamler, Mike's brother, also figures to star.

Redwood's veteran team (9-3 last year) returns all-league offensive star Tom Schindler and second-team all-league goalie Craig Schwarberg. Players like Matt Lager, Tom Pickett and Dave Russell also are being counted on.

The Giants are coached by Dennis Untermann, who last year guided Tamalpais to the MCAL wrestling co-championship and has no previous experience coaching aquatics. This is par for the course with Redwood, which has won swimming titles with Dan Abballo and Rusty McManus and was a water polo contender last year with Stan Buchanan (now on sabbatical in England), none of whom were originally aquatics coaches.

Terra Linda returns all-league goalie Peter Thomas and no other starters. Gone are Keith Strange, Pat and Jon Fearn, Todd Gulick and Jeff Miller, all of whom earned some kind of all-league status last season.

Out of 40 students who turned out, coach Chuck Metz has only three seniors and seven juniors. "There are probably three or four teams in the league with more experience, size and swimming ability," he lamented.

San Marin, expected to provide trouble for the contenders, will be coached by Joe Morgan, a substitute teacher in the district and former athletic director at Napa Junior College. Last year's coach, Dave Barni, resigned.

Novato also has a new coach, Don Zile, replacing Jim Settlage, who quit last year. Returning coaches, in addition to Ranney and Metz, are Dave Ramos of Drake (whose team broke a 51-game losing streak last year) and Bill Anderson of Tamalpais (who has honorable mention all-leaguer Dick Atwood back). Marin Catholic has no team.

The 12-game season will be played Tuesdays and Fridays beginning next Tuesday.

Mets Replay Scene From 4 Years Ago

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The New York Mets replayed a scene from a 1969 script last night and are hoping the ending will read the same.

Tom Seaver was the hero, just as he was with the world champions four years ago, and after lingering in the cellar most of the season —even as late as Aug. 30—the Mets are in first place once again in the National League East with a .500 record.

The Mets gained their half-game advantage with less than two weeks remaining in the season by dropping Pittsburgh 10-2 last night for their fourth straight victory over the Pirates. Seaver capped the streak with a crisp five-hitter and was backed by three homers.

"We've been looking for momentum all year long," Seaver said. "If this doesn't give it to us, we don't deserve it."

Shea Stadium shook with pennant fever and radiated with the energy of 53,718 ecstatic fans.

"I've gotta pitch better than this before I get excited," Seaver said blandly. "If I had pitched well on Monday night (when Pittsburgh won 10-3) we'd have swept them."

John Milner, Wayne Garrett and Rusty Staub were last night's co-heroes with home runs. But all the Mets jumped on Pittsburgh early, scoring four runs in the first on singles by Garrett and Staub, a double by Cleon Jones, a walk and another double by Jerry Grote.

Pittsburgh rallied for two runs the next inning but Seaver froze them there and the Mets cruised into first place.

Elsewhere in the NL, Chicago beat Montreal 3-1, St. Louis walloped Philadelphia 12-3, San Francisco downed San Diego 7-2 after the Padres won the first game 3-1 and Cincinnati kayoed Los Angeles 4-1 in 10 innings.

In the American League, Minnesota topped Oakland 8-3, California stopped Texas 6-1, Detroit whipped Boston 5-1, Chicago nipped Kansas City 6-5 in 12 innings and Baltimore beat Milwaukee 7-4.

Chicago reliever Bob Locker retired three Montreal batters in order with a runner on third in the eighth inning to hand the Expos their fifth straight loss. Locker took over for starter Burt Hooton and earned his 17th save after Mike Jorgensen tripled to open the eighth. He struck out pinch-hitter Ron Woods, got Ron Fairly on an infield grounder and then struck out Ken Singleton.

Joe Torre belted a three-run homer and Rick Wise (14-12) posted his first victory after six straight losses as he hurled the Cardinals past Philadelphia.

Tony Perez slugged a three-run homer in the top of the 10th inning, his fifth hit of the game, to break a 1-1 tie and lift Cincinnati over Los Angeles. The victory increased the Reds' lead in the West to 5½ games with eight remainint.

If the Congressional Medal of Honor was awarded for baseball heroism, the Detroit Tigers would probably give it to their relief specialist John Hiller.

After suffering a heart attack two years ago, Hiller's career was in doubt. But last night, when Detroit ripped the second-place Boston Red Sox 5-1, Hiller was called on to relieve winning starter Jim Perry in the sixth. The save was Hiller's 38th, setting a major league record for saves in a single season.

Returning to pitching in July, 1972, Hiller finished 58 of 63 games, held an earned run average or less than 1.50 and notched a 9-5 record for 120 innings of work. The record for saves exceeds the previous major league mark of 37 held by Cincinnati's Clay Carroll.

Baltimore reduced its magic number to two by beating the Brewers. Andy Etchebarren drove in three runs and Bob Reynolds saved Mike Cuellar's 17th win.

Pistons Face Eddie Feigner

The Suburban Auto Pistons of San Rafael, who cross the Golden Gate Bridge only to win, will meet the famous "King and his Court" in a benefit softball game tomorrow at 2 p.m. at the Cow Palace.

The "King" is overpowering pitcher Eddie Feigner, whose four-man team has been barnstorming the country for 28 years, consistently beating local champions like the Pistons, San Francisco titleholders since 1969.

Proceeds go to the United Jewish Community Centers. A youth game will be held at noon and a concert by the Red Garter band will follow.

Laguna Seca Race

MONTEREY (UPI) — The $89,000 Monterey-Castrol GTX Grand Prix, seventh event in the eight-race Canadian-American Challenge Cup series, will be run Oct. 12-14 at Laguna Seca Raceway.

TV Blackout Ban Is Deemed A Poor Act

popularity (1953-55)," he noted, "there were five weekly network telecasts. By May, 1958, there were two. By September, 1964, there were zero."

Secondly, there is the potential problem of ticketholders staying home. This happens sometimes anyway, especially in cold or inclement weather, and would occur much more frequently if a game were on local TV.

In addition to the effect on parking and concession income, Rozelle noted, "Anyone who has watched NFL football. . . is most certainly aware of how much fan participation adds to the excitement and emotion of the sport."

Next comes human nature, and the psychological effect of telling fans that if enough of them put up their money in advance, the rest of the city can see the game for nothing.

". . . It is a little like a supermarket announcing that if it sells a certain amount of steaks by Friday, it will give them away over the weekend," Rozelle said. "Steak sales are not likely to be very promising for the first five days of the week."

Finally, as Rozelle sees it, the bill will be self-defeating, since once people get accustomed to having something free at times, they are not likely to be enthusiastic about paying for it on other occasions. Thus, he said, "it would virtually assure that in a period of a few years' time there would be no such thing as a sellout, and therefore no local television."

Rozelle's arguments all make sense, and this legislation may very well lead to eventual catastrophe as far as attendance at football and other sporting events goes. But it will make the public happy for a while, and how many politicians look much farther ahead than that?

ter off in a less high-powered league, Reed feels. The word "releaguing" may make grammarians cringe, but it's music to Read's ears.

What kind of a league would Marin want to enter?

Pieper and Diamond agree that three factors are influential: size of enrollment, philosophy of athletics, and distance. Traditional rivalries, usually based on geography, should be preserved.

Within those guidelines, some give-and-take would occur. College of the Redwoods, for example, is rumored to be wanting to leave the Golden Valley Conference. It's a long drive to Humboldt County, but at least six schools are needed for a conference, and if Redwoods turned out to be the missing piece to the puzzle, Pieper would wince and pull out his gasoline credit card. (Read would wince, too. Redwoods had the best small-school football team in the state last year.)

SOME OTHER schools which may wish to form a conference with Marin, Read speculated, are Santa Rosa, Napa, Ohlone of Remont, Sierra of Rocklin (near Sacramento) and Merritt of Oakland.

Balancing the interests and desires of those schools and others was the job of the releaguing committee. Watching the proceedings and making sure the Tars get a fair shake was the job of the Marin representatives yesterday.

Year Of Runner Continues In NFL

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

You remember 1972 . . . the National Football League's Year of the Runner. Well,)ay hello to 1973 and what looks like an instant replay for those guys who lug the ball through the line.

Nine NFL runners gained 100 or more yards in last week's openers and will be looking for more yardage when Week Two arrives tomorrow.

And Dallas coach Tom Landry will have that same number in mind, but he'll be shooting for career coaching victory No. 100 when he sends the Cowboys against New Orleans in Monday's nationally televised game at 6 p.m. PDT on Channel 7.

Landry got No. 99 last week when the Cowboys edged Chicago, 20-17.

Miami's defending Super Bowl champions also are after a record. The Dolphins have won 18 consecutive regular season games, tying the NFL record set by the Chicago Bears in 1933-34 and matched by the Bears in 1941-42. One more triumph would give them the record all to themselves. Oakland will try to spoil the plans.

Meanwhile, half of tomorrow's 12 games will be available to home fans on local television because they were sold out 72 hours before kickoff. That compares to nine of 12 games sold out and shown on home TV last week.

Look for Los Angeles and Buffalo to use more of the ground game that worked so well for those two teams in first game victories last week.

The Rams will go against Atlanta tomorrow.

Buffalo's O.J. Simpson had the best day any running back in the history of the NFL ever had, rolling up 250 yards last week. San Diego gets to try slowing him down.

The National Football Conference has four unbeaten teams and two of them, Washington and St. Louis, go at each other tomorrow. The other two are Dallas, biding time for Monday night's game with New Orleans, and the New York Giants, up against the Philadelphia Eagles.

Two of the American Football Conference's unbeatens, Pittsburgh and Cleveland meet in a key Central Division test.

The NFC's black and blue Central Division presents a pair of key games. Green Bay, coming off an impressive victory over the New York Jets, hosts Detroit, which dropped its opener to Pittsburgh, and Minnesota, 1-0, faces Chicago, which dropped that opening toughie to Dallas.

Three of tomorrow's games match teams that both lost their openers.

The Jets go against Baltimore with rookie Bert Jones or Marty Domres trying to match Joe Namath in the air.

Kansas City last lost to New England a decade ago, and the Chiefs need a friendly face after losing to Los Angeles last week.

AFC Central Division rivals Cincinnati and Houston both lost tough openers. Houston fell 27 points behind the Giants, then came back to make the score a bit more respectable 34-14. Cincinnati bowed to Denver 28-10.

Confident UCLA To Host Iowa

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

UCLA Coach Pepper Rodgers, whose team was bombed 40-13 in its opener at Nebraska, is still confident that his team is better than last year's powerhouse.

He hopes his Bruins can put it together tonight when they host three-touchdown underdog Iowa tonight at the Coliseum.

Other grid action by the Pac-8, which went a dismal 1-7 in its first round of games involved day games. Top-rated USC, the only victor last week, called on Georgia Tech while Stanford was at fifth-rated Michigan in a rematch of the 1972 Rose Bowl foes.

With Texas upset in its opener against Miami yesterday, SMU now rates as the Southwest Conference favorite. Oregon State hosted the Mustangs today while Oregon was at Air Force in a regionally televised contest.

Cal, blasted by Alabama last week, was at home to Illinois while Washington State called on powerful Arizona State and Washington tried to rebound from last Saturday's embarrassing loss to Hawaii with a win at Duke.

Meanwhile, San Jose State continued to look like a coming power when it ran its record to 3-0 last night with a 24-6 win over Long Beach State in Pacific Coast Athletic Conference action. Quarterback Craig Kimball continued his hot play for the Spartans with a 13 for 17 performance while Tom Mason lugged a punt back 75 yards.

Loyola won its unique confrontation with Japanese champion Osaka 20-0 as the Lions had too much size and weight.

Fullerton State made it two in a row with a 35-14 win over Los Angles State with Dwayne Sims going for 135 yards, including an 83-yard burst. Nevada-Las Vegas also is 3-0 after taking Marshall 31-9.

SHE ENJOYED ENCOUNTER

Billie Jean Doesn't Want To Give Riggs A Rematch

HOUSTON (UPI) — Billie Jean King says she loved every minute of it, but never again.

Bobby Riggs doesn't think that's fair.

Moments after Billie Jean had finished her mission against Riggs Thursday night she did not want to be drawn into a discussion of whether she might play him again.

But yesterday, following a 6-1, 6-1 Virginia Slims quarterfinal victory over a girl 40 years younger than her opponent of the night before, Mrs. King said she had no plans of facing Riggs a second time.

"I didn't want to play the match in the first place," she said. "I only did it because of what happened to Margaret Court (who was beaten by Riggs last May).

"You can't imagine the pressure day in and day out before the match. I wouldn't want to go through that twice. Well, maybe if I lost I would have."

Riggs flew to Atlanta, where he said the only proper thing for Billie Jean would be to consent to a rematch.

"What happened to me shouldn't happen to a dog," said Riggs, who also disclosed he had dropped between $10,000 and $15,000 by betting on himself. "If I had won I would have given her a rematch. In all fairness I expect her to give me one."

Riggs said he thought his contract with Mrs. King contained a rematch clause. Billie Jean disagreed.

"I don't think I have to play him," she said. "I would not have signed anything that said I would have to.

"He said he thought he should have a rematch because the match was close. I feel three straight sets was a decisive decision. Sure we can make more money. But I didn't play him for the money. I played for the principle of the thing. I hope this shuts the door.

"I loved coming out on that throne (a portable chair on which she was carried to courtside before the match). It was a great night. But I have had it."

Less than 24 hours after she had won $100,000 by beating Riggs before 30,000 people in the air conditioned Astrodome, Billie Jean wound up playing a match before less than 500 persons in 90-degree heat on a court built in the middle of a pasture.

And Billie Jean showed no letdown from her triumph of the evening before, even though she was weary.

"I'm really tired," she said. "I couldn't sleep last night after the match. My legs ached and my knees are hurting. They had put the court over that basketball floor and my legs were really worn out."

RANDY'S PRIDE IN SISTER BILLIE JEAN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pitcher Randy Moffitt of the San Francisco Giants says his older sister, Billie Jean King, played well against Bobby Riggs "but she can play better than that and when she does, she's simply super."

Randy, a fair tennis player himself and at 27 two years younger than Billie Jean, watched the match at Houston on television from his Mill Valley residence and offered this analysis:

"I can't understand why Riggs played to her strength, but even had he not, he was obviously no match for Billie Jean. I spent whole time jumping up and down and cheering and coaching her."

Among a number of Giant players from whom Moffitt collected $2 bets was pitcher Juan Marichal, who joked:

"I don't know much about tennis, but I think I can handle that old man."

49ers Hope To Play 2 Good Halves

DENVER (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers and the Denver Broncos, teams that suffered second-half letdowns in their National Football League openers last week, will try to put together two good halves tomorrow at 1 p.m. PDT behind the leadership of a pair of wily, veteran quarterbacks.

John Brodie, a 17-year pro, was brilliant in hitting 11 of 14 passes for 104 yards in the first half against Miami last week.

The 49ers held a 10-6 lead over the Super Bowl champs at halftime, but 110-degree heat on the Orange Bowl's artificial turf took its toll, sidelining Brodie and several other 49er players in the second half. The Dolphins bounced back to take a 21-13 decision.

Brodie, who complained of dehydration which caused dizziness and nausea, said he "felt like somebody pulled the plug." The 38-year-old quarterback reentered the game for three plays in the final period, but said he felt so sick "I had trouble finding the huddle one time."

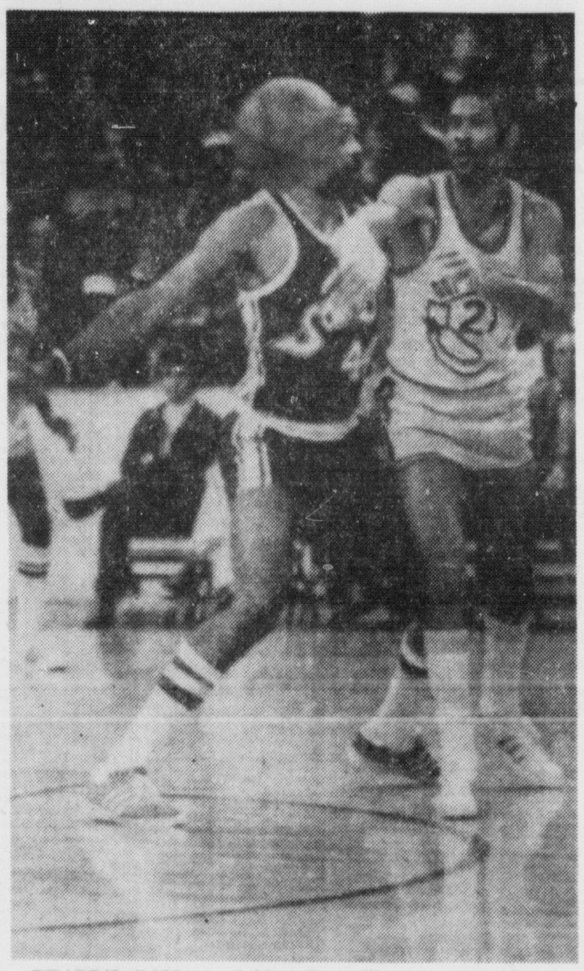

He won't have to contend with such elements at Mile High Stadium tomorrow when his revitalized team takes on Denver, which upset Cincinnati 28-10 last week.

With 13-year veteran Charley Johnson at the controls, Denver launched sustained touchdown drives of 80 and 72 yards on its first two possessions, then went 80 more yards before the half for a 21-3 lead at intermission.

The Bengals gained the momentum in the third quarter, scoring one touchdown but squandering several other scoring opportunities. Johnson then stifled the Cincinnati rally, using up eight minutes on the clock in the final period with a 69-yard drive that ended on Floyd Little's third touchdown of the afternoon.

"I don't think our guys will have too hard a time getting up for the San Francisco game," Denver coach John Ralston said. "They're the team that beat us so badly in pre-season." The 49ers romped to a 43-7 triumph in that contest, but Brodie isn't convinced it meant much. "That was a joke," he says. "They didn't use a number of top regulars," including Johnson and Little.

Brodie will be joined in the 49er backfield by running backs Vic Washington and Larry Schreiber.

Wilt's Antics Are Blasted In Press

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Los Angeles Times editorially lost patience today with Wilt Chamberlain, the giant basketball star who is engaged in his annual contract dispute with tte Los Angeles Lakers.

"With the Lakers well into the NBA practice season, Wilt Chamberlain is a busy athlete these days.

"He's hustling through a hectic schedule of personal appearances to plug his autobiography. He's trying to sound serious about talks with the San Diego Conquistadors of the ABA on perhaps becoming player-coach-part-owner. He's telling interviewers he can't decide whether to retire, play one more year or two or three.

"In short, he's kicking up a lot of dust while in the background his attorney prepares to dicker for a richer new Laker contract. With Chamberlain, this is a pre-season ritual. He hates practice. Cynics just smile and say the big center will be present and signed when the Lakers open the regular season Oct. 9.

"But at 37, and getting slower every season, Wilt seems more than a little old for these annual charades. He, and the Lakers, would be a lot better off if he got in shape with the rest of the team and was ready to go all out, starting with the first game."

TEAM FORECAST

Warriors' Crown Chances Bright

By GORDON SAKAMOTO

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Coach Al Attles isn't the eternal optimist, but he feels the 1973 version of the Golden State Warriors has an excellent chance of "taking it all" in the National Basketball Association.

The Warriors came close the last few seasons and Attles thinks 1973-74 will be the year because late last season the team began playing as a cohesive unit.

"Toward the end of the season, we really began to play together as a team," Attles said after a squad workout. "The five men on the court complemented each other and that enabled us to beat the Milwaukee Bucks in the playoff round.

"We did a lot of good things last year, but we didn't go as far as we had hoped. That's what we want to do this year — win the NBA championship."

One thing that will work in the Warriors' favor is the availability of Rick Barry from the start of the pre-season camp. Last year, after a tour in the rival American Basketball Association, he signed late and managed to get into just one exhibition game before the regular campaign.

The star forward is expected to carry the brunt of the offense, but Attles hopes to work in a more balanced attack.

"I'd rather have five guys who can score 20 points consistently than have one guy who can score a lot of points," the coach said.

Nate Thurmond, considered in some quarters as the best all-around center in the game today, is a proven 20-point man, as is guard Jeff Mullins.

One of the hottest streak shooters in the NBA, Cazzie Russell, can easily pick up the scoring momentum for forward Clyde Lee, a tough rebounder who falls short on point output.

Lee can also spell Thurmond in the pivot, although Attles will probably lean toward second-year man George Johnson, a promising 7-footer, as the No. 2 center, with Joe Ellis serving as a swingman between forward and guard.

Mullins' running mate at guard last year, Jim Barnett, is being pushed by another second-year man, Charlie Johnson, a slick six-footer whom the Warriors hope will develop into the long-sought playmaker.

Newly acquired Butch Beard also fits into the guard picture. The 6-3 Louisville product came to the Warriors in an off-season trade with Seattle for Mahdi Abdul-Rahman.

The Warriors are having trouble signing All-American Kevin Joyce, a sharp-shooting, playmaker guard from South Carolina who is still mulling offers from Golden State and San Antonio of the ABA.

Two rookies, No. 2 pick forward Derrick Dickey of Cincinnati and Long Beach State center Nate Stephens, appear to have earned berths.

Warriors Wallop Seattle

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors, who say this is their year to win the Pacific Division of the National Basketball Association spoiled the Seattle coaching debut of former Celtic great Bill Russell by defeating the Sonics, 119-93, last night.

The Warriors, displaying depth throughout, had little trouble with the Sonics, moving out to a 59-49 halftime lead and increasing the margin to 87-70 after three quarters. Charles Johnson and Rick Barry led Golden State scoring with 21 and 20 points, respectively, while Seattle's John Brisker had 24.

A surprise for Golden State was seldom-used George Johnson, a strong contender to back up Nate Thurmond at center. Johnson scored only six points, but pulled down 16 rebounds and blocked five shots, both game highs.

PHILADELPHIA — Danny Ozark will be the manager of the Philadelphia Phillies again in 1974.

Paul Owens, vice-president in charge of player personnel, said last night the rookie skipper would be back for the second year of his two-year contract. Two Philadelphia papers predicted recently that Ozark would not be back next season despite a marked improvement by the team on the playing field. At the time, Owens seemed to add credence to the report by admitting he was reviewing the situation.

OAKLAND — Allan Lewis, who set a World Series record for most appearances as a pinch hitter (6) last year, yesterday was declared eligible to participate in the American League playoffs.

An A's spokesman said Lewis, used primarily as a baserunner, would fill the spot vacated by Jose Morales, who was sold to Montreal earlier this week.

Dolphins Seek 19th In A Row Vs. Raiders

BERKELEY (UPI) — Oakland's sputtering Raiders try tomorrow to derail the National Football League express of the Miami Dolphins, who have won 18 straight games.

A victory would make the Dolphins the first pro football team ever to win 19 in a row including post-season playoff games. And it would tie Miami with the 1933-34 Chicago Bears for most consecutive triumps — 17 — in regular season contests.

Miami was favored by four points in the nationally televised game which was moved from the 54,000-seat Oakland Coliseum to the 76,000-seat Memorial Coliseum in Berkeley due to a conflict over playing dates with the Oakland A's baseball team. The game will be blacked out locally because it wasn't a sellout 72 hours in advance.

The Dolphins are hurting physically and the Raiders offensively.

Larry Csonka, Miami's leading rusher with 104 yards against San Francisco last week, is limping because of a sprained big toe. He rested much of the week but worked out yesterday.

"If I know Csonka, he'll be ready Sunday," said Dolphins coach Don Shula. "He always seems to be ready come game-time."

But if Csonka can't make it, Mercury Morris will replace him and team with Jim Klick. Linebacker Mike Kolen, safety Dick Anderson and defensive end Bill Stanfill have shaken off various hurts and appear ready.

Oakland's offense was unable to generate a touchdown in the 24-16 loss to Minnesota last week. Over the last 19 quarters of play extending into the exhibition season, the Raiders have scored just three touchdowns.

"Our timing has been off... inches here and there," said quarterback Daryle Lamonica. "Things just aren't happening quite right. But the points will come.

"We thought we could run on the Vikings and we did (200 yards rushing). We think we can run against the Dolphins, too."

Shula realized the Dolphins must beat one of pro football's better teams to set consecutive wins record.

"I've always had a lot of respect for Oakland football teams and this looks like the strongest of any I've seen," said Shula. "Any time you rush for 200 yards against Minnesota, you've got something going for you."

The Chicago Bears in 1933-34 and 1941-42 posted 18 straight triumphs but no team has won 19. The Dolphins were 17-0 en route to a Super Bowl victory last season and they whipped the 49ers in their opener last Sunday.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Mystery celebrity! Win a prize by guessing the name of today's famous person who will be 84 years old tomorrow (Sept. 23). Put your answer into the mail right away. See contest rules below.

Happy birthday to — ? A great newspaperman. He was born in 1889 in New York City of German-Jewish stock. Thanks to the fact his father was a prosperous clothing manufacturer, he got the special education needed to challenge and develop his native intellect.

Top grades were his all through school. At Harvard he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. He completed the requirements for his B.A. degree, cum laude, in three years. While there he met and admired William James, then stayed a fourth year to assist George Santayana in a philosophy course.

Newspaper work attracted him upon graduation in 1910. He reported first for the Boston "Globe," then helped Lincoln Steffens for a time with his "Everybody's Magazine." In 1914 he met Herbert Croly who invited him to help start a new publication called the "New Republic."

After serving in World War I, he joined the New York "World," then the New York "Herald Tribune" as a columnist. Thus began a career of analyzing the world and politics which was to lead to his syndication in 250 papers, two Pulitzer Prizes and the respect of U.S. presidents from Roosevelt to Johnson.

What's my name? (Contest Rules): To the first 10 persons who correctly identify today's celebrity, free admission and ride booklets will be awarded to Frontier Village. Send your name with your birthday, home address and phone number to: Gordon Greb, P.O. Box 6566, San Jose, Calif. 95150.

Bob and Bud Kunst

(Send local birthdays to Birthday Editor, Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 330, San Rafael, Calif. 94902, at least four days before the date of the birthday. Include name to be published and telephone number of sender; print legibly.)

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

South's Keen Observations Lead To Five-Heart Victory

How should you play a suit when the opponents hold only four cards, including the queen? Should you take a finesse, or should you lead out the ace and king in the hope of dropping the queen?

RUFFS ROUND

South ruffed the second round of spades and wondered what to do about the hearts and clubs. Should he finesse, or should he play for the drop?

The rule is to finesse when you have eight cards in a suit (counting your own hand and the dummy), but not when you have nine. This was not, however, a time to be guided by general rules.

South could see 21 points in high cards and therefore knew that the opponents held only 19 points in high cards. Nevertheless, the opponents had voluntarily bid up to four spades despite the unfavorable vulnerability.

BIDDING INDICATIVE

Why were the opponents so ambitious in the bidding? Clearly, they were encouraged by good distribution. South therefore suspected that one opponent had a singleton heart and that the other had a singleton club.

These observations led South to the winning line of play. He led a trump to the ace and returned a trump from dummy. East played the ten, and South finessed with the jack.

HOME SAFE

This finesse succeeded, and South later finessed through West for the queen of clubs. When that play also worked, the dangerously high contract was home.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner deals and bids one club.

The next player bids one spade and you hold:

♠ - 10 8
♥ - K J 7 6 5 2
♦ - K 9 6 3
♣ - 3.

ANSWER: Pass.

Beware of bidding at the level of two when you have a weak suit and a singleton in partner's suit.

Comets Frozen, And Not Burning

NEW YORK (UPI) — Comets are sky spectaculars but contrary to what some believe they are not burning, but rather are frozen. Their light comes from the reflection of sunlight off the frozen nucleus. Gases eliminated from the nucleus expand into what is called the coma and together they form the head of the comet.

While the nucleus of a comet may be about five miles across, nucleus and coma together may reach 100,000 miles in diameter. The tail is tens of millions of miles long. The record is about 200 million miles.

Yesterday's Answer

TUNNEY'S LUNCH — Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., checks over his lunch — an apple, some celery and a cheese sandwich. He began a $1.25 food diet yesterday in Washington to "experience runaway inflation" in food costs. (UPI Telephoto)

Kissinger To Keep Same Theme

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry Kissinger is aware that what he calls "triangle diplomacy" involving the United States, the Soviet Union and mainland China is complex and certain to have its ups and downs in a hazardous world.

But he made it clear during three days of public testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that he plans to continue, as secretary of state, essentially the same approach to Moscow and Peking which he has carried out as President Nixon's foreign policy adviser during the past four years. (Kissinger was confirmed to the post yesterday by the full Senate.)

The hearings were largely dominated by controversy over wiretaps, access to information, and the right of Congress to be consulted in advance of major foreign policy decisions.

A rereading of his testimony, nevertheless, offers a broad if not detailed outline of his thinking on most foreign policy issues facing the United States today.

Asked whether he believed continued U.S. relations with the Republic of China on Taiwan was responsible for postponement of a trip he has scheduled to make to Peking, Kissinger replied:

"It is to be expected in a very complex situation with governments such as the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China, that are enormously suspicious of each other — where every time we make an agreement with one it raises doubts in the mind of the other, and where there is what has been described as triangle diplomacy which is a very complex matter —that there will be some ups and downs, all the more so since the internal dynamics of their systems are substantially out of our control.

"I do not believe that differences which may have existed with the People's Republic have much to do —or anything to do —with our policy toward Taiwan ... I do not believe that this (Taiwan) is a fundamental obstacle at this time to normalization of our relations."

While noting that "the United States stands always for human liberty, for individual rights, for freedom of movement and for freedom of the person," Kissinger argued against legal strictures which would make normalized U.S. trade a quid pro quo for a change in the Soviet Union's policy on civil rights and emigration of Jews and dissidents.

"The U.S. has to conduct foreign policy with many nations," he said. " ... I do believe it is dangerous for us to make the domestic policy of countries around the world a direct objective of American foreign policy because then we would be stuck with protecting the consequences of what we have brought about ... We would tend to follow the consensus of humanity on these issues."

In answer to a related question, he said: "Despite the inevitable sympathies produced by my origin for the plight of minority groups that are denied the right of full emigration, I cannot in good conscience recommend as a principle of American foreign policy that our entire foreign policy should be made dependent on that particular aspect of the domestic structure of the Soviet Union.

Kissinger pledged himself to pursue a new arms limitation agreement "extremely actively."

"If the arms race is not checked ... the greater throw weight of the Soviet missiles can be translated either into more warheads or into warheads of greater yield, and then by the end of the 1970s or into the 1980s the Soviet Union could wind up with both more warheads and more destructive warheads ... If we don't stop the arms race now we are going to get into a whole new realm of technology in which it will be very difficult to put the genie back into the bottle."

Questioned on other matters, he had these observations:

UNITED NATIONS — Kissinger said he believes it has an important role in providing the basis for a human society, in helping to solve or prevent disputes between small nations and in providing the international framework for needed worldwide environmental and food production programs. But he said the U.N. should not be expected to play much of a role in disputes between the great powers.

INDOCHINA — "Our interest in Indochina is to see that the countries have a right to determine their own future." Asked if the United States intends to retain a residual force in Southeast Asia, he replied: "To the degree that the danger is reduced either through foreign policy or through the growth of indigenous strength, the presence of American forces becomes unnecessary. We do not have forces there for any abstract purposes of constituting a bridge into Asia."

EUROPE — "The so-called Year of Europe has remained the concentration and the very high priority —indeed the highest priority —of the administration." He also said, "There is change in economic relationships as between Europe and the United States from a position of American dominance to one where the Europeans are becoming more cohesive and more assertive." On American troops in Europe, he said: "We hope that substantial progress can be made during the course of the next year which will then produce some reduction of U. S. forces. We would be opposed to the unilateral reduction of U. S. forces in the absence of such an agreement."

MIDDLE EAST — "The position of the United States with respect to the Middle East conflict has been that we cannot substitute for some form of negotiations between the parties; that we, on the other hand, would be prepared to be helpful in the two parties began some some movement toward accommodation.

LATIN AMERICA — "One of our first moves will be to try to strengthen our relationships with Latin America, and we would like to have this exchange of views with Latin America progress to a certain point before we can judge the views of other countries with respect to Cuba and also the attitude of Cuba toward its relationships in the hemisphere."

AFRICA — ". . . inevitably our concern with Africa south of the Sahara will increase, and it is difficult now to foretell which precise measures we can take."

$1.25 A DAY

Tunney Dieting As 'Personal Experience' On Food Costs

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., who tips the scales at 180 pounds, went on a diet yesterday —but not to lose weight.

The California Democrat plans to spend only $1.25 a day on his food over the next two weeks.

Why?

"To personally experience at least in a small way and for a limited period what hundreds of thousands of low-income Americans, victimized by runaway inflation, experience day in and day out," he said.

Tunney whose lunch consisted of a cheese sandwich, two celery sticks and an apple — conceded, however, that he has a big advantage over the poor trying to live within a small food budget.

The senator's skimpy diet has been recommended by a California home nutrionist.

"I expect to be hungry," he said, "but I will have a nutritionally balanced diet, something that the hardest hit victims of inflation, without access to expert nutrition advice, are not able to enjoy."

Tunney's balanced diet for the first day included a cereal, skim milk, orange juice and two pieces of toast for breakfast. It was to end with a dinner consisting of a 5-ounce meat patty, a baked potato, half a package of frozen peas —and no dessert.

Tunney said he decided to go on the low-budget diet during Senate Commerce Committee hearings on the impact of high food prices on California consumers.

"One witness —an elderly southern Californian — said to me: 'Senator, you ought to try to live on a food budget of $1.25 a day,' " Tunney said. "I decided to do it, if only to experience a fragment of what she and countless other Americans have suffered and are suffering under the misguided economic policies of this Administration."

Suits Filed In Protest To Acupuncture Position

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Three lawsuits asserting the right of nonphysicians to practice acupuncture were filed yesterday in federal and superior courts in San Francisco and Sacramento.

The suits responded to action by the California Board of Medical Examiners outlawing acpuncture performed by others than medical doctors.

It was asserted that acupuncture has been practiced publicly in the Chinese communities of California for 125 years, and that the board's action was unconstitutional.

In San Francisco Superior Court, a suit was brought by George Long, who was arrested for practicing without a license. He sought an injunction to prevent his criminal trial, scheduled Oct. 23.

A suit in U.S. District Court in San Francisco was brought by 10 patients who said they were being deprived of the benefits of the treatment.

In Sacramento Superior Court, a suit was entered by Yuan Bain Hong, and by three John Does. They said they were forced to abandon or carry out surreptitiously practices of many years, and they asked for an injunction against enforcement.

The suits, prepared by Aubrey Grossman, San Francisco attorney, all said that the value of acupuncture has long been well established.

They said medical doctors on the Board of Medical Examiners now are employing their control to establish a monopoly for their profession, even though few MDs have any training or experience with acupuncture.

Charges Delayed Pending Probe

Cleophas McDonald of Marin City, arrested Wednesday on suspicion of armed robbery, will not be charged pending further investigation of the Marin district attorney's office.

Sheriff's deputies said McDonald, 24, and two other persons took $4 from a San Francisco man who was hitchhiking near the entrance to Gate 6 on Bridgeway near Sausalito.

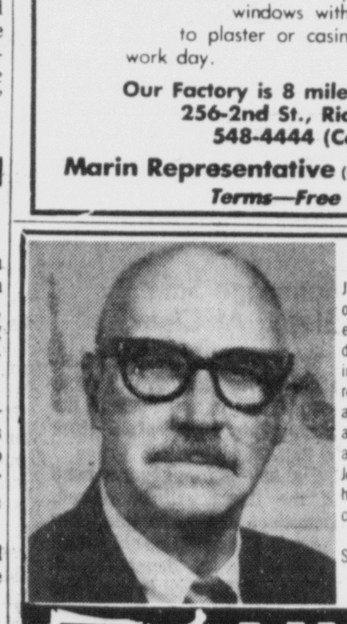

One of the trio escaped, and the other was held for juvenile authorities, deputies said.

High Holy Days Start Wednesday

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The High Holy Days, which mark the beginning of the year 5734 on the Jewish calendar, begin at sundown Wednesday.

The observance covers a period of 10 days, the most sacred season of the year for any Jew who retains even a distant tie with the faith of his fathers.

Beginning Wednesday with the celebration of Rosh Hashanah, New Year's Day, and culminating with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, the 10 days are known collectively as Yamim Noraim, the Days of Reverence. In popular usage, they are called the High Holy Days.

Traditionally, this is a time for every Jew to search his inner being, examine his lifestyle, rethink his values and appraise the state of his relationships with others. He is to measure what he sees himself becoming against the high ethical standards of Judaism, and undertake such self-correction and reform as seems necessary.

The historical origins of the holy days are obscure. The Bible contains what some scholars regard as allusions to Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur. But the full development of the 10 day season of Yamin Noraim appears to have come rather late in the history of Judaism, as compared to the very ancient celebration of the Feast of the Passover.

The most striking symbol of Rosh Hashanah is the blowing of the shofar (ram's horn). Once used to summon Jews to battle against Canaanites and other foes, the shofar's bonechilling call now is a summons to serious personal introspection.

Yom Kippur, which terminates the High Holy Days, is a day of great solemnity, traditionally observed by the devout with 24 hours of fasting and prayer. Its tone is set by the ancient chant called the Kol Nidre, which combines elements of confession, petition for forgiveness, and resolve to try harder in the year ahead.

It is perfectly proper to wish Jewish friends a Happy New Year today or tomorrow. It would be extremely gauche, however, to wish anyone a "happy" Yom Kippur.

GOOD NEWS IN NAPLES

Cardinal Corrado Ursi (left) held up the phials containing the reputed blood of the patron saint of Naples, St. Januarius, as Prince Gustavo Colonna di Stigliano (background) waved a handkerchief to signal that the crystallized substance had liquefied on schedule Wednesday after only a few minutes of prayer. Neopolitans cheered the news as a sign that the city's outbreak of cholera was over. Tradition holds that the thrice-annual "miracle" is a good sign when it occurs quickly. When it is slow, or does not occur, Neopolitans say it means war, plague, volcanic eruption or some other disaster.

Episcopalians Gird For Fight

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Episcopalians are girding for their triennial family fight.

The intramural bloodletting, officially known as the 64th General Convention of the Episcopal Church will take place in Louisville, Ky., Sept. 29 through Oct. 11.

On hand will be about 200 bishops and 896 elected "deputies," half clergy and half laity, representing the 112 Episcopal dioceses of the United States.

About 30,000 other Episcopalians will show up to lobby for pet causes, attend side meetings of women's and mission groups, or simply to watch the action.

The most important business will be transacted away from the convention floor, in smoke-filled hotel rooms. It is the choice of a new Presiding Bishop of the church —the American equivalent of England's Archbiship of Canterbury.

A nominating committee headed by Bishop Robert F. Gibson of Virginia will suggest three incumbent bishops as possible successors to the Rt. Rev. John E. Hines, who is retiring.

Hines has been an ardent exponent of church involvement in social problems and the use of church funds for such causes as promoting economic and political power among blacks, Indians, Chicanos and other minorities.

His attitude toward social action has not endeared him to conservatives who will make a mighty effort at Louisville to insure that his successor will be of different kidney. Thus the lines are drawn for a major battle between two equally militant factions which favor and oppose social action.

Unfortunately from the viewpoint of Episcopalians who would like to minimize the tearing and rending, there is no one outstanding bishop whose claim to election as Presiding Bishop is so clear as to make him the obvious choice.

In fact, pre-convention gossip has produced a plethora of names of possible nominees, including Bishops William F. Creighton of Washington, D.C.; John H. Burt of Ohio; John M. Krumm of Southern Ohio; James W. Montgomery of Chicago; John M. Allin of Mississippi; and Robert R. Spears of Rochester, N.Y.

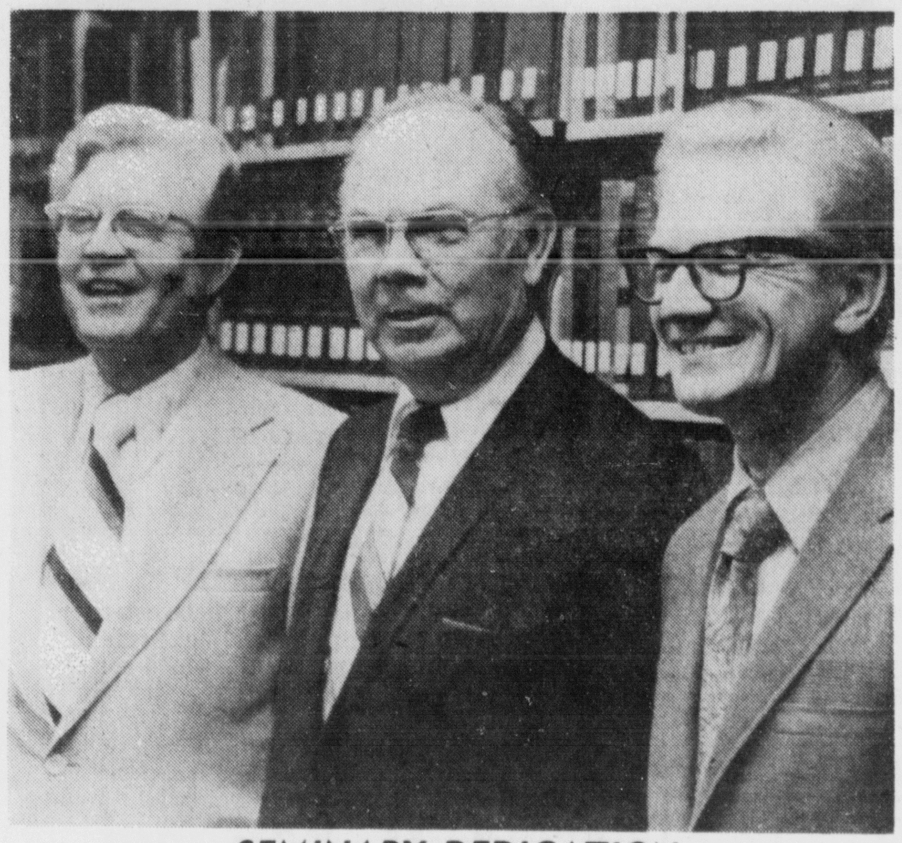

As though the choice of a new chief bishop were not enough, Episcopal delegates also must decide such hotly controversial questions as whether to continue trial use of a proposed revision of their cherished Book of Common Prayer; whether to liberalize the church's strict rules about remarriage of divorced persons; and —most inflammable issue of all — whether to ordain women to the Episcopal priesthood.

There also will be lively debate about future Episcopalian participation in attempts by the Consultation on Church Union to negotiate a merger of nine major U.S. Protestant bodies.

The biggest question the convention will answer is not on the agenda in so many words, but is implicit in all of the decisions previously mentioned:

How far to the right has the Episcopal Church moved during the past three years?

The guess in this corner is, pretty far. But the Episcopal genius for working out compromises and expressing them in artfully ambiguous language could result in both liberals and conservatives going home from Louisville Oct. 11 feeling they've won notable victories.

Clark Wyly Will Speak On Missions

The Rev. Clark A. Wyly, superintendent of the San Francisco Gospel Mission and former pastor of Bethel Baptist Church in Novato, will be the keynote speaker for the "Home Mission and Rescue Mission Emphasis" at First Baptist Church's morning worship services tomorrow.

The services will begin at 11 a.m. at 1411 Lincoln Ave. The purpose of the emphasis will be to familiarize the residents of Marin with their part in providing housing for the 2,200 men who have resided at the facilities on Sixth Street, and for the approximately 25,000 meals served to them and others.

Pastor Lampp of First Baptist said he hopes this will provide the needed impetus to relate various interested individuals to the regular Marin Prayer Band for Rescue that meets at 10 a.m. the second Friday of each month at 1411 Lincoln Ave.

"I sold our house myself. But I'd never try to do it again!"

"You know how it is. You hear you can save money if you sell your home yourself. Well, I tried it, and learned a painful lesson the hard way.

I ran an ad and before I knew it, my family's life was turned upside-down. Our phone rang at all hours and total strangers appeared at the door demanding to be shown through. Our flowers were trampled and one day, as we came home, people were sitting on our doorstep.

I thought I had the house sold, but problems of the escrow impounds, closing costs, title insurance, pre-payment penalty, termite work, eliminating deed encumbrances — delayed everything. (How can this stuff be so complicated!)

Then after all this, the buyer couldn't qualify for a loan. The house was finally sold, but while we were suffering by doing it ourselves, our neighbor's house across the street was sold for 15% more than ours. And it was essentially the same house! His sale was quick, smooth and professionally handled through a Realtor, who knew the true market value of the house. Sell your own home yourself? Take my advice and use a Realtor. You'll be glad you did."

Today is Saturday, Sept. 22, the 265th day of 1973 with 100 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

English chemist and physicist Michael Faraday was born Sept. 22, 1791.

On this day in history:

In 1776, the British hanged American Revolutionary War hero and patriot Nathan Hale seconds after he uttered his immortal words: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

In 1789, Congress authorized creation of the office of postmaster general of the United States.

In 1949, the U.S. nuclear monopoly ended as the Soviet Union detonated its first atomic bomb.

In 1959, the Chicago White Sox on the American League baseball pennant for the first time in 40 years. They lost the World Series to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

A thought for the day: British poet and author Rudyard Kipling said, "Meddling with another man's folly is always thankless work."

Sonoma State Sets Workshop

A workshop on "love and sexuality" will be offered Sept. 29 and 30 at Sonoma State College.

The course will cover romantic love, fear, insecurity and "games people play" with love and sexuality.

Dr. Richard W. Paul of the philosophy department will lead the class for one unit of credit. The class will meet in Stevenson Hall from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days. Registration may be made at the college office of continuing education.

Trustees Set Boundary Talks

The Novato Unified School District board, faced with changing enrollment patterns, will consider the possibility of altering school attendance boundaries at an 8 p.m. meeting Tuesday at the Novato High School lecture hall.

Trustees agreed earlier to study the feasibility of operating year-around schools in the northwest sector of the city where classes are crowded.

Trustee James Casassa then suggested that the district consider redrawing school attendance boundaries throughout the district.

Flower Arranging Course Is Scheduled

The Novato Parks and Recreation Department will start a flower arranging course for adults and an arts and crafts program for children next week as part of its fall program.

Classes will be held for six weeks, starting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the parks and recreation office, and an arts and crafts class for children, ages 6 to 12, will start at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Novato Community House and continue for seven more weeks.

Marin Reporters Win Press Awards

Two Marin reporters, both on the staff of the Weekly Pacific Sun, won prizes last night at the San Francisco Press Club's 22nd annual professional newspaper awards dinner.

Barbara Boxer was awarded for the best news story in a weekly newspaper and Alice Yarish received an honorable mention in the same category.

KTIM Selects News Editor

Robert Navias, a 1970 graduate of the University of Missouri and former reporter and broadcaster in Connecticut, has been named news editor for radio station KTIM, Gen. Mgr. Robert W. Dinsmore announced yesterday.

Dinsmore also said Roger McGovern, a 20-year veteran in radio and television news, had been named news director.

Navias has been with the station since March as a disc jockey and McGovern has been in the station's news department since April.

Thousands Flee An Earth Tremor

AGRIGENTO, Sicily (UPI) — An earth tremor early yesterday sent thousands of Sicilians fleeing villages that suffered heavy damage during the disastrous quakes of 1968, regional officials said.

No serious damage or injury was reported, but several thousand persons fled villages in the Belice valley in western Sicily.

Co-Ed Status Voted For Recreation Events

The San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Department has decided to end sexual discrimination in city-sponsored recreational activities.

Commissioners on Thursday unanimously endorsed a new policy which declares all public recreational programs in San Anselmo will be co-ed, according to Gary S. Howell, parks and recreation director.

The commission last week refused to outlaw all-boy Little League or all-girl Bobby Sox baseball groups from using city facilities, but decided Thursday that any event sponsored by the city should be coed.

Little League and Bobby Sox are private groups that are not sponsored by the city, and do not have to abide by the new policy, Howell explained.

The city council will consider the policy at 8 p.m. Tuesday in city hall.

Cabbie Rewarded For Fire Report

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The management at Caesars Palace Hotel Thursday gave cab driver Henry Raboobian a $500 reward for alerting the hotel switchboard when he spotted flames in the upper floors of the north section of the "strip" gambling resort.

More than 400 persons were evacuated from the hotel without serious injury.

Hotel President William Weinberger said Rakoobian's action enabled firemen to control the blaze before it spread.

Rakoobian said he would donate the reward money to the multiple sclerosis charity in the name of Notre Dame University football coach Ara Parseghian.

Development To Be Studied

A proposal for a commercial complex on Redwood Highway involving offices, a restaurant and yacht salesroom will be discussed by the Mill Valley Planning Commission at its Monday meeting at 8 p.m. at city hall.

Robert J. Hanna, associate planner, said that Sidney Hendricks and James Norman of Mill Valley are applying for the rezoning of property at 600 Redwood Highway, a frontage road along Highway 101, to make the complex possible.

The land, owned by Bank of America, is now zoned commercial recreational. A commercial-general zone is being sought for it, Hanna said.

First Production Of Season Is Set

Rehearsals are under way for the College of Marin's first drama production of the 1973-74 school year, "The Good Woman of Setzuan," scheduled to open Oct. 19 at 8 p.m. in the college's Fine Arts Theater.

The 11-performance run will have presentations of the Bertolt Brecht play Oct. 20, 21, 25, 26, 27, 28, Nov. 1, 2, 3 and 4.

Under the direction of H.J. Susser of the college drama department, the play depicts the impossibility of being good in society in a pre-revolutionary setting in China.

The Editor's Notebook

Public Employees Harassing Public

THERE CAN BE little doubt that our government, at all levels, would better serve the common welfare if the number of public employees were reduced.

The Watergate hearings have shown plainly that the job of running the country was not sufficient to keep the President's huge personal staff busy. They had too much idle time; they thought up all manner of evil works unrelated to the task of executing the laws of the land.

In California, look at our tax laws and look at how they are twisted and tortured by public employees to impose and extract additional monies in ways and amounts never dreamed of by the legislators who enacted the laws.

If the public employees were busy doing essential jobs, they wouldn't have time to sit around thinking up ways to increase the bite on taxpayers by stretching existing laws. The State Board of Equalization staff even has time to devote to thinking up new laws to extract more taxes from us and the staff has time to help push these measures through the legislature.

Sometimes it seems that we have indeed created a monster in our government. Now the monster seems to threaten us.

A STRIKING example is to be found in the tiny community of Jackson, Wyo. The tax base there comprises only three per cent of the land area of the county. The other 97 per cent is in public ownership.

Their principal "industry" is visitors who come to visit Grand Teton National Park, to fish, to hunt, to hike or to spend some time at one of the many dude ranches in the area.

Winters are long and cold. The visitor season is scarcely more than 90 days long.

In short, all the money to keep the Jackson community and its 3,000 inhabitants going 12 months of the year must be earned mainly between the Fourth of July and Labor Day.

During that time, 10 or a dozen gas stations are kept busy from early till late, seven days a week.

A gasoline price "war" during that period would be a disaster.

Believe it or not, the U.S. Department of Justice is prosecuting three or more station operators on what seem to be flimsy charges of gas price fixing, because they warned their competitors about the economic suicide of a price war.

The price of a gallon of gasoline in Jackson Hole is still six cents less per gallon than it is in Lee Vining, Calif.

One can only conclude that the U.S. Department of Justice has too many attorneys sitting around without anything important to do.

THE CIVIC LEADERS of Jackson have worked hard to lengthen the tourist season. They have promoted winter sports.

Success so far has been spotty. Some winter week ends find only a few dozen outsiders there for skiing. Gas station hours are short; nobody wants to stay open Sunday when a gross of $16 to $18 would be a "good" day.

A couple of winters ago one of the more civic-minded gas station operators reasoned that he and his competitors did have an obligation to the community. Somebody should keep his station open on weekends as a public service, enabling visitors to get gas for the trip back to wherever they came from.

The operators got together to set up a roster to take turns at the thankless job of keeping open Sunday for the benefit of visitors and the town.

Now they are being prosecuted for that, too; it has to do with rigging days and hours of competitors.

Apparently the U.S. Justice Department has more than enough job holders to deal with violent crime on the streets; personnel has so little to do that it must stoop to harassing independent service station operators acting in consort for what they see as the good of their community.

—Jack Craemer

Marin's Percolating Squirrels

Upon occasion on warm summer or fall days, we flop on the porch bed and direct our attention to the canopy of bay and oak trees on the hill in back of the house.

Besides birds, we can often detect that forest acrobat, the California gray squirrel. We do not see him as often as we see the bouncing of the branches and hear his special vocalization. Most people write that squirrels chatter. But the ones in our trees don't chatter. Rather, they percolate. They make a sound like a big pot of coffee over an erratic flame.

The woods are full of noises that surprise us.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUET to the YMCA of Marin for placing more than 1,000 high school students in part-time jobs during the first two years and five months of its youth employment service.

BRICKBAT to Deputy Dist. Atty. J. Michael Mullin of Sonoma County for his failure to develop a case in the obscenity charge against a Petaluma theater operator. In view of the time that was available, his excuse that he could find no expert witness on obscenity scarcely impresses us.

BOUQUETS to Assemblyman William T. Bagley, his fellow legislators, and Gov. Ronald Reagan for the bill creating a commission to plan activities commemorating the 400th anniversary of Sir Francis Drake's voyage, in which Marin will have a big part. Bagley introduced the bill, it passed both houses, and the governor signed it.

BRICKBAT to the Marin County Board of Supervisors for inconsistency. This week the Marin board called on the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors to reject widening of the Petaluma River channel in Sonoma County. A few months back, the Marin board gave the back of its hand to a Sonoma County objection to approving the Renaissance Faire location where it disrupts Sonoma traffic — a parallel situation.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Death Of Welfare Increase Bills Mourned

It is inconceivable that we have some legislators and a governor who disapprove of granting even a niggardly sum of money for the aged, the blind and the disabled of our citizens.

Now both SB 110 by Senator Moscone and AB 18 by Assemblyman John Burton are dead.

What would these no-sayers recommend, euthenasia perhaps?

Thank God we here in Marin have two statesmen who have a heart and do not stick to the party line.

Senator's Profligacy Shows Need For Limit

The need to vote yes on the special election initiative measure to limit spending to the state legislated budget as proposed by Gov. Ronald Reagan could hardly be more heavily accentuated than the following paragraph:

Thanks to the Libertarian Task Force, a group of college and graduate students who sank 2,500 man-hours of summer 1973 research into analyzing 1972 appropriations and producing cost estimates on the 2,133 bills proposed in the U.S. Senate in the first six months of the 93rd Congress, they exposed the top 11 most extravagant senators who were found to have come up with nearly a trillion dollars worth of new spending ideas. The rest of the senators were ranked in order of their profligacy with the median amount of new spending proposed by the total 100 senators coming to $10.5 billion per senator. That is over one thousand billion dollars.

The top spenders were: John Pastore (D-R.I.), Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.), Philip Hart (D-Mich.), Edmund Muskie (D-Maine), Jennings Randolph (D-W.Va.), John Tunney (D-Calif.), Alan Cranston (D-Calif.), Frank Moss (D-Utah), Walter Mondale (D-Minn.), Claiborne Pell (D-R.I.), Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.).

A limit to this kind of profligacy is certainly in order in California as well as in Washington D.C.

Reader Disturbed Over Welfare Bill Defeat

Anyone who is concerned about taxes, as I feel most property owners are, would be interested in the information I received today from one of the assemblymen.

It is really horrible what the state is doing about the welfare of those who are blind, ATD and OAS, as the money that the governor plans to spend on them starting Jan. 1, 1974 in the form of a $9 raise will be taken over by the county in supplementing the checks and then the taxpayers will be hit worse than they already are (and we all know it is far too much), as it will cost the more in converting the money from state to county.

If you want more information as to why they didn't pass AB18 write these: Sen. Clark L. Bradley, 609 First National Bank Bldg., San Jose, Calif. 95113; Sen. Clare L. Berryhill, P.O. Box 3349, Modesto, Calif. 95353; Sen. Fred W. Marler, Jr., P.O. Box 2297, Redding, Calif. 96001.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

All of a sudden it's autumn, the season when women attend fall fashion shows to select the wardrobe they'll need next winter when they go shopping for their new spring outfits.

Autumn gives folks a chance to quit moaning about the heat and start complaining about the cold.

To a northerner, fall is the period of relaxation between lawn mowing time and the snow shoveling season, when all he has to do is rake the leaves, saw a winter's wood supply, put up the storm windows, and patch the roof.

ART BUCHWALD

It'll Be Cold Day In January When President Nixon Falls

WASHINGTON — It is wrong to think that President Nixon's political future rests on what evidence is produced by the Watergate hearings or whether the Supreme Court decides he has to give up the White House tapes.

The President's rise or fall in the next six months will depend on whether the United States has a cold winter or not. With predictions for a heating oil shortage, the biggest political issue will be the weather.

Let us suppose that for some reason the elements have been unkind to us and the United States has a very cold winter. The Antrobus family is huddled in the living room, freezing to death. Mr. Antrobus has thrown all the furniture into the fireplace and is about to dump the television set in the flames when President Nixon, speaking from the winter White House in Key Biscayne, comes on the air.

"MY FELLOW Americans:

"I wish to speak tonight on a subject that is close to many of your hearts. I am sure you are asking why is the United States, the greatest power in the world, without heat? Why are the American people, who have the highest standard of living in the history of mankind, cold?

"If you recall, in my second 'State of the Union' message I asked Congress for a mild winter.

"I asked them to pass legislation that would make it unlawful for the temperature to go below 40 degrees. I demanded that they give me the authority to move in on any cold front that could cause chaos in this country.

"IT IS TYPICAL of Congress that they ignored my request. Instead of passing a law to guarantee a mild winter, they passed a bill that would have cost the American taxpayer one billion dollars in fuel costs. When I vetoed this bill in October, I told you that I would never sign anything that would add to the inflationary spiral in this country. At that time I said, and I still believe a vast majority of Americans feel as I do, that it's better to shiver than pay higher taxes. Your response was overwhelming in my favor.

"Now I know you're asking, 'Why are we having a cold winter?' The responsibility lies not only with Congress but with a press and TV media that for the past four months have been devoting endless space and time to weather reports that show the United States is a cold nation. Well, I can tell you tonight, my fellow Americans, you have been given a distorted picture of this country. There are great parts of the United States that aren't cold. Florida isn't cold; Texas isn't cold; Southern California isn't cold. But does the press write about these places? Do the network news programs show the sun shining over Arizona and New Mexico? All we ever see or read about is New England and Minnesota.

"THE TRUTH IS, since I took office in 1968 more people have been warm than at any time in our history. But at the same time I am aware that there are some people in this country who are cold, a few of them through no fault of their own.

"We are going to help these people if they need help. But we're not going to give a blank check to those able-bodied people who are capable of finding ways of keeping warm without government assistance.

"My fellow Americans, I'd like to end on a personal note. I received a letter the other day from a 7-year-old girl and she wrote, 'Mr. President, every night when I say my prayers I ask God to bless you for bringing us a generation of heat.'"

Mr. Antrobus threw the television set into the fireplace.

In Major Powers' Maneuvers, All Are Seeking Second Fronts

Those whose memory goes back vividly (as mine does) to World War II will recall the arguments and maneuverings which built up over the question of when and whether the western powers, meaning the United States and Great Britain, would open a "second front" in Western Europe.

The Russians wanted that "second front" badly. From the surrender of France to the British-American invasion of Italy, the Russians stood off the bulk of the German army unaided. The main American effort was being made in the Pacific against the Japanese. The British were rebuilding the armies which had been driven off the continent at Dunkirk. Neither British nor American high commands were in a rush to reinvade the continent. They wanted to be sure they were ready for the big effort before they embarked upon it.

The Russians were suspicious and bitter about the delay in the opening of the "second front." They accused British and Americans of deliberately letting them do most of the fighting.

TO REMEMBER all that makes it easier to understand what is going on in big-power affairs today. China, Russia, and the United States are all trying to get "second fronts" opened up to their respective advantages.

President Nixon's opening to China was in effect opening a second front on Russia's eastern flank. It has diverted Russian troops from the European front and reduced the pressure on American forces in Europe. Moscow maintains a bigger army aimed at China in Central Asia today than it deploys in Eastern Europe aimed at the western powers. China is America's second front against Russia.

China right now wants more in return than it is presently getting. Peking is particularly alarmed over any talk of withdrawal of American troops from Germany, or of any weakening in NATO, NATO forces represent China's second front against Russia.

THE KREMLIN has done its best over the years to open up several second fronts against the United States. Cuba was briefly promising, is still an irritant to Americans. Moscow agents continue sporadically to seek political positions throughout Latin America. They are more active and have had more success in the Middle East. Moscow's biggest gain over the last decade has been influence with India, although that seems now to be declining.

At one time the United States served as a second front for Russia against China. The presence of large American military forces along the Chinese coast from Korea to Vietnam forced China to divide its attention between the Russians on one side and the American on the other. The American withdrawal from Vietnam has concluded that American service to Russia.

The Russians are presently in need of a new second front on the far side of China. The surprising thing is that they have not yet tried to use Japan to that end. They have still not concluded a peace treaty with Japan and still cling to the Japanese islands taken from Japan at the end of World War II as spoils of war. But then the effort might be wasted. The Japanese are anxious to be on friendly terms with China and devote their main diplomatic effort in that direction.

The most interesting subject coming up for discussions when the new United States secretary of state, Henry Kissinger, goes to Peking will be that of the American, and West European, detente with Russia. The more detente, the less second front for China. Everyone in this big-power game has his own second front project in mind.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

United Nations At Age 28 Appears As Failing Oldster

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Like a man old before his time, the 28th General Assembly of the United Nations is being asked to answer questions usually reserved for middle age or beyond: Who am I? What am I doing here?

No longer young, nor yet living up to earlier expectations in maturity, the body intended to turn the one-world concept into dynamic reality has in the eyes of many turned flabby, its actions confined to fruitless debate and its interests devoted to nationalism and rival blocs.

U.N. SEC. Gen. Kurt Waldheim is a diplomat and as such inclined to go around an obstacle rather than through it.

He said the U.N. suffered from public disillusionment and he posed two tough questions:

"Do the majority of the member states really want an organization which is more than a conference machinery and a forum for the pursuit of national policies?

"Do they want an organization which can play a useful and active role?"

WHEN THE UNITED NATIONS was founed in 1945 it had a membership of 51. At the opening of the 28th general assembly its membership had grown to 132 and quickly increased to 135 with the addition of the two Germanys and Bermuda.

In the early days, the major nations, especially the United States, paid the bills and dictated the policies.

Today, the major nations still pay most of the bills but nations paying less than five percent of the budget dictate the policies, including spending.

Not until 1970 did the United States exercise its first veto in the Security Council. Altogether, as its influence and its interest in the U.N. has waned, the United States has used its veto five times.

IN THE CURRENT SESSION the item of chief interest to the United States will be the question of Korea, and it illustrates the point.

Should North and South Korea be admitted to the U.N. separately or should action be delayed until after unification? Should U.N. forces made up mostly of U.S. troops be permitted to remain on guard along the cease-fire line or should they be expelled?

Debate will continue to the point of total exhaustion and finally will be decided in the Security Council by use or lack of it of the U.S. veto.

THE OBVIOUS WEAKNESS of the U.N. is that the big powers will act as they please, and the smaller nations will pass resolutions they cannot enforce.

But Waldheim also has a point.

It is in the use of preventive diplomacy.

The U.N., he says, cannot cure all the ailments of the international society, but it can and has prevented them from getting worse. As an example he cites the conflict between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus.

And to U.N. critics he says:

"If there were a will to use the United Nations as an instrument of peace, it would work very well."

As to the future of the U.N., it also is obvious that if the world didn't have it, it would have to invent it.

An Answer To Waste: Recycle It

By DANA ADAMS SCHMIDT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON — A new answer for waste at the Pentagon — recycle it.

The U.S. military is moving to change "trash to cash," trying to ease pressure on the environment by either recycling or reusing:

Shredded classified materials and other paper.

Motor oil.

Tires.

Cafeteria waste.

The shredded paper becomes either newspaper or fuel; the cafeteria waste also is turned into fuel.

In addition, the Navy soon will get funds to prevent sewage discharges from ships inside territorial waters.

Hitherto trash has been recycled spasmodically at a few bases at the initiative of ambitious base commanders. But now all base commanders at 236 bases and 800 installations on 26 million acres of land have received a directive from Deputy Secretary of Defense William R. Clements setting a short-term objective of recycling 50 per cent of domestic solid waste.

"Our long-term goal," said George W. Milias, director for environmental quality, "will lie in the 70-80 percent area. At current market value, this waste material should return about $20 million annually."

In addition, he looked for reduction in the amounts of material that have to be buried in landfills or burned, thereby polluting land and air.

On the assumption that recycling should start at home, Milias began by focusing on the 70 tons of daily Pentagon trash, including 20 tons of shredded classified material and other paper. The 20 tons were sold to a contractor to be recycled into new paper; the rest was pulped and burned in Pentagon furnaces as a coal supplement.

Milias worries, however, that he has not yet managed to recycle the rest of the Pentagon's trash, from its cafeteria. A large steam generating plant at Norfolk, Va., operated by the Navy, has shown that cafeteria waste can be efficiently used as fuel, he said, at a saving of half a million dollars a year to the Navy. The Pentagon will follow its examples in two or three years, he believes.

Behind The News

SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1973 37

Some other military recycling projects that will now be generalized are:

The Army has been recapping 75 per cent of its tires used on general purpose vehicles.

The Air Force has launched an experimental recycling program at Carswell AFB, Tex.

The environmental quality office has been talking to bottling companies, dairies, and others who deliver large quantities of containerized goods to the military to use uniform colors and materials that can be classified easily by recycling workers.

The Defense Supply Agency has completed a study of the recycling of waste lubricating oil.

Milias explained that lubricating oil can be recycled at great saving either as fuel or for reuse after rerefining.

The use of rerefined oil was more common than at present until three or four years ago, he recalls, when the oil companies succeeded in getting a federal regulation labeling it as "used oil" instead of "recycled."

Putting these programs into effect throughout the military structure, Milias said, will represent "another bit step toward the realization of one of our national goals for environmental enhancement.

He reported that more than $1 billion have been spent for environmental quality by the Department of Defense. The department has met the requirements of a presidential "environment" directive of February 1970, at a cost of $154 million in fiscal 1973 and expects a cost of $116 in fiscal 1974.

The Navy, Milias noted, has the largest share in the 1974 program to modify vessels to present discharge of sewage within territorial waters.

Soviet, U.S. Exchange Growing In Fields Of Business, Research

By LEO GRULIOW
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

MOSCOW — Gherman Gvishiani, deputy chairman of the powerful Soviet State Committee on Science and Technology, is looking ahead to a time — not far off, he believes — when Soviet and American industry will be supplying each other and cooperating in joint production for third markets.

Gvishiani has played a key role in bringing Soviet and American industrialists together.

The list of American corporations negotiating with the Soviet Union, as he reels off their names, sounds like a U.S. corporate Who's Who.

Negotiations cover shared research and development, two-way trade, and so-called compensation arrangements. The latter call for the Americans to provide industrial equipment and know-how for Soviet production. The output would be shared by the American and Soviet partners, with part of it sold to third countries in many instances.

Western newspapers invariably identify Gvishiani as son-in-law of Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, but sometimes they fail to mention that scientists and businessmen who have dealt with him have been more impressed by his professional ability.

Gvishiani is a sociologist, an authority on Western theories of business management, and a key figure in Soviet scientific and technical development.

He also heads the organizing council of the International Institute of Applied Systems Analysis — the first joint East-West "think tank" — now starting up in Austria to share research on such world problems as energy, water resources, and ecology.

Gvishiani received a group of American correspondents here and described mushrooming American-Soviet exchanges in business and research.

Joint international production is common. An American may, for instance, find that his American typewriter contains Japanese or Dutch components — but it is new in deals with the Soviet Union.

Gvishiani holds that such deals with the USSR can be especially advantageous because, with the large internal Soviet market as a base, Soviet firms also could produce the same goods cheaply for world markets to repay American suppliers of know-how and technology.

His answer to charges that the Soviet Union benefits disproportionately from technical and research exchange is, "We wish we were that efficient."

In most cases, he says, products and designs submitted by American firms either are known or already produced in the Soviet Union. The Soviet problem is how to expand into mass production, and here he says, mutual investment would speed progress. The payoff to American partners would come from export to the U.S. and to third markets.

The USSR, he said, wants to buy and sell new products, including aircraft, and is looking for Western partners in production of computers, videotape recorders, and other electronic items.

One project under negotiation is for American engineering in the construction of a new Black Sea port.

Gvishiani confirmed that the Soviet Union is reorganizing the structure of export-import agencies to gear for greatly increased and more complex business with the West. Wider initiative and decision-making power is being given to individual firms when the deals are below the multi-million dollar level, which requires long-range central planning.

In his own special field of management, Mr. Gvishiani paid tribute to American contributions to the theory of industrial organization and called for further study of American practices in this sphere. He is author of a standard Soviet work on this subject.

Soviet managers attend Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Sloan School of Management, and Sloan graduates visit Moscow. Other exchanges are planned.

This Week In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

All the ballyhoo and hoopla, all the talk about man vs. woman, all the months of showmanship and publicity ended when Bobby Riggs hit his last tennis shot into the net and then leaped over to congratulate his opponent.

Billie Jean King, the 29-yearold star of women's tennis, had defeated the 55-year-old hustler in what was billed as the "Battle of the Sexes."

"I still like women in the bedroom and the kitchen, in that order," Riggs said after his loss.

The spectacle in the Astrodome before the largest crowd ever to see a tennis match plus an estimated 48 million persons who watched it live on television was one of those rare events that captured the imagination of the nation and for a brief moment took their thoughts off the more serious news of the day.

But there were many major developments around the world, many coming out of Washington.

Reports surfaced that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, under investigation in Maryland, was considering resigning. There was no official word but the matter prompted Agnew to meet with President Nixon late in the week.

Nixon's attorneys and special prosecutor Archibald Cox announced they were unable to agree on a compromise in the Watergate tapes situation, sending the whole matter back to the courts to decide.

Henry A. Kissinger, long an architect of American foreign policy as presidential adviser, officially was confirmed by the Senate as secretary of state.

The government reported that consumer food prices rose in August at the fastest rate for any month in 40 years, generating the largest over-all monthly increase in the cost of living since just after World War II.

Around the World, Around the Clock:

DENVER: Edna Stanek, 34, who had been taking fertility pills, gave birth to sextuplets. One of the babies died from a respiratory ailment but by the end of the week the other five were growing steadily stronger.

HOUSTON: The Skylab 2 astronauts prepared to return to earth next Tuesday after a 59-day trip in space. They said they expected to be in such good health they would walk out of their craft themselves.

SANTIAGO: The head of the new military junta outlawed Chile's Marxist parties as the politically torn country began a return to normal.

English English, But Not American

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — When 17 foreign students came to a business college here they believed they had a good working knowledge of English to help them in their studies.

But it was English English they had been taught and the students from Liberia, Japan, the Congo, Hong Kong, Nigeria, Kenya, Sierra Leona, Peru and India were having trouble with American business terms and slang. So 12 faculty members of Pierce Junior College volunteered to teach them American terms free during one-hour extra class sessions three days a week.

Room For Planting

MANILA (UPI) —An official of a citizens' group has urged Manila authorities to look for some unused space inside the city jail compound so inmates can learn how to plant. Nick Alcantra feels a planting project might help in rehabilitation of prisoners.

Lodge At Tomales Bay Gets Setback

The staff of the North Central Coast Regional Commission yesterday recommended denial of a permit for Tomales Bay Lodge, a controversial resort proposed north of Marshall.

Herbert H. Angress, who has been trying to get the project started for four years, instead should find a public or private agency to buy his 20-acre parcel "as part of an open space preserve," the staff said.

But if he cannot find a "substantial, significant offer" within a year, he should be permitted to build a project less than half the size of his current proposal, the staff said in a report mailed to commissioners.

Angress plans a 60-unit condominium hotel, 150-seat restaurant, recreation building and parking lot for 125 cars on the shoreline site one mile north of Marshall. Conservationists have delayed Angress at each governmental level, contending the project was inappropriate for the area.

The staff's report declared the project "too large, too dense, too marginally served by water supply and sewerage facilities, too dependent upon an unproven and complex ownership arrangement with buildings which, because of their height and bulk, will destroy the open character of the land and will significantly detract from views to or along the coast."

A hearing on the application will be held by the commission at 7 p.m. on Oct. 4 in the supervisors' chambers of the Marin Civic Center.

The staff report also noted the project would be "the largest visitor center on the coastline from Santa Cruz to Mendocino."

It acknowledged the development would provide needed access to the bay shore and that Angress "obviously has a sensitive appreciation of the natural assets of his property and the larger Tomales Bay community," but that this did not outweight its disadvantages.

The staff added the precedent would be applied by assessors, investors and speculators to other parcels in the area.

"The road along Tomales Bay is already burdened by an unfortunate string of development which stretches Malibu-like between the highway and the water," the staff said.

The project "would destroy the already fuzzy village boundaries and would substitute a string of scattered development along the entire east shore for the open character of the land between the stttlements," its report said.

Approval of the permit would take the votes of 10 of the 14 commissioners, the staff said.

Angress, in a letter attached to the staff report, said his "entire economic reward for having milked cows for over 20 years is tied up in this land . . . If denied a way to proceed, I will be left with a home on 100 acres, the land being able to produce between $1,000 and $2,000 gross income annually from grazing — not enough even to pay the property taxes, let alone the mortgage on this land.

"I would undoubtedly lose this land, and with it my economic rewards of the last 25 years," if the permit were denied, he said.

Chrysler Plans British Layoffs

LONDON (UPI) —Chrysler announced plans yesterday for widespread layoffs among its more than 28,000 British car workers.

The announcement was the American-owned firm's reply to a decision by 7,000 workers at Chrysler's Linwood plant in Renfrewshire today to continue a two-week-old strike.

A Chrysler statement said the lay-off plans followed its warning last week that unless production at Linwood resumed "we would be losing 1 million pounds ($2.5 million) a day in revenue" and would need "immediate steps to reduce the costs substantially."

Surviving Sextuplets Reported 'Very Well'

DENVER (UPI) —The five surviving Stanek sextuplets slept quietly this morning, protected in incubators lined with heat shields. A spokesman at Colorado General Hospital said "they are doing very well."

The latest report on the children listed John and Jeffrey in good condition. Stephen, Nathan and Cathrine, who were being helped to breathe by a respirator, were requiring less oxygen late yesterday.

"There has been some steady improvement," said Dr. Tibor Engel. "We can't say yet everything is all clear but it is very encouraging. The problem is they can go momentarily from being great to a moment of crisis."

Edna Stanek, 34, who took fertility drugs before becoming pregnant, gave birth to the six children last Sunday—seven weeks premature. One girl, Julia, died Tuesday night of hyaline membrane disease, which prevents the lungs from furnishing oxygen to the blood.

All the survivors except John and Jeffrey showed traces of the sickness earlier in the week but doctors said their vital signs were stabilized.

The infants were fed mother's milk donated by the La Leche League in Denver. Red Cross workers delivered the liquid packed in an ice chest.

Peditrician Dr. James Strain said Stephen suffered an upset stomach and was fed sugar water intervenously instead of the milk, but he said the ailment was not serious.

The mother made her third visit to the obstetrics ward nursery yesterday to peek at the children and said the babies looked fine. She also said she would have no fears of taking fertility pills again if she decided to have more children. Mrs. Stanek and her husband, Eugene, 31, already had a 4-year-old boy.

"I think six children is plenty for a family," she said. "Something like this always happens to someone else. It's a little hard to accept this is me."

A trust fund for the surviving sextuplets was established yesterday at the United Bank of Denver. It was designed to defray hospital expenses and provide money for the children's education. Stanek said hospital care was costing him $100 a day per child.

New Mexico's altitude, according to the National Automobile Club, ranges from 2,850 feet to 13,151 feet above sea level.

Strucutral Fire Tax To Be Aired

A panel discussion on the structural fire tax charged in unincorporated areas of Marin will highlight the first fall membership meeting of the Irate Taxpayers of Marin at 8 p.m. next Friday in the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. building, San Rafael.

County Administrator John F. Barrows, country Fire Chief Richard D. Pedroli, San Rafael Fire Chief Robert E. Marcucci and San Rafael Fire Commissioner Clifford V. Lund will be on a panel discussing the charge on all property in the unincorporated parts of the county which are not within a special fire district.

Salvo Continues On Tax Ceiling Proposal

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democratic State Chairman John L. Burton said today "it is the height of hypocrisy" for Gov. Ronald Reagn to charge that the campaign being waged against his tax ceiling plan "is a little bit like Watergate."

"Ronald Reagan's Prop. 1 campaign is not a little, but a lot like Watergate," said Burton, a San Francisco assemblyman.

Reagan's accusation yesterday was aimed specifically at Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, the tax plan's most outspoken critic, and the San Francisco public relations firm of Whitaker and Baxter, which has been hired by the California Teachers Association to promote opposition to the Nov. 6 ballot measure.

"The governor's feeble attempt to equate opposition to Prop. 1 with Watergate is as laughable as it is hypocritical," said Moretti. "The governor is obviously trying to take attention away from the flaws in his initiative with name calling."

Reagan said that while bugging and burglary are not involved in the anti-initiative campaign, the same attitude exists that anything in politics is fair. "I know these men don't steal or anything," he said, "but in waging a political battle, they believe it's okay to l2pn ,rt, tell half truths, falsehoods."

Mike Abramson, vice president of Whitaker and Baxter, said: "Apparently anybody who disagrees with him—the County Supervisors Assocation, the California Teachers Association —is just 'bad people.' "

Burton said "it is stunning irony" the Republican governor would equate Watergate with the anti-initiative campaign because "the same interests who poured millions into the notorious Committee for the Re-Election of the President are spending hundreds of thousands more to support Prop. 1."

Any Monetary Solution Laid On Major Nations

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — The new managing director of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) said today that reluctance by the major nations to compromise has delayed agreement on world monetary reform.

Johannes Witteveen, the new IMF chief, told newsmen gathered here for the IMF annual meeting that a reform agreement might not come until "the belance of payments comes closer to equilibrium."

Witteveen's aides said privately that he meant this specifically as criticism of U.S. foot-dragging.

Earlier, it had been hoped that the IMF meeting would produce a broad outline of reform, with all the details in place in time for next year's IMF parley.

Witteveen, who took over the directorship this year after his predecessor, Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, was forced out by American opposition, said this timetable now was "rather optimisic."

"I hope by this time next year, there will be agreement on the broad outlines of reform," the Dutchman said. Progress here next week, he said, depended on a meeting Sunday of finance ministers of the major industrial nations.

"The governments of some major countries have maintained a certain reserve," Witteveen said. "Very large interests are at stake and it is to be expected that countries are reluctant to compromise.

"Perhaps," he said, "they will become more interested if in the new year, the balance of payments comes closer to equilibrium."

U.S. Treasury Secretary George P. Schultz said the meeting would "make a certain amount of progress," but probably would be unable to complete work on any of the major elements of reform.

Call Made To Wallace Backers

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) —Half a million supporters of Gov. George Wallace began receiving requests for contributions yesterday to help pay off Wallace's $109,000 national campaign debt.

The nationwide mailing yesterday, which cost $60,000, is expected to pay for itself and erase the debt, left from Wallace's 1973 presidential campaign, according to Charles Snider, Wallace's campaign coordinator.

The Wallace campaign organization has always "gotten by" on contributions of $10 or less, said Snider.

Another Rabid Animal Is Reported

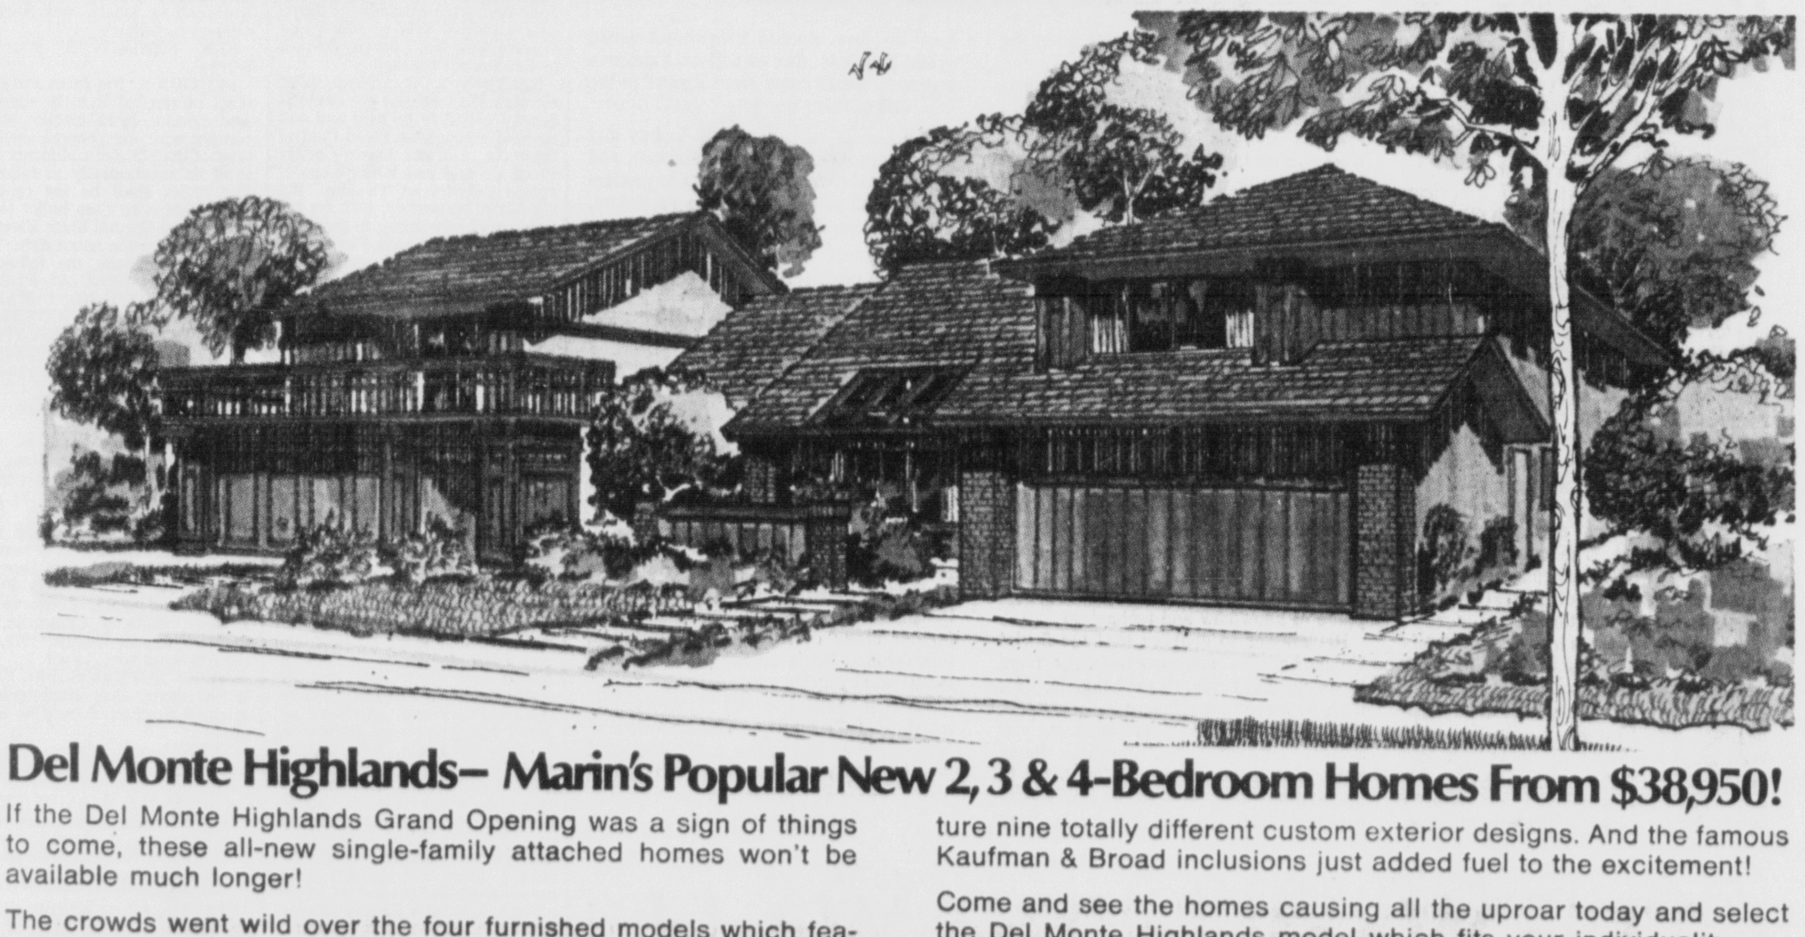

A sick skunk found lying in a creek bed near 5401 Redwood Highway, Novato, was Marin's 31st rabid animal this year, county health officials said yesterday.

The animal was killed Sept. 17 by humane officers and its brain sent to the state virus laboratory in Berkeley where rabies tests proved positive.

Dave Evans Races With Sailing's Best At The Age Of 15

By DON KEOWN

At age 15, Dave Evans of Novato's Bel-Marin Keys is already a veteran and winning skipper in sailboat racing.

The Novato High School sophomore directed his family's Coronado 25, the Do It!, and crew to a second place finish overall in the five-race national championship series of the National Coronado 25 Association on San Francisco Bay in August.

And to top off a successful 1973 campaign he edged out another Marin skipper, Jim Davies of Mill Valley, for second place in the seasonal point totals for Yacht Racing Association-sanctioned competition this summer in the Coronado 25 class. Jim and John Callahan of Piedmont wrapped up the title.

In such competition, young Evans has spotted his rivals years in age and experience, and more than held his own.

DAVE WAS BORN in the landlubber Midwest, in Toledo, Ohio. He and his family continued to dwell in the American heartlands, far from ocean waters, until six years ago when they moved to California.

But the Evanses were not quite the novices around boats that such an origin might indicate.

Dave's mother, Nancy, had owned a sailboat in her native Michigan, in the Star class, and sailed it expertly, teaching her husband Wallace the fun and challenge of the sport.

And the family had owned a powerboat that they had/run and enjoyed on Lake Erie.

BUT THE REAL involvement of th Evanses in sailing began with their move to their waterfront home in Bel-Marin Keys six years ago.

"We bought another powerboat, and thus had two of them, plus a couple of dinghies," Dave recalls. "But our first sailboat was a Sprite."

The small Sprite proved an excellent craft upon which to learn the skill of sailing, and Mrs. Evans began giving her young son instruction. Soon Dave was taking the small craft ut on his own.

"Right away," says Dave, "I preferred the sailboat to the powerboat. Once I got into sailing, about the only use I had for a powerboat was for water skiing."

THE TWO DINGHIES and one of the powerboats were sold, and replaced with the Coronado 25 sailboat.

Later the Sprite and the second powerboat were sold, and a Coronado 15 purchased. It was chrutened the Do It Again!

"I sort of took it over as my own," Dave says of the 15.

There is yet a third sailboat registered to the Evans family, this one a Sunfish that is the pride and joy of Dave's younger sister Julie, also keenly interested in horseback riding.

"So we're anqall-sailingamily," says Dave.

DE EVANS HAS been racing now for five years, beginning with the Coronado 15 which he skippered with a crew of one — "usually my dad."

"On the 25," he says, "we turned it around, and my dad was skipper, and I was part of his crew." Mrs. Evans and Julie also showed up frequently on the crew lists.

In the past two years Dave Evans has begun to take over the skipper responsibilities on the Coronado 25, with his father sometimes crewing for him. Wally Evans is a business man, with National Controls and Co. in Santa Rosa, manufacturers of digital weighing equipment.

OF THE TWO Coronados, Dave says: "The smaller one i a lot of fun for playing around and for short cruising. But the big one is the one for racing and long cruises."

The 15, and Julie's Sunfish, are kept moored at Bel-Marin Keys. The 25 is berthed at the Sausalito marina. The Do It! is lifted from the water and moved to Bel Marin for the winter. Both Coronados are painted green and white, "the Evans colors."

The real key to successful sailboat racing lies in the crew, Dave Evans asserts.

Thus he has been busy training a group of young friends, also ages 15 and 16, in the intricacies of setting sail and the other vital work that must be performed on board a sailboat or yacht in competition — "learning the right strings to pull at the right time," the young skipper puts it.

WITH SUCH A teen-age crew Dave Evans plans to compete in this year's YRA winter series.

For the Coronado 25 national championship series in August Dave relied upon a veteran crew that included his father, Wally, his mother, Nancy, Dave Yarbrough, Irma Saarman, Glenn Blackburn and John McGovern. Because of the unavailability of some crew members for all of the five races, there was a rotation.

Furniture For Today's Mobile Generation

The scene at Monastery Furniture Manufactory is set with 14-foot high stacks of pine boards next to tidy groups of packaged goods ready for shipment.

It is not for the timid to side-step the pot-holed paving and dodge the Hyster lift-truck weaving a checkerboard pattern from here to there.

Fade into scene two: a tiny crowded office shared by five long-haired executives. Scene three is the sawdust covered plant where howling sanders and whining drills compete with a transistor blaring rock music "to drown out the reality of the machinery."

THE AMBIENCE is as loose as any commune.

The smiling, relaxed faces of the 30 young guys and gals deny such big business scars as fatigue, frayed nerves and frenzy. But big business is there — three quarters of a million dollars worth. And it is ground out in furniture condensed down so that an entire living room set can be hauled in a Volkswagen.

"Wow, it looks organic!" "It's not plastic, it's wood — with style." "Fantastic! And the price is right." These are some reactions voiced by enthusiastic consumers.

According to wise business counseling, Monastery Furniture Manufactory's idea was a trip shrouded with gloomy prognostications. Now, doing their own thing their own way, MFM has turned a no-no into a booming success.

BELIEVING MORE in economist Joseph Schumpeter's observation that "innovation is the spark of industry" than in the skeptics and cynics, Denis Jester captured his spark on wood two years ago. He called it a "monk's chair." Then with Bill Bower and Michael Turner they formed MFM capitalizing the fledgling firm with $1,000 and a Sears Roebuck credit card. Jester was 26, Bower and Turner, 19.

In June, 1972, a disastrous fire attributed to arson totally destroyed the operation. Five months later the firm relocated at 68 Belvedere Street, San Rafael. The number of employees has jumped from three to 30 with the median age level at 22. Jester, now 28, is general manager; Bower, 21, production manager; Larry Davis, 25, sales and marketing manager; Michael Turner, 21, distribution and purchasing manager; Mat Callahan, 31, product developer; Gary Kozak, 18, shop foreman.

"In the beginning we could cash our paychecks on the bus," admits Denis Jester, general manager and co-founder of Monastery Furniture Manufactory. "But here there is expectation, a challenge, and it's creative. With a lot of hard work, drive, determination we can make it."

As sales mount more furniture is knocked out and knocked down — like sofas, coffee, lamp, end tables and ottomans — because the line has grown to 10 items. The idea for the unique product, according to Jester, "developed from a conceptual marketing standpoint" or, in layman's language, MFM is providing furniture for today's mobile generation.

THE UNITS ARE made of pine boards, stained dark walnut then bolted together. A natural canvas sling serves as the back and seat which is topped with two corduroy pillows. It can be bought finished or unfinished then stained or painted.

The 100 per cent cotton pillows are machine washable and dryable and come in a choice of six colors: green, rust, camel, blue, red and apricot. Besides the monk's chair, there is a 78-inch sofa, a two-seater called the "love monk," end tables, and a recently designed dining room set. The average cost to furnish a living room is under $200.

"Unassembled or knock-down, as it's called in the trade, isn't new," Jester explains. "Barbecue, children's toys, bikes, hundreds of products are packaged this way, but it was a new concept to use this method for interior furniture on a mass basis. Because it was unassembled we were able to eliminate upholstery and the added time and labor to assemble the furniture. It's these costs that push up the prices of furniture to the point where one wonders what the actual manufacturing cost of a $400 sofa really is."

"IN ANY CASE, for thousands of single, married and divorced in the under-30 age group it's more than they can afford.

"They can, however, afford Monastery because we manufacture a product that fills a gap in the market in terms of price.

"The challenge to us was to make it desirable, sturdy, functional: units that would appeal to the aesthetic taste and pocketbook of 25 per cent of the population on the move who are living in unsettled and uncommitted situations. It doesn't have ersatz upholstery that will wear out in six months. The corduroy pillows will hold up from five to six years and the frames, with care, will last a lifetime. The design is simple, basic and doesn't pretend to be something it isn't. It is in essence a true value. That's why we called it Monastery; it's a statement of truth.

"AND WE THINK it is what the young are looking for. Their interest in organic and health foods and ecological movements, and their disregard for the cut-from-the-mold look prove that.

"Since October, 1972, when we reopened here, our sales have increased from 10,000 to 60,000 a month and we have outlets in 10 western states. Our subsidiary firm, Monastery Pillow Works in Los Angeles, stuffs the pillows made here and serves as a distribution center.

"With these figures and progress we feel that we have sufficient documentation and experience to validate an even bigger program. So we are expanding to include Hawaii and Canada and set-up distribution centers in the Midwest and the East Coast."

Assured, confident, loquacious, Jester paid his way through two degrees, a bachelor's in industrial engineering and a master's in business administration, by earning money as a dance teacher, choreographer and guitarist with the Van-Dells, his five-piece band that played for three years at Zack's. Sandwiched in too, were jobs selling motorcycles, prescription drugs, TV sets and working in personnel.

BUT IT WAS a consumer behavior course at Golden Gate University that triggered his search for a new concept in furniture design.

"This really was no harebrain idea on my part," Jester continues. "Statistics and surveys have shown that a price gap does exist. We didn't guess; we knew.

"After five months of work and count-

IN HIS OFFICE in the Marin County Civic Center, County Administrator John F. Barrows is the essence of the dedicated civil servant. And he enjoys harmonious relations with the men who hired him and who set county policy — the members of the county board of supervisors. That was an advantage not enjoyed by his predecessors. The reason? "He relishes direction," says Supervisor Gary Giacomini.

PROFILE OF A MARINITE

County Administrator Prefers To Project A Low-Image Profile In His Position

By ERIK INGRAM

Two years after accepting the battle-torn office of Marin County administrator, John F. Barrows sits comfortably secure with the unanimous support of the five members of the board of supervisors.

It's a sense of security his two predecessors — who retained the position by holding a three-to-two vote majority — rarely, if ever, enjoyed.

The reasons are many fold, but basically they boil down to Barrows himself. He has walked a narrow, non-political line since becoming the county's chief administrator in 1971.

AS ONE SUPERVISOR put it, Barrows is balanced by honesty and competence.

"At first I didn't know how to react to John," Supervisor Gary Giacomini said the other day. "He seemed cold, detached, remote and unemotional.

"He still does, but it's the only way he can operate. Emotion will never affect his judgment on the job," the supervisor continued. "But away from the county he's a very personable guy."

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., meanwhile, said, "John is open and honest. Department heads feel they can talk with him and know he won't double-cross them later by changing his position. The openness was missing in the prior administration."

Other supervisors expressed similar opinions about the 43-year-old administrator, who took the job "under a cloud," following the forced resignation of former County Administrator Alan Bruce.

ACCORDING TO Barrows, the hail-storm of controversy that surrounded his quick appointment by three-to-two vote of supervisors evaporated when Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere was appointed to the seat left vacant by the death of John F. McInnis and when Giacomini won election to the seat formerly held by Louis H. (Bud) Baar.

Both Baar and McInnis voted against Barrows' promotion from assistant county administrator, not because they felt he wasn't qualified, but because they believed it usurped a board agreement for open recruitment.

Baar's objection was based on his general dislike and mistrust of the county administrator's office, Barrows believes.

McInnis, meanwhile, was concerned that the immediate appointment of a former aide to the controversial Bruce would carry with it "the taint of Alan Bruce."

McINNIS FELT the taint should be removed through the selection process," Barrows explained, adding, however, that "if it was ever there, it's not there now."

"The demands this board has placed on the county administrator's office since November have been tremendous," he added. "A great deal of confidence has been built up as a result."

He said his job, while demanding, has been made easier by a board of supervisors which has "a greater understanding" of his role and much interest and concern over the workings of county government.

The county administrator, who lives with his wife, Cynthia, and two daughters at 265 Crescent Road, San Anselmo, came to Marin in 1962 as Bruce's lone assistant.

HE WAS BORN and raised in Jamestown, N.Y., and attended Allegheny College in Meadville, Pa., where he received a bachelor of arts degree in political science after first concentrating on engineering — until chemistry proved his undoing.

He later earned his master's degree in public administration at Syracuse University in New York.

Following his stay at Syracuse University, Barrows entered the Navy, attended officer candidates school, and "never had a bad assignment in three years."

His travels took him throughout the Far East and West Indies and finally to Coronado, San Diego County, where he was attached to a beachmasters' unit as a lieutenant (j.g.).

"Kind of a recruiting officer's dream," he puts it.

IN 1957, HE JOINED the Washington, D.C., staff of Sen. Frederick Payne of Maine as a legislative assistant.

His duties for the senator centered around the Senate Banking and Currency Committee of which Payne was a member.

He left Payne's staff in 1958 shortly before the senator was unseated by Edmund Muskie. The next four years were spent as an administrative assistant with the City of San Diego, working first in the water department and later in the city manager's office.

In his 11 years with the Marin County administrator's office, nine of which were under the tutilege of Bruce, Barrows watched and was partly responsible for the office mushrooming from a budget and research arm of the board of supervisors to its position today — the strongest office in county government.

THE SHIFT IN office responsibilities began in 1965 when the Supervisors Peter H. Behr, Ernest N. Kettenhofen and Byron W. Leydecker "told us to take over the two-bit crap that was eating up the board's time," Barrows said.

From there, the office grew to become a "buffer" from the board, and subsequently was assigned such "politically sensitive" management responsibilities as overseeing auditorium-fairgrounds development and employee salary negotiations.

More recently, it was assigned responsibility for control of the new office to coordinate environmental studies, another politically hot issue.

Barrows office also serves as staff to the Local Agency Formation Commission — which recently hired a full-time aide, who will work under Barrows — and oversees the operation of a handful of other offices assigned to it prior to 1965.

DURING THE 1965 change, the board of supervisors also directed the administrator's office to review and prepare recommendations on new county services and policy.

Administrative recommendations reached their peak under Bruce, Barrows said, adding his office is currently reserving recommendations for major issues.

It's all part of what Barrows calls his "low profile image" or "following the lead of the board of supervisors."

"The board doesn't want to be upstaged by its chief staff officer," he said. "If I get too carried away with my position I'm treading in a dangerous area."

BARROWS WAS quick to point out, for instance, that this year's record budget was created and approved by the board. He had suggested ways of reducing it, he said.

Similarly, the board had requested the reorganization and consolidations of county departments that prompted controversy earlier this year, he said, adding however that he had long endorsed and encouraged the reorganization of the departments involved.

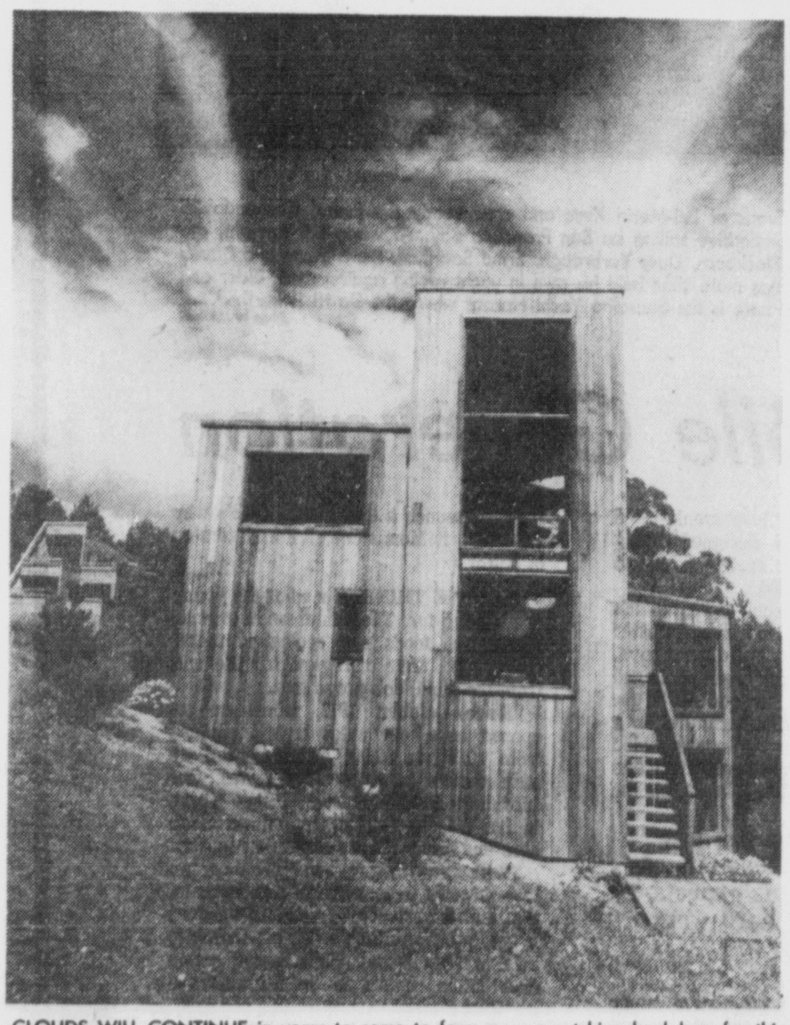

One reorganization, to consolidate health, welfare and probation, was approved. The other, to consolidate parks, planning and public works, was rejected.

"I don't abandon ideas that I think are good," he said. "I'm not going to push it, but maybe in a few years the parks, planning and public works reorganization will be more acceptable and someone will suggest it again. I'm in no hurry."

GIACOMINI VIEWS Barrows' philosophy as one of the main reasons for his success with the current board of supervisors.

He's constantly seeking the consensus of the board on major issues. He relishes direction," Giacomini said, adding that Barrows doesn't interject his own feelings or opinions into board decisions."

Architect Steve Wisenbaker Sees His Dream Houses Through To Reality

CLOUDS WILL CONTINUE in years to come to form an eye-catching backdrop for this new cedar-paneled home, built in the Mill Valley area's Muir Woods Park district by apprentice architect and dreamhouse builder Steve Wisenbaker. The Ridge Avenue structure will offer its owners such "extras" as bathrooms with planters and a garage with skylights.

By REBECCA LARSEN

Steve Wisenbaker has a knack for building dream houses.

His latest is a cedar-paneled cathedral in the Muir Woods Park area near Mill Valley which resembles El Capitan carved from wood.

Wisenbaker, a sun-tanned, 28-year-old apprentice architect with a San Francisco planning firm, lives next door in a vertical stack of wooden boxes he planned as a home for himself and his wife.

His newest creation, on Ridge Avenue, is almost twice as big as his own house and will sell for around $170,000.

Some young architects may be looking for upper middle class clients who outline exactly what they have in mind to an architect. But Wisenbaker likes building on speculation.

"I CHOOSE TO build a house and do it exactly the way I think it should be done," he said. "In some cases I think I can build a lot better without a client. Most people are hesitant to do something unusual which they can't visualize."

His latest house is a 3,000-square-foot maze of balconies and rooms shooting off in several directions.

He pointed out that the seemingly confusing room layout is actually tightly organized around a lofty central planting area where the home owner could grow a tree almost three stories high.

The house — the kind that millions dream about and only a handful ever live in — includes four bedrooms, two living rooms, a den, bathrooms with planters, skylights in the garage, a wine cellar, several decks and cathedral ceilings. It boasts an all-green view of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

Wisenbaker has degrees in architecture and architectural engineering from the University of Colorado and a master's degree in urban planning from the University of California at Los Angeles.

HIS FIRST JOB was as a planner at the snowbird ski area in Utah. He is now working for the San Francisco firm of Rockrise, Odermatt, Mountjoy, Amis as project manager for the South Rim village at Grand Canyon National Park.

He got into home designing almost as a hobby. He drew up his first house while a student at UCLA.

His next project? "I want to find the biggest possible lot in Tiburon where I can build a $250,000 house."

ARCHITECT STEVE WISENBAKER gazes out over the Golden Gate National Recreation Area from the window of the unusual home he designed and built in Muir Woods Park. Those who purchase the residence, however, may enjoy greenery outside as well as within. Behind the architect is a central planting area suitable for a tree up to three stories high, with rooms organized around it.

THE LATEST CREATION of Steve Wisenbaker's creativity includes a maze of balconies and rooms that shoot off in several directions, but which are all coordinated into 3,000 square feet of "dream house." The home will sell for around $170,000.

A Successful Racing Season

And Paul Saarman, a regular YRA crew member on the Do It! was absent, in Mexico.

The Coronado 25 is permitted a complement of from four to six on board, including skipper.

IT IS, YOUNG Evans says, largely a West Coast class, with the boats for the most part concentrated on the California and Pacific Northwest coasts.

The Yacht Racing Asociation series consists of nine races spaced out through the summer season.

The National Coronado 25 Association championship series is comprised of five races in three days, and alternates annually among three courses, one of these on San Francisco Bay. The length of the racing course for the class averages about nine miles.

With the hindsight of a veteran and expert, Dave Evans looks back with humor upon the initial racing endeavor of his family.

"WE RACED THE Coronado 25 the very first weekend we had her," he says. "It was an all-family crew — my dad, my mother, my sister and myself. And we thought we had won the race. But it turned out that, being unfamiliar with the course, we had circled the wrong buoy. They disqualified us, and moved us all the way back from first to last place."

Water conditions this year nullified the usual local racing programs at Bel-Marin

Keys, so that the Do It Again! has had little competitive action this summer.

"But we did trailer the 15 to Whiskey Town this year — the first time we had ever done that —, and finished fourth overall," says Dave.

YOUNG EVANS, WITH a medium build that bespeaks a wiry strength, and with an open face even younger than his 15 years, is by no means a one-interest youth. When the weather chills and yachting slackens, he is not lost for things to do.

There is, of course, his schoolwork. And he likes other sports. He swims. He plays basketball. And he particularly enjoys track — long distance running.

But, still, sailing is a major part of his young life. And he has some thoughts about the future.

"For one thing, I would like to see more Coronado 25s, and more people interested in them," he says.

IT'S A GOOD boat for the competitive-minded sailer, he says, "because we have a good-sized fleet of them in Northern California. That means plenty of competition. And that is where the fun in racing lies — in having enough good rivals out there on the water so that the race is a real challenge."

He adds: "My dad thinks the Coronado 25 is a very well-built performance boat, except, perhaps, for the spreaders which are a little too flimsy. But then you can find at least one weakness in every model of boat if you are really critical."

Ahead, Dave Evans has both long and short range aspirations.

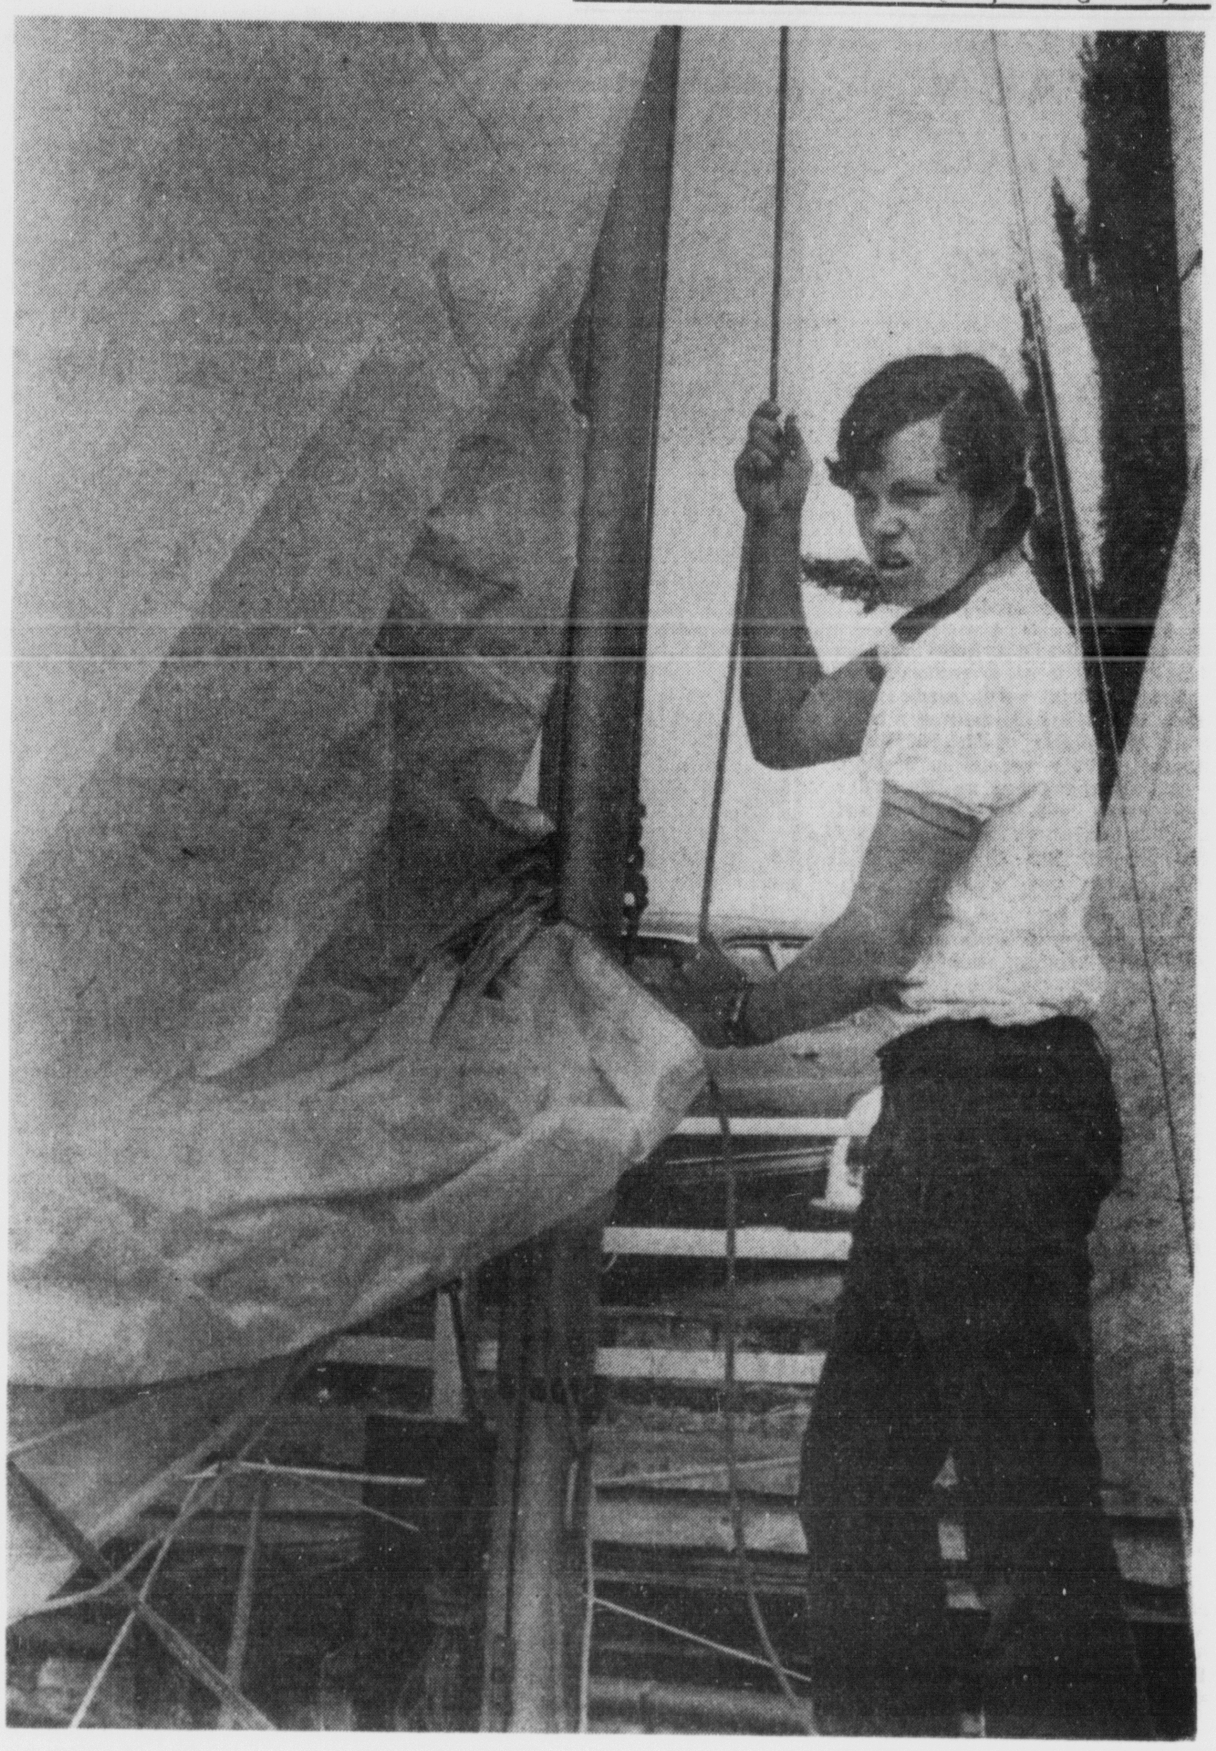

TO REALIZE THE latter, he plans to go to Tinsley Island next summer for the well-known sailing school there, to learn from some of the country's finest mariners further refinements in the sport of sailboat racing.

He eyes with admiration the big Columbia 50 acquired by neighbors and friends Paul and Iram Saarman. "I sure wouldn't mind having one of those.

And then, some day, he would like to find himself in command of an Olympic-class boat and representing Uncle Sam in the summer games.

"Of course," he smiles, and Dave Evans does not smile often when he talks sailing, a serious subject with that young man, "that is a sort of dream thing."

But for those with a special gift plus a willingness to work at it, and a competitive spirit, dreams do come true — such as a near national championship at the tender age of 15.

RAISING THE SAILS of the Do It!, a Coronado 25 class boat, is her young skipper, Dave Evans of Novato, who skippered his family's craft to second place finishes this season in both the National Coronado 25 Association U.S. championship series, and the Yacht Racing Association summer-long point totals on San Francisco Bay. Dave is a sophomore at Novato High School.

THE DO IT! GLIDES smoothly from her berth on the Sausalito waterfront out into San Francisco Bay. Here skipper and crew are relaxed. But that is only temporarily. Soon they will be involved in competition against the best available Coronado 25 craft, skippers and crews. But even against the very best, Dave Evans and crew enjoyed outstanding success this summer.

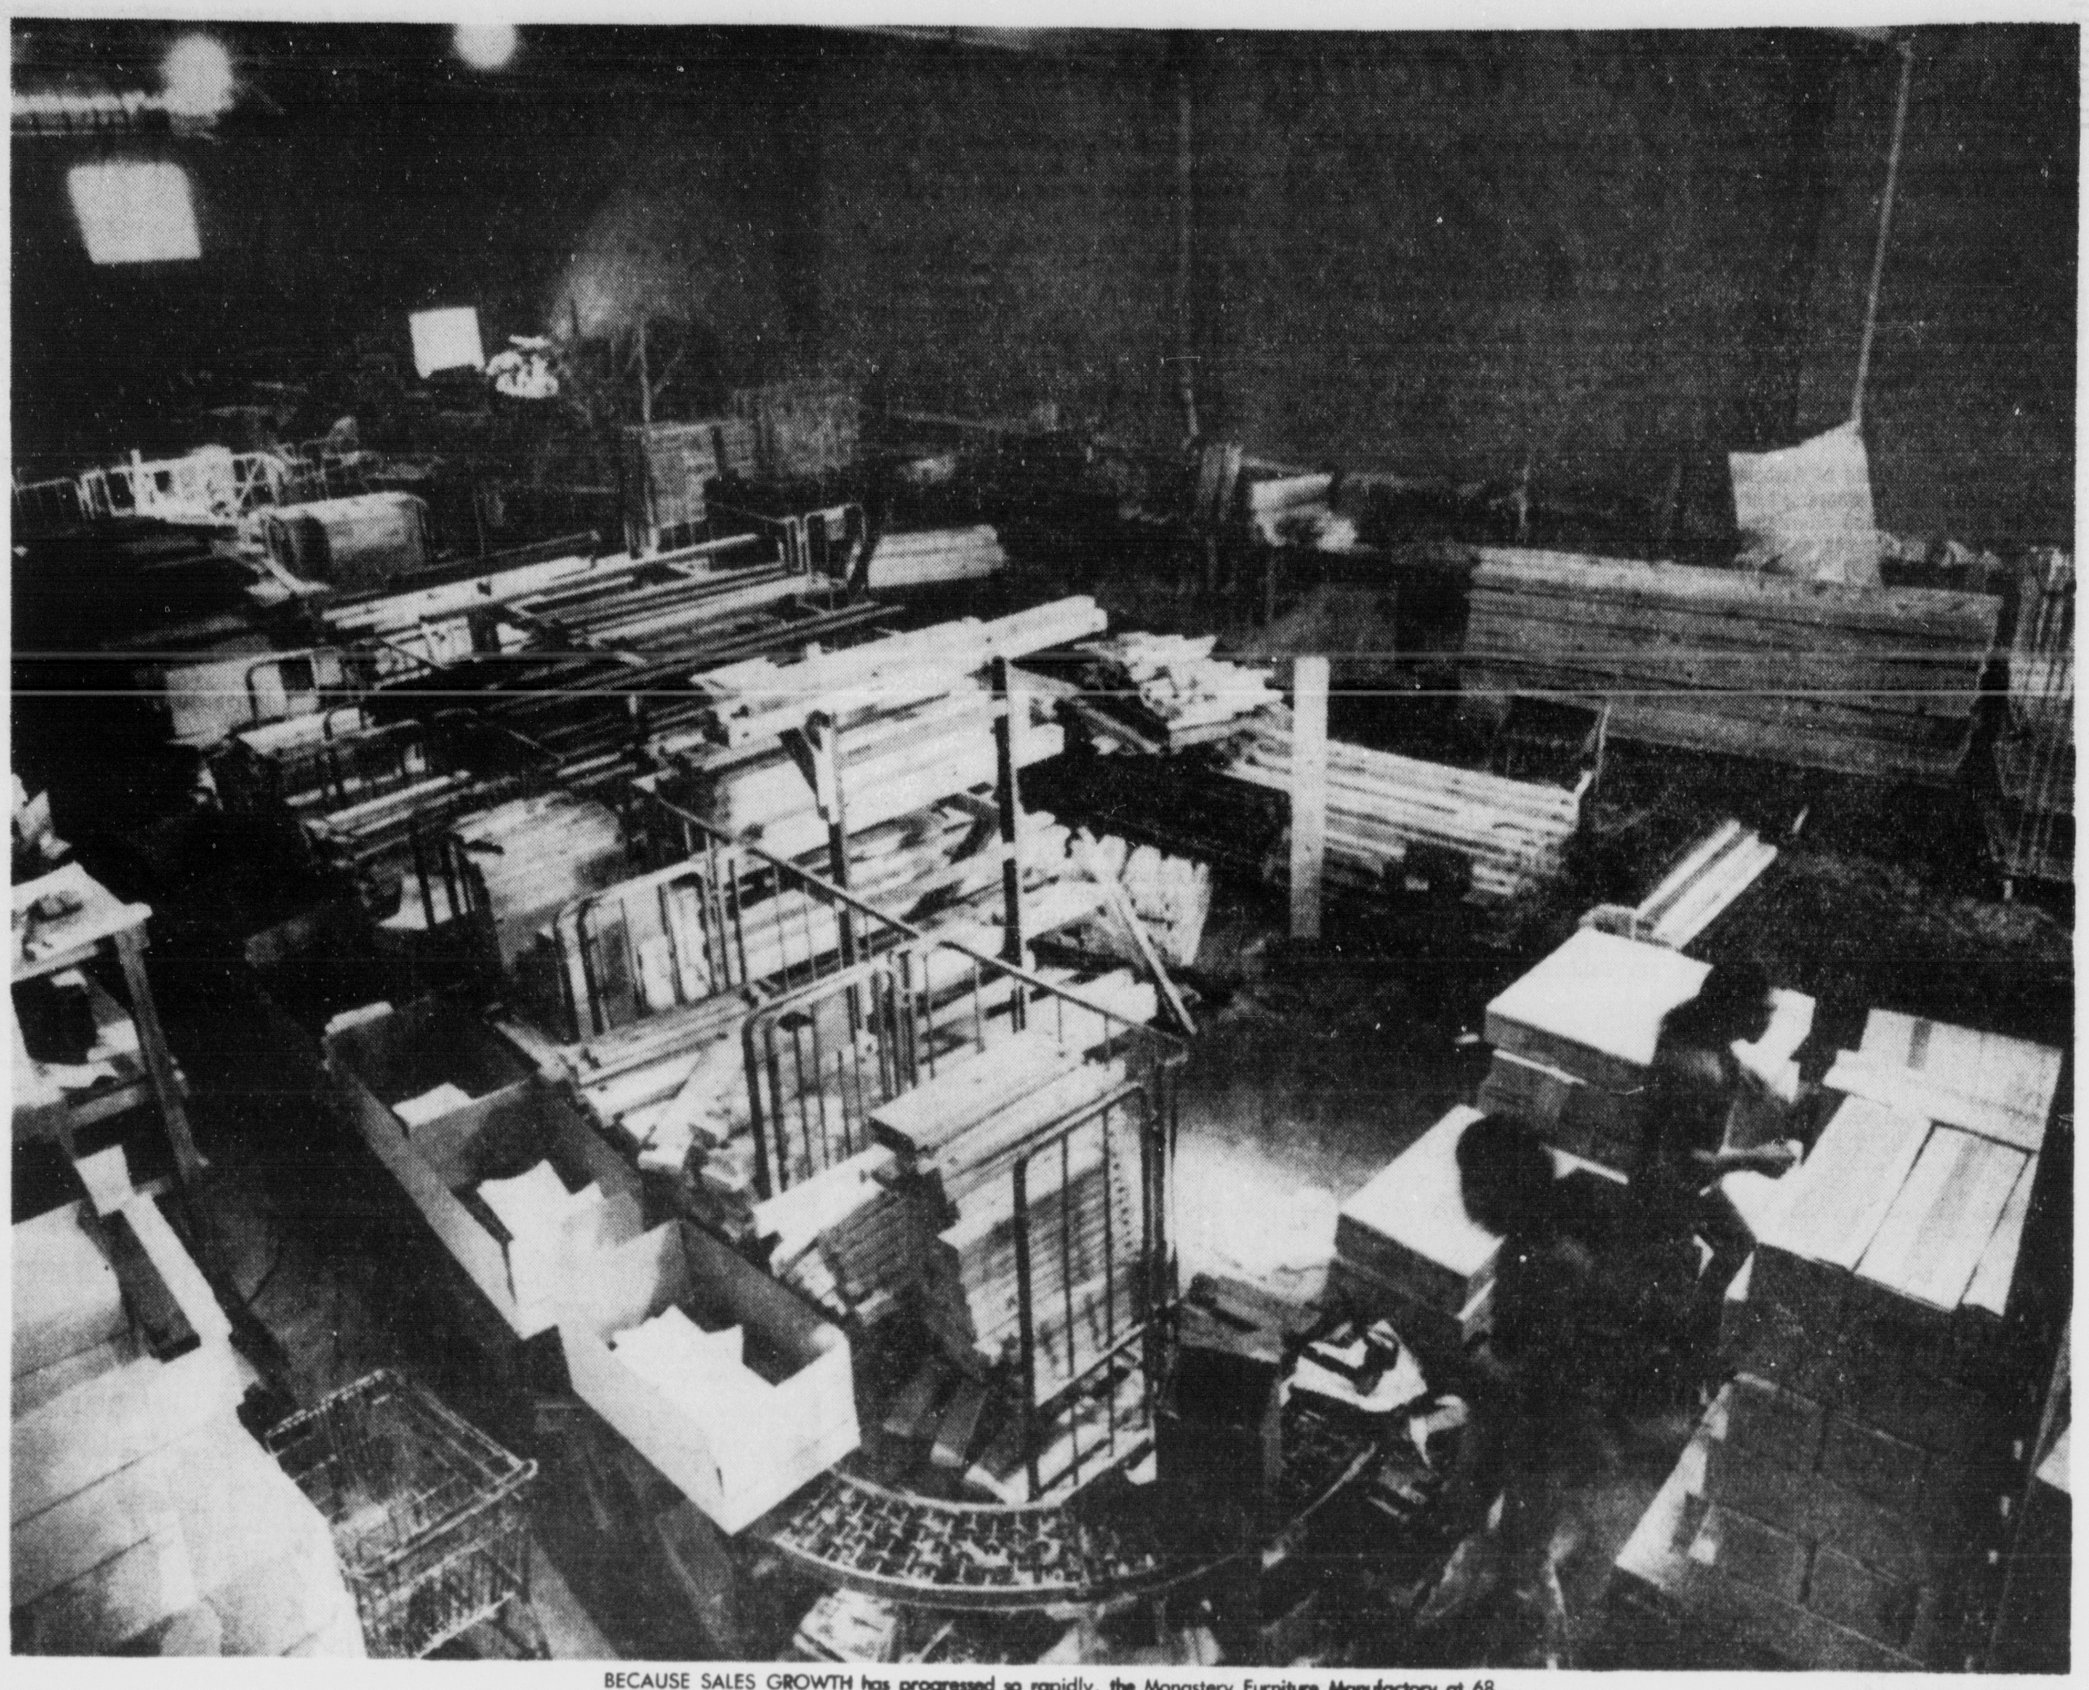

RIGGING THE SAILS of the Do It! with all the skill of veteran old salts are young yachtsmen Dave Yarbrough, left, and Dave Evans. Yarbrough regularly crews on the Coronado 25 class sailboat skippered by his friend Evans.

USING THE BOW RAIL, Dave Evans gives the Do It! a shove away from the pier at the Sausalito Yacht Harbor. All possible preparations have been made on board the boat for a day of racing competition on San Francisco Bay.

Furniture For Those Still On The Move

BECAUSE SALES GROWTH has progressed so rapidly, the Monastery Furniture Manufactory at 68 Belvedere Street, San Rafael, operates seven days and four nights a week, and it is already serving 10 western states, with plans to expand to Hawaii and Canada soon, and to set up distribution centers in the Midwest and East. And despite the busy schedule, an air of informality reigns. Michael Turner, left, distribution and purchasing manager, and Gary Kozak, plant foreman, keep things moving.

less designs, I felt I'd perfected the chair. Then I set out to get a reaction. Stores told me they didn't want to handle knock-down, that it was too much of a headache, that people wouldn't buy it. I thought otherwise because the furniture wasn't aimed at the affluent but for the young people who are into things and wouldn't balk at 'k-d' because the price and style were right.

"BUSINESS MEN of high repute discouraged me from manufacturing: no money, scarcities of raw materials, price rises, price controls, unions, countless problems that crop up every day and that change the picture overnight were some of their realistic reasons. Others who believed in the idea urged me to forget manufacturing and sell the idea off the drawing board.

"Another thought was to manufacture it and go after one giant account, Sears, for instance, and a fortune would be made. "We analyzed all the viewpoints and went ahead anyway. You see, we felt the chair justified production from a socially dynamic standpoint because of its price and the physical form of the product.

"So we set up shop in a barn in Santa Venetia. The wallboard siding had so many gaps in it that it was colder inside than out, and the closest head was at the corner gas station. It was the three of us against the odds. We didn't even have a phone; all the messages were directed to my house. We worked until 2 a.m. We did everything together including making the deliveries.

"I'D HAD PREVIOUS business experience but Bill and Michael hadn't. This was in fact their first full-time job and for them it was a tremendous challenge. They believed in MFM and they weren't about to let it go down the drain.

"We all learned through the school of hard knocks and we think we've paid our dues.

"We vetoed the idea of one giant account on the premise that should we lose it we would be sunk. Instead, we went after stores selling unfinished furniture. We knew that there were 75 stores in California. We also figured that if we got some of these accounts and later lost one or two that we wouldn't be too badly burned.

"By the time of the fire we were selling to eight, now we are in all of them. Clark's, in San Anselmo and the Nude Nook, San Rafael, were among our first customers."

LARRY DAVIS, ex-school teacher now sales manager, swivels over to report to Jester that another order just came through from the Fred Meyer chain in Oregon.

Davis picks up the marketing story: "We went into unfinished furniture stores where we could expand into other states, Oregon, for example, we learned that the number of unfinished furniture stores drops off drastically and that the realistic approach, in order to give the product proper exposure, was to look for other outlets. A very promising one has developed with the Fred Meyer chain, the 13th largest retailer in the country with 45 stores.

"I STUMBLED ON the first Fred Meyer store by accident.

"It was a gigantic one-stop shopping center and had a home improvement center. I discussed selling the product with the manager. He reacted very favorably but had to refer me to the buyer in the main office. The buyer promised to send an order within a week. Sensational! We waited five months for it to come through but by that time my credibility here was zilch.

"The chain is one of our biggest accounts and has grown tremendously since the first order. In general, our sales growth has progressed so rapidly that we've had to put a freeze on new accounts."

Is the great "American dream" stirring here?

"SURE," SAYS Jester, "I still believe in the 'American dream' and maybe it will come true for us. But we aren't sitting around waiting for it to happen; we're working seven days a week plus four nights. All of us put out. Michael and Bill work until 10 p.m. loading the trucks. Bill handles production and hires most of the shop employees. Michael handles distribution and does the purchasing. They work long hours for very little pay. They really are MFM's unsung heroes.

"A lot of ideas have blossomed into the 'American dream' but for those that do, there are countless numbers that die in the garage for lack of capital.

"Business is built with men, material and capital. We had the first two; getting the third was the biggest hassle of my life. The money is there and available but not on the terms you think. I guess I'd seen too many movies where a guy walks into a bank, sells his idea then leaves with bags of money and the banker's arm around his shoulder. It just doesn't work that way.

"AFTER THE FIRE we began four frustrating months trying to raise money. Despite the fact that we'd proven ourselves, that stores were buying our furniture and wanted more and that the Small Business Administration had received many unsolicited letters of confidence praising our furniture and our manner of doing business, we still did not qualify for a SBA loan.

"Instead they told us: 'It's been our policy for the last five years to lend primarily to minority groups.' Other loans go to business men who could easily use their money but don't because they can get it from the SBA. I don't blame either group. I'm just saying that's the way it is if you're in between.

After this sinks in they tell you: 'Go out and get a bank loan and we'll guarantee it up to 90 per cent.' Sounds easy? Try it. We were turned down everywhere.

"THESE ARE THE things that happen in our country that sicken you — but by the same token, only in America could we have made the strides we have in less than a year. One of our most stalwart supporters was and is Ed Cerar. Ed knew about us when we were in Santa Venetia and became interested in MFM. When the chips were down, he invested his money in the firm and convinced others to, and through his business connections was the liaison with the bank for our direly needed loan. He even acted as co-signer.

"Almost hours before Ed came on the scene, I was on the brink of abandoning MFM and was readying myself for job hunting. It was his timing and key relationships with banks, his experience, and credibility that gave us the thrust we needed to re-establish. Without his help I know we never would have gotten started again.

"Other friends and acquaintances believed in us and lent us money they didn't have. I mean, quite literally, they took out loans.

"SO IT WAS the sum of all these investments that enabled us to pay off our losses, rent another building and bring it up to stress standards. By that time we had $8,000 left. We could have declared bankruptcy but didn't."

Davis adds: "I joined the firm during the re-organization period. Denis wanted to meet my wife Sue and I because we had just bought a whole set of Monastery living room furniture. I was in the tub when he came but — so what — he marched in anyway. We hit it off immediately. When I told him I had quit teaching he offered me a sales job.

"No, I never had any previous sales experience. Just being a Jewish kid from New York is enough. That'll do it."

"We all took a chance by ignoring other jobs," Jester concludes. "In the beginning we could cash our paychecks on the bus. But here there is expectation, a challenge and it's creative. Wtih a lot of hard work, drive, determination we can make it. We're in business because we put together a sharp company and have a good product. Now the organization allows us to exist. The ramifications of doing business are staggering. We know we have responsibilities to the customer, the city, the banks, the government and we are meeting them.

"But we are still doing our thing and doing it our way."

"The challenge to us was to make our furniture desirable, sturdy, functional — units that would appeal to the aesthetic taste and pocketbook of the 25 per cent of the population on the move who are living in unsettled and uncommitted situations," says Monastery Furniture Manufactory's general manager.

because these were outlets where we could always meet the owner; we knew he would be important to us and we'd be important to him. Also, unlike big chain stores, it's the owner who does the buying; he knows us and if our product sells he's going to be excited about it and promote it. We've established fine relationships because of our service and attention to the customer's problems.

"However, when we reached the point

WHEN LARRY DAVIS was teaching school in Daly City, he and his wife bought Monastery Furniture Manufactory pieces for their living room "because the price, style and statement were right for us." Now Davis is the firm's sales manager. The grouping pictured here in Davis' Tiburon home includes the two-seater known as a "love monk," monk's chairs, lamp or end tables, and a 54-inch coffee table. Pillows are a royal blue. The dogs are Murray and Lisa, the Davises' springer spaniels.

THE FINISHED PRODUCTS at Monastery Furniture Manufactory in San Rafael are unassembled or knocked-down furniture units that condense into easily-handled packages, so that a complete living room set can be hauled in a Volkswagen. At the Belvedere Street plant, stacks mount as sales increase. Checking lumber supplies are Gary Kozak, 18-year-old plant foreman, while Denis Jester, center, general manager, and Larry Davis, right, sales manager, depart the premises on business errands.

DENIS JESTER AND Bill Bower, standing, and Michael Turner, far right, formed Monastery Furniture Manufactory in November, 1970, to produce Jester's monk's chair, capitalizing the firm with $1,000 and a Sears Roebuck credit card. Their goal: To fill the needs of the furniture-buying market that lives in unsettled, uncommitted situations. On the telephone is Larry Davis, now sales manager.

Taj Mahal Or White Elephant?

TRAVEL PAGE

By STEVE POPLACK

In terms of cost overrun and time delays, it is comparable to any blunder the Pentagon has made in defense weaponry.

In terms of design, it is magnificently unique.

It has been called "the other Taj Mahal." It is the most expensive opera house in the world. It is the Sydney Opera House in Sydney, Australia. It is due to officially open a week from today, with the royal blessing by Queen Elizabeth II to follow on Oct. 20. But if the average Australian looks a bit skeptical at this news, don't be surprised. It has been a long time coming.

THE DECISION TO build the opera house was announced 19 years ago by the New South Wales state premier, and an international competition was held to determine the design of the building. The winner, declared in 1957, was Joem Utzon of Denmark. The completion date was to be June, 1962, at a total cost of 10 million dollars.

However, things started going wrong immediately. The winning design, quite revolutionary and daring, was basically only a sketch, and there was no concrete evidence that the building could actually even be built. The cost estimate was unrealistically low, mainly to deter adverse public opinion.

It was soon found that Utzon's design needed much adjustment and costs began to spiral. From the original 10 million dollars in 1957, the costs had rocketed to over 34 million dollars by the original completion date of June, 1962. However, only the base of the Opera House had been completed by that time.

THE SHELL-LIKE roof was still under construction in 1966 when Utzon quit as architect and demanded that his name be removed from the bronze credit plaque. Differences between the architect and the new state government about design difficulties and costs (which in part led to the downfall of the previous government) caused the Dane to quit.

Over a six month period in 1968, due mainly to interior changes, the cost of the Opera House skyrocketed from 70 million dollars to 119 million! Redesign of the stage in the concert hall meant that millions of dollars worth of new, unused stage equipment had to be scrapped.

The latest estimate of total cost is now over 150 million dollars, and may be more by opening night, now scheduled for Sept. 29, an incredible 11 years behind schedule and over 20 times the original cost estimate (Financing has largely been done through special lotteries, where a $9 ticket buys a 100,000-to-one chance to win $280,000.

ALL THIS, AND there still are no parking facilities!

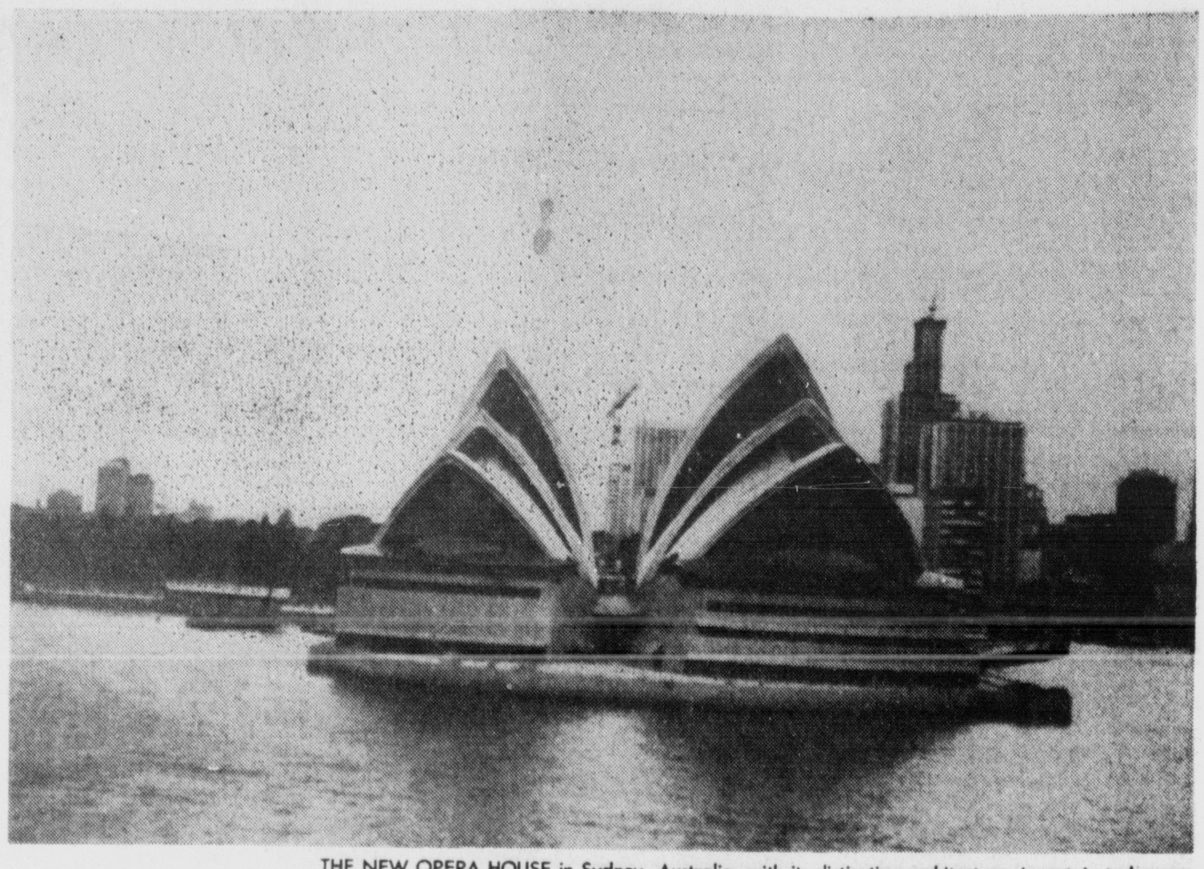

After years of debate, the final design will have a main hall used for concerts (2,750 seats), an opera hall (1,530 seats), and smaller halls for drama, chamber music, recitals and cinema.

On opening night, the Australian Opera will present Prokofiev's "War and Peace," while the concert hall will feature the Sydney Symphony Orchestra with Birgit Nilsson. Then, on Oct. 20, the fun really begins when Queen Elizabeth II will cut the ribbon, officially opening the entire Opera House complex, with two weeks of festivities to follow.

SOME AUSTRALIANS are convinced the Sydney Opera House is already a great white elephant. Some officials secretly fear the untested complex may turn into an unused, accoustically poor or logistically impractical albatross. The Opera House has been around so long that some Australians simply don't believe it ever will open.

But most view it with reserved pride and see it as a landmark that will rank with the likes of the Taj Mahal.

If you are planning to go to Sydney for the grand opening ceremonies and celebration scheduled at last word for Oct. 20, you had better double check before leaving. Just in case.

THE NEW OPERA HOUSE in Sydney, Australia, with its distinctive architecture, is certain to become one of the world's best-known man-made landmarks. But it was a long time in the making. The original completion date was June, 1962, but the structure will see its first use next Saturday, and will be officially dedicated Oct. 20.

For National Park Buff, Utah Is A State To See

There are 38 national parks in the United States — and five of them are in Utah.

That 13 per cent of this country's national parks should be located in one state might seem strange to all but those familiar with the towering mountains, multicolored canyons and vast salt and alkali deserts which make the "Beehive State" a haven of unusual geographical formations.

In fact, Utah abounds in areas which have been protected by the federal government for present and future generations of Americans.

There are six national monuments; two national recreation areas; seven national forests; and one national historical site in the state.

Established as a national park in 1919, Zion spreads over 230 square miles of southern Utah's desert and canyon country. Guarding the park entrance are two gigantic stone masses — West Temple and Watchman. The reddish-brown Watchman looms 2,713 feet above the canyon floor, while West Temple, the most prominent formation in the area, soars 7,795 feet.

Zion Canyon, feature attraction of the park, is a spectacular multicolored gorge. A half-mile deep, a half-mile wide, and eight miles in length, the canyon can be seen via escorted trips to the east or west rims or by a half-day horseback trip.

Yes, The Mill Is The One That Vallejo Built

Recent studies of old abstracts and deeds show that the old mill building at Jack London Village was originally started by the founder of Sonoma, Gen. Mariano G. Vallejo, as a mill to cut the lumber for the numerous projects that he was constructing at the time.

Asbury Creek tumbles down the steep sides of Sonoma Mountain and provided the water to turn the huge water wheel he constructed for power.

The building still has the hand hewn beams to hold the whipsaw that cut that lumber, and there is still one hand saw blade left from the original mill.

This sawmill is believed to go back to 1839 or 1840. The canyons abounded in redwoods which were cut into lumber at the mill. A circle of full grown redwoods now standing were once suckers around the parent tree that had a span of nine feet.

Joshua Chauvet bought the mill and 12 acres of land from General Vallejo in 1856 for $4,000 and added a flour mill to the activities. Chauvet had a wind driven flour mill in Oakland and moved his equipment to Mololumne Hill then from there to the mill in Glen Ellen.

Chauvet later imported a brandy still from France in the 1860s which ran for 96 years and produced from 10,000 to 60,000 gallons of brandy a year. Old sales slips show that it sold for $2 a gallon and the Glen Hills brand won prizes at state and national fairs for the fine quality.

The mill and winery were purchased in 1913 by the Felice Pagani family who held it until 1968 when the present owners, Charles Beardsley and David R. Fritschi Jr. bought the property. They have spent four years in active restoration and the reconstructed mill wheel turns again and lends the atmosphere of over one hundred years ago.

The owners added the name Jack London Village because Jack London came to the winery in the early days.

TOWERING redwoods and verdant foliage are part of the attractions of Jack London Village in Glen Ellen. For the history-minded, there is a sawmill that was started by the famed Gen. Mariano G. Alaska Pays Tribute To Dog Mushers And Their Colorful Role In History

Alaska has a host of unusual visitor attractions, but one of the most unusual is the "Dog Mushers' Hall of Fame" at Knik, according to Western Airlines' John Morris, regional director of marketing in Anchorage.

Knik is a small community across Knik Arm and some 50 miles from Anchorage via a highway through Wassila in the Matanuska Valley.

Located in restored Knik Hall, the display came into being during 1967 when the Wasilla Centennial Committee and the Iditarod Trail Knik Frontiers organization initiated the idea to perpetuate the historically rich saga of Alaska sled dog racing.

THE HALL OF FAME has been designed as a salute to that special breed of Alaskans and others who have gained fame in dog-mushing circles. Early day mushers in Alaska were the aristocrats of the unbroken trails and their many feats and accomplishments have been recorded on the aging pages of the Northland's past.

At the present time there are close to a score of mushers entered into the Hall of Fame along with others whose contributions added to the growing sport of sled dog racing, although they were not actually engaged in racing themselves.

Paintings of Hall of Famers were done by Evaline Rowsey, Knik artist. Joe and Violet Redington of Knik serve as caretakers for the hall during the "non-racing" time of year.

JOE IS ONE of the old breed of dog mushers himself. Each winter finds him out on the trail, whether it be racing or helping some younger mushers with their dogs. He is a walking encyclopedia on dog mushing facts and history of the famed Iditarod Trail.

Included in the Hall of Fame are such mushers as Ben Downing, famous sled dog driver who laid out the first mail trails from Dawson City in the Yukon to Alaska; and Gen. Willima "Billy" Mitchell, "father of the U.S. Air Force," and an enthusiastic sled dog mushing fan who was raised in Nome.

He became sold on sled dogs while using them for work connected with building the telegraph line across Alaska.

ALSO, JUDGE James Wickersham, famous Alaska judge and later delegate to the U.S. Congress from Alaska, who used dog teams in connection with his court work when he served as judge of the Third District; Dr. Joseph Herman Romig, author of "Dog Team Doctor," who used dog teams in the Bethel area and took care of patients in isolated areas in his district who otherwise would not have received medical assistance; M. R. "Muktuk" Marston, who traveled hundreds of miles by dog team when he was organizing the Alaska Territorial Guards prior to World War II, and other.

Listed among racing dog mushers who are honored are: Leonhard Seppala, one of the great dog mushers who gained fame for the delivery of serum to Nome during the epidemic: plus Scotty Allen, John "Iron Man" Johnson, John Hagness, Fay Delzene, Fox Maule Ramsey, Clyde "Slim" Williams, Raymond Paul, Emile St. Goddard, Mrs. Milton (Eva B.) Seeley and Percy Blatchford, and among later-day mushers, many times world champions Dr. Roland Lombard and George Attla.

ALONG WITH painted portraits of the mushers is a biographical history of each which makes interesting reading concerning the many feats they accomplished. There are also on display other interesting artifacts connected with early day dog racing and actual living in the Alaska bush.

Planned for the hall and soon to be placed on display is the "Canine Hall of Fame." Without the famed dogs of the trail, there would be no dog mushing.

A Little Bit Of France On A Caribbean Isle

By MURRAY J. BROWN

It's not true that when you've seen one Caribbean island you've seen them all.

There are differences.

Take Martinique. This exotic island in the sun is as French as it could possibly be while separated by more than 4,000 miles from its mother country on the European continent.

There's good reason. The French tricolor has flown over the island — which was discovered in 1502 by Columbus — since 1635, except for three brief periods when it was ruled by Britain.

FRENCH IS THE official language although English is spoken in tourist spots and the islanders converse mainly in a Creole patois. The famed haute cuisine of France shares honors with delectable island dishes and modern miniskirts are as common as the traditional ankle-length petticoated gowns.

Most of the islanders are descended from French settlers, African slaves and East Indians brought in as indenture servants by plantation owners when slavery was abolished in the 1840s.

Empress Josephine, wife of Napoleon 1, was born in Martinique and the women of the island still have a reputation for beauty.

I MADE MY first visit in about five years to Martinique during the maiden Caribbean cruise of the Norwegian America Line's superb new liner M-S Vistafjord with other American travel writers and guests.

A late starter in the tourist competition, Martinique is making gains. New hotels, resorts and other facilities have been constructed to accommodate the increasing flow of visitors by air and sea.

There now are more than 30 hotels, inns and guest houses of various categories which can accommodate about 2,000 overnight guests. They include the 140-room Martinique Hilton, the 99-room Bakoua Beach and smaller hotels such as Le Lido, Anse Mitan and Calalou.

MARTINIQUE IS the site also of two resort villages different in ambience from each other: the 90-room family-style Latitude Martinique and the Club Mediterranean's Buccaneer's Club for swingers which can accommodate 600 persons.

We stopped at Bakoua Beach for a cold drink it is reported to have the finest dining on the island and lunched at the Buccaneer's Club an excellent buffet with all the wine you can drink during a bus tour of the southern part of Martinique.

The tour also included a visit to the birthplace of Josephine at Trois-Islets across the bay from Fort-de-France. There's a ferry service. Only ruins of the de la Pagene family home remain but there is a small interesting museum which houses many mementos — including love letters, paintings, her childhood bed and a death mask of Napoleon.

LACK OF TIME — the women wanted to shop — ruled out a revisit to St. Pierre, the "Pompei of the New World," about 25 miles north of here. It was the thriving capital of the island until Sunday, May 8, 1902, when Mt. Pelee erupted without warning. The entire city was destroyed and about 30,000 persons killed in three minutes.

A new city has risen on the ruins of the old but there is a museum which displays remnants of the day of death and destruction.

The shops and boutiques in Fort-de-France offer wide selections of the finest perfumes, crystal, china, wines, and other luxury goods from France and other countires.

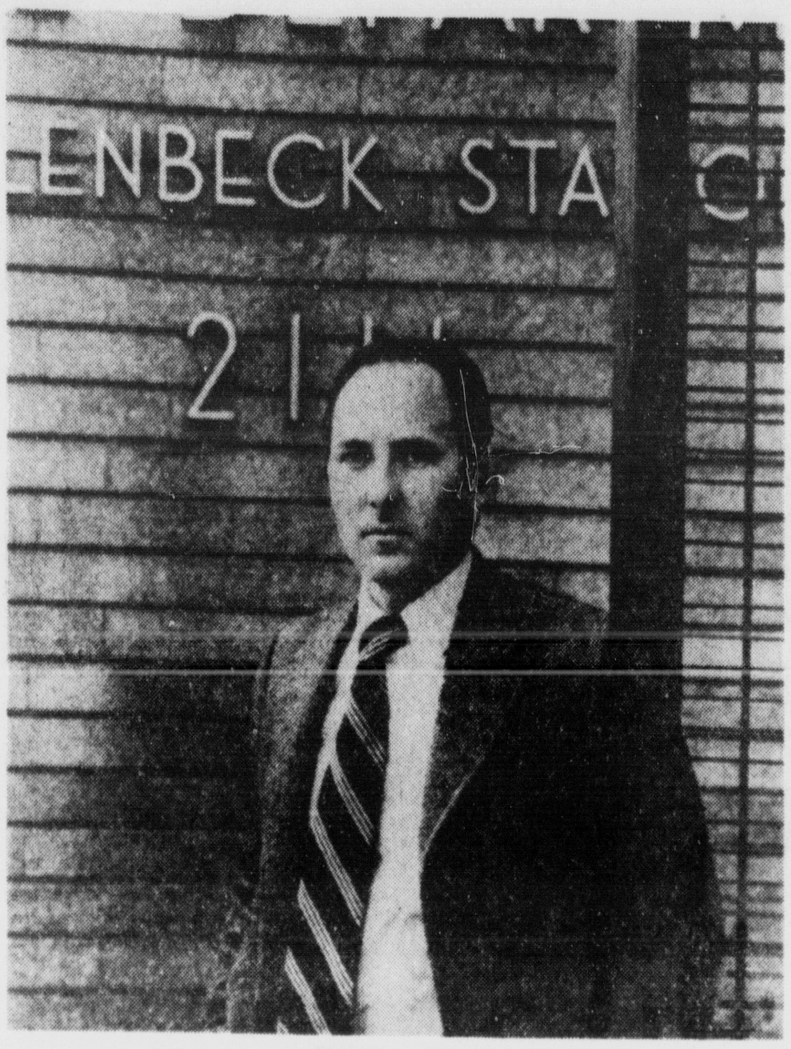

For native handicrafts, including multicolored embroidered tapestries, fancily-dressed dolls and other island specialties, try the Art Center on the waterfront.

JOSEPH WAMBAUGH
Compassion for most, honesty for all

The Deadful Night Of Karl Hettinger, And Its Aftermath

THE ONION FIELD by Joseph Wambaugh; Delacorte Press, 427 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Be forewarned: To read Joseph Wambaugh's "The Onion Field" is to subject one's emotions to the kind of churning that leaves the reader exhausted. And long after the book is set aside, the mind is tortured and haunted by the probing questions about our society that its pages raise.

The Los Angeles Police Department detective sergeant who burst upon the writing scene with the novel "The New Centurions" and followed it with "The Blue Knight" has turned to non-fiction for the first time, producing a penetrating study of a particularly horrifying murder and of the incredibly complicated legal struggle that ensued.

The book is compared by its publisher to Truman Capote's groundbreaking "In Cold Blood." And while Wambaugh may be some steps behind Capote as a literary stylist, he is several strides in front in his understanding of human nature, and of the police and criminal characters in particular. His personal experience as a law officer has been enhanced by extended and committed research into the case he has chosen as his subject.

Most important is Wambaugh's utter honesty in his treatment of the case and its principals. No personal bias, sentimentality, professional comraderie nor public persuasion is allowed to intrude or to interfere in the telling of the story.

The case about which Wambaugh writes so effectively and revealingly occurred in 1963. Two young ex-convicts, Gregory Ulas Powell and Jimmy Smith, in the midst of a hold-up spree, came face to face at the dead-end of a Los Angeles street with two young police officers, Ian Campbell and Karl Hettinger. The felons got the drop on the surprised policemen, disarmed them and kidnapped them.

A terrifying ride for the officers ended in the darkness of a lonely onion field near Bakersfield. Campbell and Hettinger had been promised they would be released there. Instead, Powell fired a bullet into Campbell's mouth, and then some one, Powell or Smith (which one was to be a subject of later bitter dispute), pumped four more bullets into the prone Campbell's heart.

Hettinger escaped death, fleeing across the field into the night. But he was never to escape the shock or impact of the horrors of that onion field.

Powell and Smith were soon captured separately. But the wheels of justice were to grind exceedingly slowly and erratically in their case. One long drawn-out trial ended in conviction and death sentences for both. But a California Supreme Court ruling voided that verdict and penalty, and the system had to begin all over again.

Judges, prosecutors, defense attorneys came and went, some of them broken in health or spirit by their ordeal. Powell and Smith, once companions in crime, became bitter enemis in court, each attempting to push the worst of the blame onto the other. The two men, it was clear, were classic examples of what legal psychiatry has come to term the "sociopath" — the man without a conscience.

Ultimately, both men were to escape the gas chamber. When finally the second round of their years-long "day in court" did end, Smith received a life-in-prison sentence. Powell was again ordered executed, but was spared by the federal and state supreme courts' voiding of the death penalty as imposed as cruel and unusual punishment.

It would be asking too much of Wambaugh to expect him to muster compassion for Powell, with his warped ego a creep of the first order, or even for Smith, the less aggressive (or more sly?) confederate. But he does accord them an honest depiction of their sordid, crippling backgrounds, and he lets their later actions speak for themselves.

For all of the others caught up in the whirlwind, Wambaugh does show compassion — for families, for lawyers (even the obstreperous defense attorney whose barrage of appeals was a major factor in prolonging the litigation), for judges, for friends, for the minor players in the drama of death, and for victim Campbell of course.

But Wambaugh's largest measure of sympathy and understanding goes to the unfortunate Hettinger whose whole life was changed by one dreadful night. Subjected to criticism by Los Angeles Police Department bureaucracy, which unreasonably held he and Campbell should not have surrendered their guns even at the point of the weapons aimed at them by the two psychotic criminals, the decent, likeable Hettinger developed a guilt complex over his friend's death. His personality shifted abruptly, and he turned to thievery, which, in turn, led to his disgrace and dismissal from the police force. Repeated summons to testify at the seemingly never-ending hearings and trials about memories his mind wanted desperately to forget pushed him to the brink of madness.

Fortunately, when the case finally did reach its conclusion, Hettinger was able to regain his self-control and make a new start with his family in a new profession.

But the unfeeling manner in which the police department itself contributed to the persecution of one of its own officers, an honorable man victim to terrible circumstances, poses one of the several prime questions that emerge from the pages of "The Onion Field."

Another, and a timely one, concerns capital punishment. Whereas the deterrence argument is often raised to justify the death penalty, ironically, Ian Campbell might have lived if it had not been in effect in 1963. It was, apparently, in the belief that in kidnapping Campbell and Hettinger he and Smith had left themselves subject to the gas chamber under California's "Little Lindbergh" law, that Powell decided to slay the policemen and leave no witnesses. It was an even more terrible irony that in actuality, Powell and Smith had not technically violated the Little Lindbergh law. But that was of no good to Campbell, his young widow or his children.

Those are only some of the many issues of importance raised by Wambaugh's penetrating and perceptive book. But again, begin your reading with the expectation of being drained emotionally and of being haunted mentally. "The Onion Field" deals with man at his worst, and sometimes at his best. And the questions that arise are not ones that can be taken lightly, dismissed easily or answered readily.

REBIRTH AND REVENGE OF THE PHOENICIANS

CITIES IN THE SAND by Aubrey Menen; Dial, 272 pages, $15. Reviewed by Patricia Latimer.

In "Cities of the Sand," Aubrey Menen attempts to write a combined history of the people and cities of the Mediterranean who contributed and influenced the founding of the Roman Empire. He concentrates not on Rome but the people and ancient desert cities of Leptis Magna, Palmyra and Timgad, cities which stood long after the fall of the Roman Empire.

Menen views the people of this area, both Arabs and Jews, as one historically united people.

He focuses particularly on the Canaanites, and alleged creators of the alphabet, who sailed and traded in Italy, Spain, Brittany, Arabia, Persia and India. For the Canaanites, their cities of Tyre and Sidon were perfectly located, mid-point between East and West.

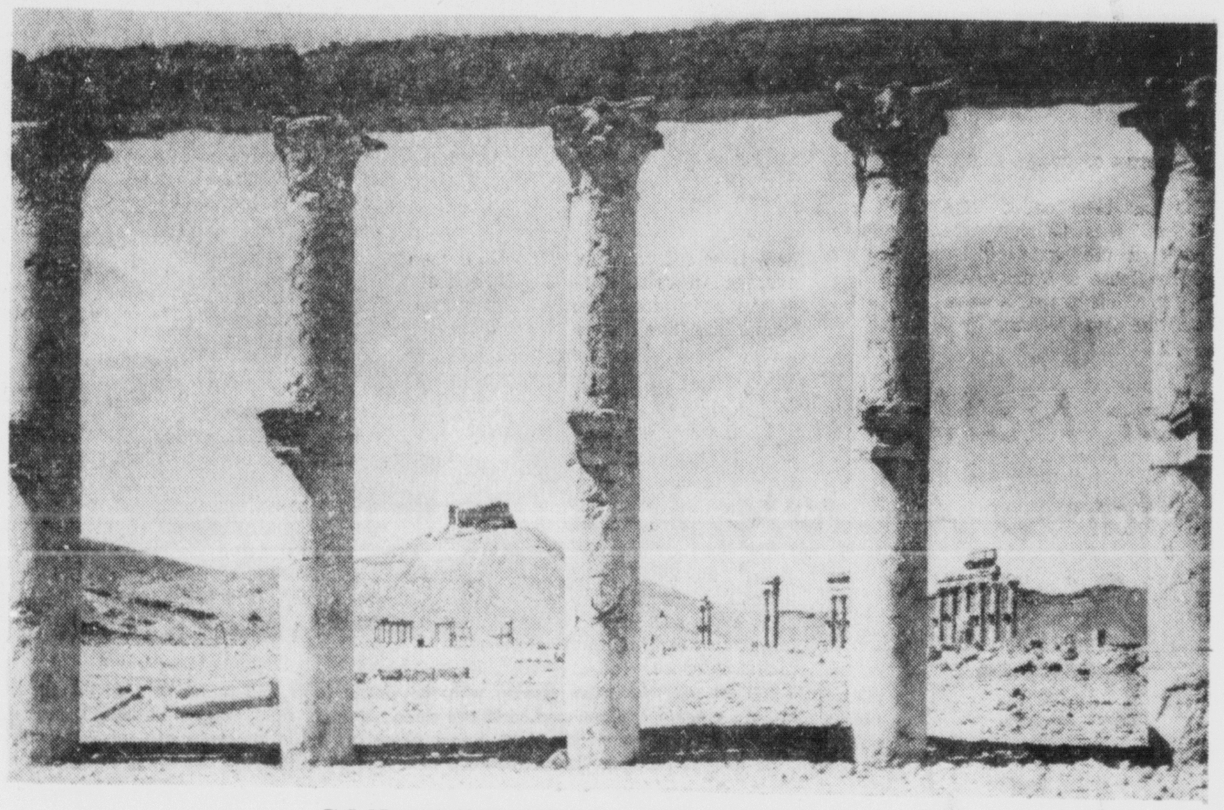

The Phoenicians, as they became to be known, were a peace-loving, non-aggressive nation. During the bellicose Time of Troubles they came to power through trade. Although war was not their way of life, but the conditions of the times, they eventually moved on to found new cities — Carthage in Africa, Gades in Spain and Tharros in Sardinia. There they built temples, basilicas, amphitheaters, forums and marketplaces.

During the Punic Wars Carthage and other cities were invaded by the Romans and burned to the ground. Not finally defeated, the Phoenicians rose again to build new cities.

Menen develops the theme of "Punic revenge" and rebirth of the Phoenicians through the characterization of notable personages of Phoenician descent who became rulers of Rome. One in particular is Septimus Severus, the boy from Leptis Magna.

In trying to make his point and support his thesis, Menen digresses and jumps into descriptive architectural analysis of Leptis Magna and other areas. He then interrupts his train of thought with brief histories of all the emperors who had a direct or indirect tie with Septimus Severus and Leptis Magna. The reading gets very involved.

The most appealing part of the book and the content which attracts the reader in the first place are the photographs and text on the ruins. Menen tells of Leptis Magna, Palmyra, Timgad and Petra. His investigation reveals facts about the art and architecture of the times.

The city of Timgad, known for its famous baths, for example, reflects a simple and very unimaginative town plan, "a rigid grid of streets within a square." The bold artistic sculptures found in Palmyra suggest a definite link and possibly roots for Byzantine and European art, reminiscent in the mosaics in Ravenna, Monreale and Rome. And the present ruins of Leptis Magna are, perhaps, the most complete city from the ancient world.

Menen writes, "It grew mightily, spread along the shores, like a river of stone. It was built of marble and sandstone and centuries have turned it into a city of amber."

While the author's original thesis was well-intended, his organization and information are confusing. The chapters are short and well-illustrated, but the book does not flow smoothly. Although it is sometimes difficult to tell exactly what subject Menen is addressing, the book is recommended as worthwhile reading with an unusual and often intriguing perspective.

BROWSING BOOKMAN

If Persian carpets are your thing, then "Supreme Persian Carpets" by M. K. Zephyr Amir is your book.

It's a blockbuster in size, printed on 10½-by-13-inch pages of high quality paper, and with colors so brilliant they dazzle the reader. Most of those rare illustrations are reproductions of beautifully patterned Oriental-made carpets.

The text, by the author of the earlier "A Concise Guide to Hand-Made Oriental Carpets" and member of a family of a long line of carpet merchants, offers a brief history of Persian carpets, plus expert information on determining their age, and on buying and caring for the carpets. There is specific attention to the characteristics of carpets of different regions, plus information on design, and on the marketing of the carpets.

The book, its author writes, is intended as an introduction, rather than as a definitive work. But the appeal of the illustrations is such that enthusiasts of these fine products already knowledgeable will nonetheless covet the book. It is a splendid gift item for the connoisseur as well as a better than adequate guide for the novice carpet-buyer.

The publisher, Charles E. Tuttle Co. of Rutland, Vt., has priced the gorgeous volume at $17.50.

THERE'S A considerable cult for the work of Georgette Heyer — in fact two cults. One for her mysteries. And another for her Regency romances.

For the latter group, E. P. Dutton and Co. has packaged three of the romances published them as "The Georgette Heyer Omnibus," price $8.95. The three novels are "Faro's Daughter," "The Corinthian" and "The Nonesuch." The trio come from the London's lady's early work, and her fans will be delighted at the opportunity to catch up on some Heyer stories they might have missed.

"The next best thing to reading Jane Austen," wrote one citic. And in a Heyer romance, on one thing you can depend: The good characters will win out, and virtue will triumph. Quite a contrast to today's cynicism — or realism.

What If All The Psychotics Were Free?

THE LAST INMATE by Thomas B. Allen; Charterhouse, 278 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by John D. Yates.

Patients apparently released prematurely from under-financed and overcrowded mental institutions or denied treatment have played a ghastly part in our recent wave of mass murders.

But what would happen if the Supreme Court ruled that a man committed to a mental institution against his will under any circumstance must be released? And what if that ruling triggered the release of tens of thousands of dangerously ill mental patients, uncured, onto the streets of the nation?

And then what would happen if a self-styled psychologist-preacher, well acquainted with the lunatic fringe, organized its members and the released inmates in a plot to seize power and throw the country into panic by threatening the life of a key senator?

In this novel, Frank Sisson is "The Last Inmate," a complex, tortured man, with a charismatic aura that makes him a natural leader of the terrified and terrifying. These refugees from the mental institutions are equipped to cope with a government seemingly as insane, in its own impersonal way, as they are.

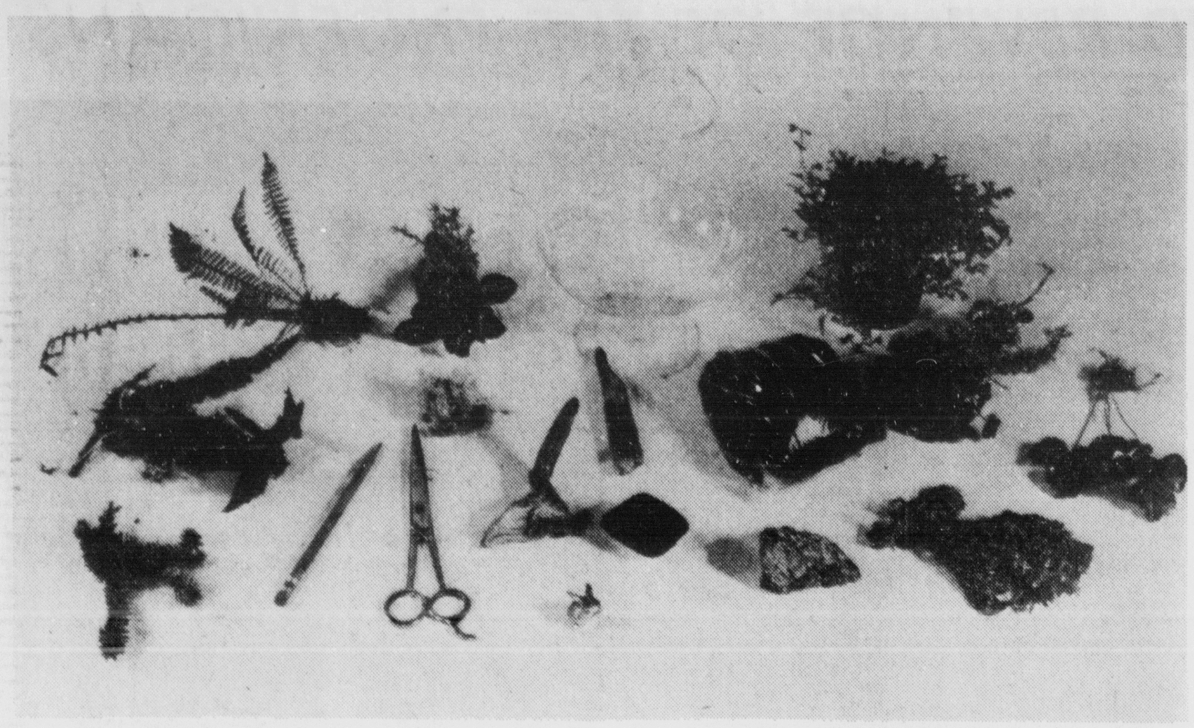

But Sisson, himself, is controlled and protected by Dr. Benjamin Mot, executive director of the Committee for the Advancement of the Individual, who sees in Sisson and the other newly released but still psychotic patients a force that can take him to the top in the country's government.

In his way are a small-town lawyer and an idealistic woman psychiatrist, torn between concern for and responsibility to Sisson, their client, and the knowledge that if he remains at large he can throw the nation into chaos.

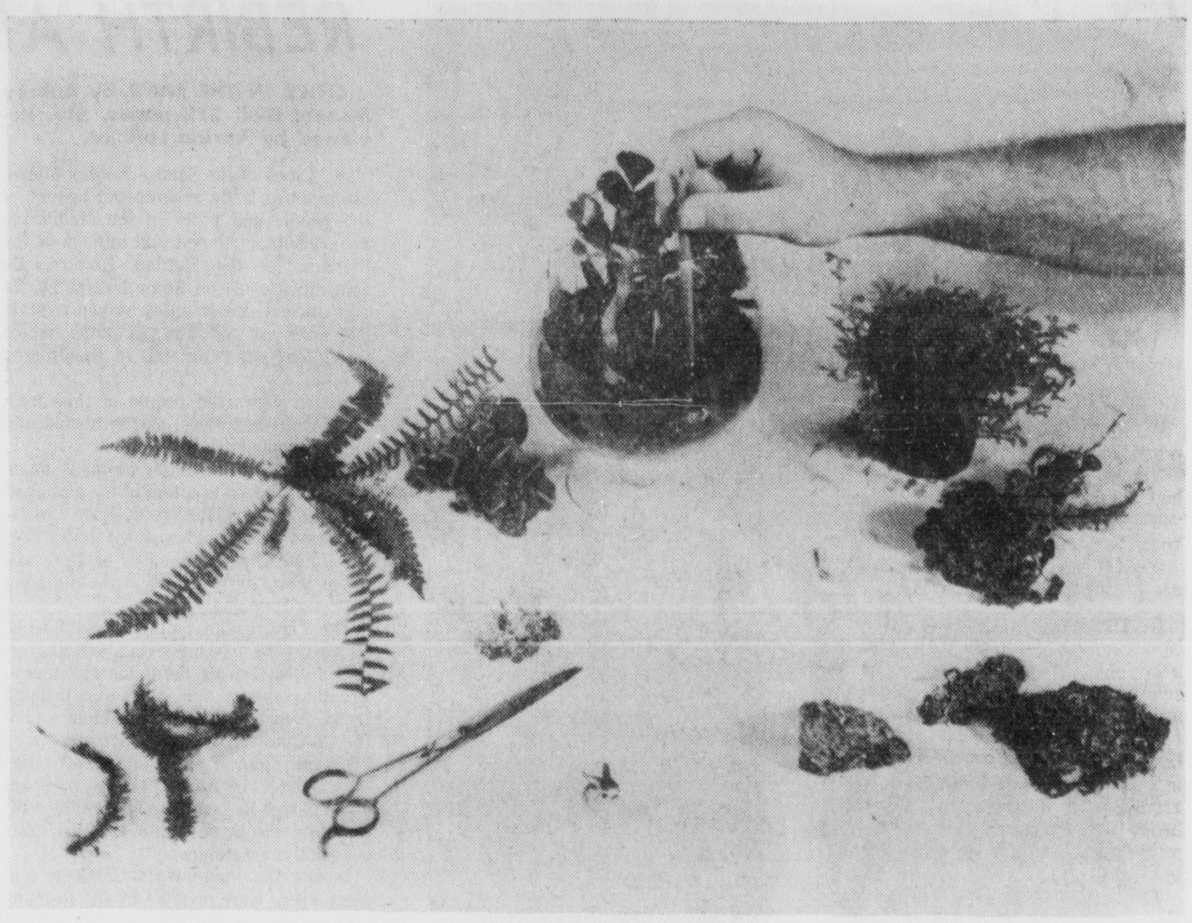

"The Last Inmate" is a gripping adventure novel that asks timely and very disquieting questions about the rights of the mentally ill as well as society as a whole, and about the paranoia of men in or aspiring to power. How topical can the author get, when we are now faced with mass murders and with the paranoia of some high in government?

GARDEN PAGE

By MILLICENT TAYLOR

Terrarium gardening is going over big these days.

Perhaps its popularity explosion is because so many of you who still love gardening have moved into apartments or condominiums. Or perhaps you just wish to display or raise plants in your heated homes or offices under controlled, carefree conditions.

In any case there is a splurge of terraria of all sizes and kinds on the market, and plenty of proffered help in planting them.

What is a terrarium?

Any see-through container with a cover that will conserve moisture and humidity, seal plants from drafts and abrupt temperature changes but still admit light.

AN UNUSED FISH aquarium with a sheet of glass or Plexiglas for cover makes a good terrarium. Old-fashioned candy or apothecary jars are fine. The Victorian brandy snifter has reformed to become the well-known partridge berry bowl.

Several mail-order nursery catalogs offer crystallite "greenhouses" and plastic "astral domes" for table display. A firm in Florida offers cube-shaped acrylic containers in eight sizes on bases in 11 different colors, complete with soil, sand, pebbles, charcoal and seeds.

Gift shops, florist shops, nurseries and department stores feature terrarium kits.

YOU CAN DISPLAY your favorite African violets, orchids, or other house plants. You can make attractive little gardens of small plants like a collection of peperomias or cacti, or you can plant seeds and with the children watch them grow.

Some offices display a flowering plant in an astral dome on the receptionist's desk, changing it for another when its blooms are spent.

Most gardens under glass need only a well lighted windowsill or table location. If you are raising plants that need more light than you have you can add a one-tube or two-tube fixture of fluorescent light.

GOOD-LOOKING STANDS for table terraria to locate in some other part of the room are available.

A woodland garden terrarium can be planted with materials collected outdoors if one is where wildings are nearby and can be taken. It is important, though to make sure this is allowable. Many wild plants are protected because they are considered rare.

For most of us, especially apartment dwellers, planting kits are the answer.

SEEDS OF HOUSE plants can be secured locally, as can sand, charcoal, soil and pebbles. Terrarium kits, however, make planting easier, for they include just what one needs and in the right amounts.

While you should encounter no difficulty finding kits close to home, I am listing some mail order names and addresses:

Cube-shaped acrylic terraria on colored bases from International Arts and Crafts (Box 3115 AMF, Miami, Fla., 33159) come with soil, sand pebbles and seeds. A catalog sheet (T-7-73) gives sizes and details.

ASSORTED TERRARIUM plants, dwarf, slow-growing, can be secured from Geo. W. Park Seed Co (Greenwood, S.C., 29646) where a variety of terraria may also be had.

Decorative terrariums, including a hanging one, are available from W. Atlee Burpee (Philadelphia, Clinton, Ia., and Riverside, Calif.) which also has a planter kit of foliage plants, shells, and collections of peperomias and other terrarium plants. All kits give planting instructions.

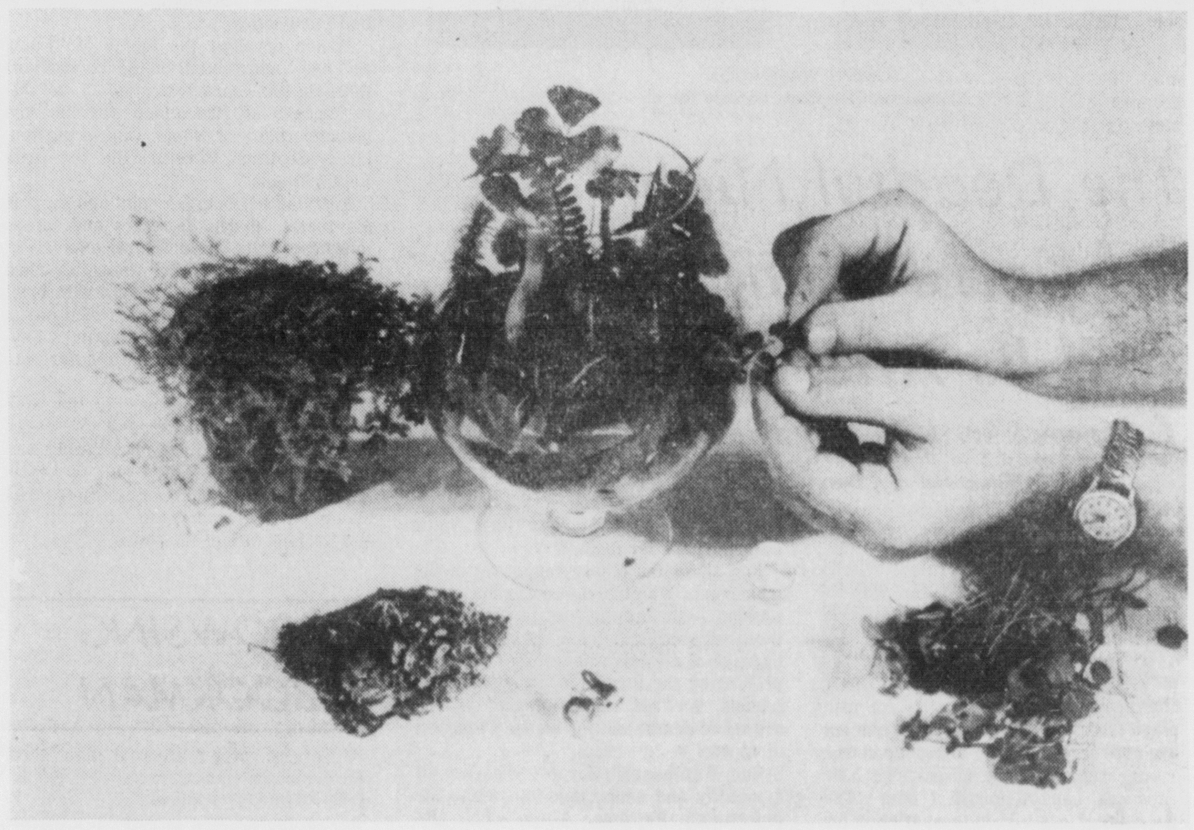

My first contact with planting glass bowls was a spate of planting partridge berry bowls to give to friends for Christmas presents. (This, by the way, makes a wonderful garden club fund-raising project.)

THE SPECIALIST I discovered for this and for packaged woodland materials, cactus plants, dish garden bonsai, and terrarium supplies, was Arthur Eames Allgrove (North Wilmington, Mass., 01887). In addition to many styles and sizes of terrariums and bowls (including bottle gardens) he provides a variety of kits and plants, some of the latter quite rare.

Incidentally, your garden club can get valuable help from Allgrove in terrarium, bonsai and dish garden do-it-yourself workshop projects, as well as in slide-rental programs on terrarium planting and on wildflower gardening. For this and for all kinds of related information, lists of plants, kits, and other supplies he publishes twice a year a pamphlet he calls a "register," sent free on request.

His 15th register is the current one.

FOR EXAMPLE, HIS tropical terrarium plant kit includes the following plants with instructions: a miniature peperomia, a fern, a Neanthe Bella palm and a Japanese boxwood, plus feather rock, white gravel and soil.

Whether you settle for a partridge berry bowl for the dining room table, a decorative astral bowl for displaying flowering or foliage plants, or an "indoor greenhouse" in which you can raise plants and grow seeds, you can have a lot of fun and fresh interest coming up with terrarium gardening.

TWO RECENT BOOKS I have found fascinating, and a 1970 volume I have enjoyed might be added to your home or garden club library.

"Fun with Terrarium Gardening," by Virginia and George A. Elbert (Crown, $5.95) is full of good photographs and firsthand advice and includes a useful source-of-supply section.

"The Terrarium Book," by Charles Evand and Roberta Pliner (Random House, $3.95) is illustrated with drawings and diagrams, gives useful lists of plants for various types of terrarium plantings and plenty of other information. Both are also available in paperback.

"Gardens in Glass Containers," by Robert C. B. Baur (Hearthstone, $6.95) is equally useful and practical, with sketches, diagrams, and photographs, some in color.

When You Plant New Bulbs, Don't Overlook These Twins

Californians into bulbs wouldn't dream of letting the season go by without planting a substantial quantity of daffodils, tulips and hyacinths — nor would they overlook the chance to plant smaller bulbs, such as Dutch iris, sparaxis, freesias, grape hyancinths and the like.

Bulbs are faithful sources of garden color, and the popular duo of anemones and ranunculus is no exception — they never fail to awaken the garden in spring with plenteous color.

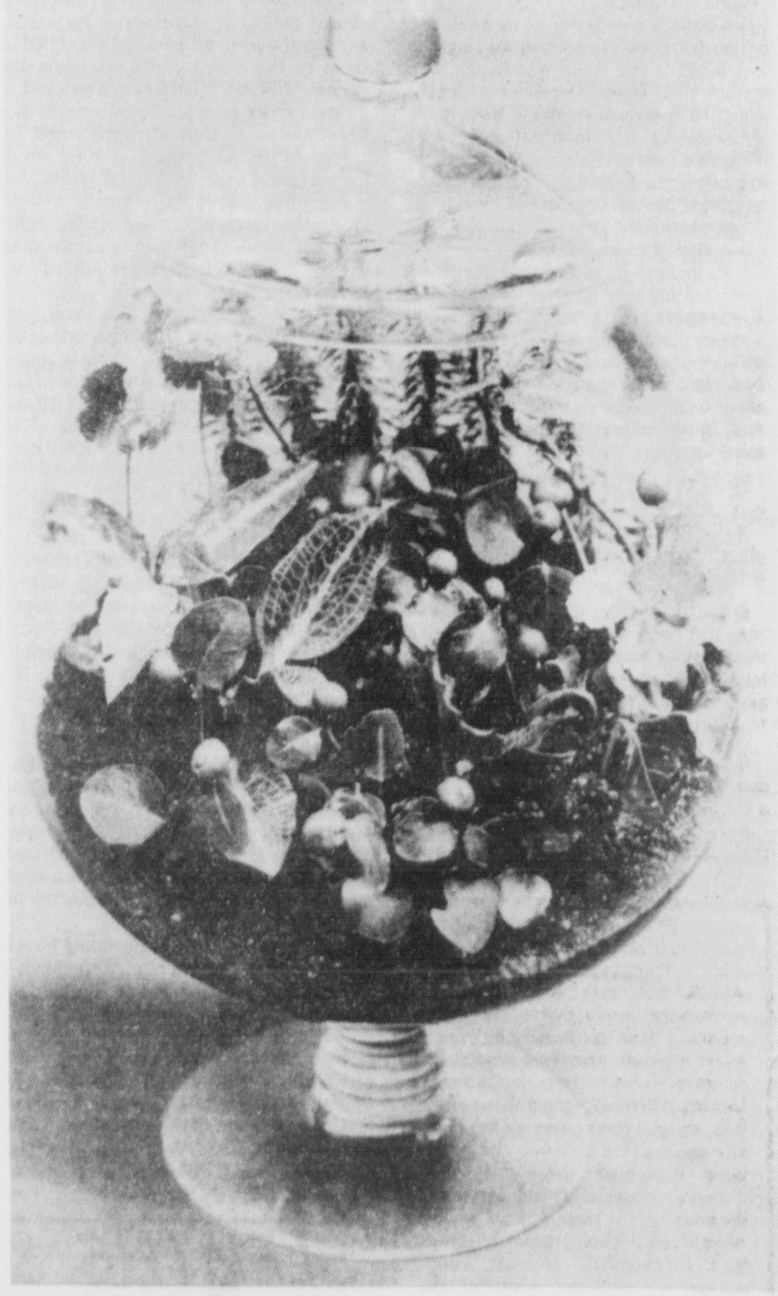

Known through the centuries, the anemone is the lily-of-the-field in the Bible, described as "more beautifully arranged than Solomon in all his glory." Today's anemone, whose flowers are among the loveliest harbingers of spring, produce poppy-like blooms in red, white, and blue combinations, in different varieties.

Nurseries have bulbs available for planting now.

Anemones are effective for accenting rock gardens, growing in pots, or combining in borders with annuals and other spring-blooming-bulbs — including ranunculus. Anemones and ranunculus are a scintillating sight when massed together.

The ranunculus resembles a meadow buttercup, but comes in double or ruffled forms. Nurseries offer mixed selections and separate colors of bulbs. You can depend on gorgeous spring blooms in cream, yellow, gold, orange, white, pink and rose.

A CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

✔For winter color, set out plants of pansies, violas, Iceland poppies, stocks, snapdragons and calendulas — available in nursery flats.

✔Tuberous begonias, fuchsias and container-grown geraniums will appreciate a feeding this month. If in doubt as to what plant food to use, consult your nurseryman.

✔Lift and store gladiolus when the foliage tops have faded to yellow or turned brown.

✔Winter vegetables produce better if they get an early start. Broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage and cauliflower are but a few cool season vegetables to set out now.

✔Four bulb flowers that reward you, beautifully, for planting them early are freesias, sparaxis, ixias and Dutch iris — truly a free-flowering foursome.

✔It is the time of the year to repair drainage spots in the garden that have given you trouble in past winters. You don't want the washing to reoccur.

Resilient Floors Offer The Look Of Wood At A Saving

By CAROLYN MURRAY

If inflation continues, it may hit you where you least expect it — underfoot.

Not in your shoe leather, but in the building materials that ordinarily cushion your footsteps in, out and about the house.

Wood floors are a great value. But they are costing a bit more these days.

IN THE LAST year the price of most No. 1 common-grade oak flooring has just about doubled. And the better grades, such as select red oak and clear red oak, are priced higher.

Again, the value is there; and, for lifetime use, wood may be worth investing in. But if you're a family that moves around a bit (five to seven years to a house is the American average), then you might want to explore some alternatives to wood flooring.

The living room shown today gives all the warmth of wood and the elegant qualities of it, yet it is actually made of sheet vinyl.

IT'S A SOPHISTICATED product, made by Armstrong, and is available because of some new manufacturing methods used in the industry. This type of vinyl is made by a system the company calls "the first cousin to rotogravure printing."

A photograph is made of the actual wood floor, then transferred in a special way to this so-called rotovinyl flooring. Later, a layer of clear vinyl is added to protect the design and permit easy maintenance.

Photographic techniques have been used before, but somehow the designs were wanting —too frankly imitative. But with the upgraded machinery and naturally handsome original parquet floors, the newer process is bound to be more adaptable.

LUMBER IS SCARCE and expensive, but you needn't give up its warm look for your floors. Realistic looking vinyl flooring such as this Armstrong product called Roanoke Parquet is very hard to tell from the real thing.

THE PRICE differential?

Well, the original parquet floor would cost from $990 to $1,080 for a 12 feet by 15 feet space. The Armstrong version, called Roanoke Parquet, would cost $95 to $100, plus installation.

Not a bad investment.

There's another classic motif being reproduced by this rotovinyl process. It simulates the random-width plank flooring of colonial America and Canada — right down to the round peg fasteners originally found in those hand-hewn floors.

The price contrast again: the original wood floor is about $315 to $360; the copy in rotovinyl, called Peg 'n' Plank, is $85 to $90, plus installation.

Given Ingenuity, There's New Life In Old Lamp Bases, Birdcage Stands

By MARILYN HOFFMAN

If you cherish that golden moment when junk — or trash — is transformed into treasure, check out the sea of old floor lamp bases and elderly birdcage stands that flows from second-hand stores, country auctions and garage sales.

From this motley assortment can emerge such interesting "evolvements" as music and plant stands, dictionary props, fern holders and cookbook supports for the kitchen counter.

THESE BASES and stands may look like rusty old pieces of nothing. They are frequently found out in the backyards of junk shops, looking forlorn and as if they might momentarily be carted off to their final resting place.

Don't despair. Inspect carefully.

The weighted bases are often of fashionably "dated" design. Some are pure Art Deco; others are sprightly Victorian. A tatty bridge lamp exudes a feeling of the 1920s or '30s. It's just waiting to be dusted off and exhibited anew.

AT JUNKYARDS or thrift stores you now have to pay from $5 upward for such discarded treasures. A few years back, they ranged from $1 to $3 in price.

But then inflation has hit everything, including tired lamps.

A hacksaw is the necessary tool for cutting through metal uprights and bringing the bases down to appropriate height. When rust is involved, a gottle of rust remover from the hardware store, some steel wool and a little elbow grease does wonders.

IF YOU WANT to continue with the wrought-iron look, rub in oil to discourage further rusting. If you want to paint the base to match your room's color scheme, delete the oil treatment, and brush or spray on the paint.

Often, the brass, bronze, or wrought-iron finish of such pieces is in such good condition that they can be used "as-is."

That was the case with the old birdcage stand, shown above in sketch B, which, now that the bird has flown, dangles a lush, cascading fern. Next to it is a foreshortened lamp base, fitted with plant platform (sketch C) for the fern that decorates a corner.

TO CONVERT a lamp base to a music stand (sketch F), dictionary stand (sketch A) or cookbook holder (sketch E), saw off stem at the required height and equipt with a wooden wedge.

Ann Matthews says she uses a five-inch-long piece of two-inch-by-four-inch plank. She slices it off with a saw to the most comfortable slant for her dictionary, cookbook, and sheet music. She then drills a hole in the bottom of the wedge so it will slip securely over the lamp's metal pipe (see sketch D).

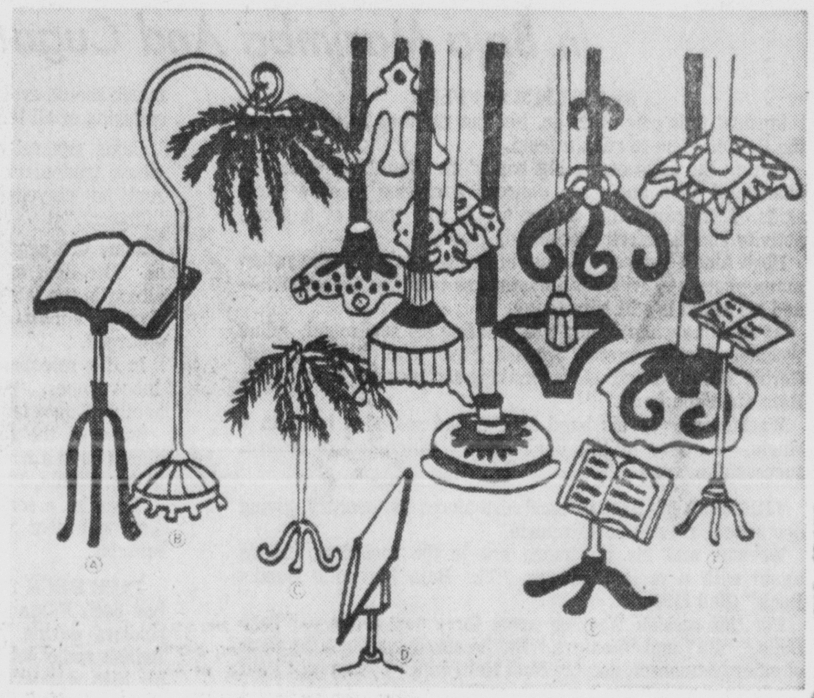

For each purpose, she buys at the lumber yard a piece of one half-inch or three-quarters-inch plywood, the right size to support the books or the pages of the music.

SHE ALSO PURCHASES pieces of molding to paste along the bottom edge of each plywood back support so the books and music will have a resting ledge. Glue (using Elmer's Glue, or a similar variety) the book support to the slanted wedge that has been fitted on the pipe. Paint the entire thing.

And there you have a new household appurtenance — unusual, ingenious, useful. And cheap, too.

And while you are in this timely "recycling" frame of mind, take a look around your own house. While it is true we all keep useless things around too long, it is also true that we all discard things that still have utility. In your attic or garage are likely to be not only old lamp bases, but also other things that can be converted and given a new life. After all, it is from just such places as your own collection points that the junkman obtained the pieces for which you now pay your good money.

Gypsum Board Is Still Old Reliable

By ANDY LANG

Because it is relatively inexpensive (nothing is REALLY inexpensive these days) and fire-resistant, gypsum board is the most widely used wall material in new houses.

Sometimes referred to as plasterboard or wallboard, gypsum board has a core of pulverized rock, hydrated pulp and a chemical binder or, roughly, gypsum plaster. Covering both sides of this core are paper coverings with a tough consistency. These coverings once were white only so that they could be painted or wallpapered.

WHITE IS STILL the best seller, but other and more costly coverings can be obtained in simulated wood, striated effects and various other decorative finishes.

Gypsum board is sold much like hardboard and plywood — in widths of four feet and in several thicknesses. Square, beveled and tapered edges are among the available types.

Gypsum board is cut by scoring the face side with a sharp knife, pulled along a straight edge. The knife should be pressed firmly enough so that it cuts through the paper and partly into the core. Place the board on a table or sawhorse so that the scored part is face up and right on the edge. Snap it downward, which breaks the core completely through. Now, using the knife again, cut the paper on the other side and the two pieces will separate.

BOTH EDGES have to be sanded smooth, using a piece of sandpaper wrapped around a wooden block or any sanding tool with a firm base.

Gypsum board takes paint well, but if you intend to put wallpaper on it, first apply a coat of primer-sealer. This is a precautionary step, should you ever wish to remove the wallpaper at some later time. Without the primer-sealer, stripping off the wallpaper will tear the gypsum board covering.

After a period of years, depending on how much the studs contract, some of the nails used to attach the boards to the framework may pop out a little. This situation can be remedied by driving back the nails a little below the surface with a nailset, then putting in new nails close to them, also setting them below the surface.

THE NAIL HOLES are then filled with patching plaster and smoothed out.

You also can use patching plaster in gypsum board walls when the damaged areas are small. When there is a large defect, it may be necessary to replace a section of the board.

In attaching anything to a gypsum board wall, it usually is advisable to nail or screw right through the wall into the studding, especially if the article to be hung is heavy. In some cases, you may be able to use toggle bolts or screw anchors.

Thirty-five household problems are discussed in Andy Lang's helpful handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which may be obtained by sending $1 to Andy Lang at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J., 07666).

HERE'S YOUR ANSWER

By ANDY LANG

Q. — I recently bought a small boat that came without an anchor. I understand I can make one out of concrete. Since I have some concrete materials on hand, I would like to make an anchor. Can you tell me how to go about it?

A. — Merely fill a bucket or can with a concrete mixture and set a large eye bolt in the center of it. After the concrete hardens, attach the necessary rope to the eye bolt. The trick is to make this crude anchor heavy enough to hold your boat, yet not so heavy that it is awkward to handle.

Q. — What is the main advantage of using stain rather than paint on exterior cedar shingle walls?

A. — While stain may fade over the years where the sun shines on it, there will be no blistering and peeling, making it easy to re-stain.

Q. — I bought an orbital sander but am puzzled as to how to attach the sandpaper. Can you help me?

A. — I'm afraid not. There are many different ways to attach the paper to an orbital sander, depending on the brand of the sander. If you bought a new one, go back to the dealer and get an instruction booklet that should have come with the sander. If you bought it secondhand, go to a store that sells several different brands and see if you can find one that matches yours. Ask the dealer to tell you how the sandpaper is attached.

Q. — The flashing around one of the vent pipes on our roof is firmly in place, but the cement around it has crumbled. How can it be repaired?

A. — Remove the loose pieces without disturbing the cement that is still solidly in place. Apply new cement liberally so that it not only covers the damaged area but extends part way up the vent.

Q. — I intend to put in an outdoor electrical outlet. Any advice?

A. — I assume you know what you are doing, since there is no space to tell you all the details necessary to the proper installation of an outdoor electrical outlet. Three bits of advice are offered, however, 1. Be sure you turn off the electricity before you begin work. 2. Make sure you use weatherproof outlets. And 3, which really should be 1 — better make certain you are complying with local electrical codes.

Q. — For the first time, I used shellac recently. I applied it with a brush. Later, in doing a second piece of unfinished furniture, I discovered that it could be put on with a cloth. I thought your readers would like to know.

A. — Yes, shellac can be applied with a cloth. The user must be 100 per cent certain that there is no lint on the cloth, otherwise he will get a messy finish.

STRETCH OUT YOUR STORAGE SPACE

AS YOUR worldly goods accumulate, if seems your living space shrinks. And this is especially true of closets, as your wardrobes increase. The good-looking piece of furniture being shown by even better-looking actress Karen Houston at right is one means of maximizing your clothing storage. And the home handyman can build it himself. Send $1 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal pattern department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Trousers Rack Pattern 460. Ellingson calls it "a one-evening project," working from the full-size pattern. You simply trace the pattern parts onto wood, saw them out and assemble. The rack shown is made of birch, but other plywoods can be used. The mobile rack will hold 11 or more pairs of trousers, ladies slacks or skirts, keeping them wrinkle free. It fits under coats and sports jackets in the closet — space that ordinarily goes unused. Mounted on casters, it moves easily. And you'll also find it a handy place to keep your favorite neckties. Other Ellingson patterns: No. 251, shoe bar, $1; No. 148, silent valet, 50 cents. Include your zip code number to expedite delivery.

Marin Homeowner's Notebook

TERMITES INVADING MARIN HOMES NOW.

Every homeowner in Marin County should be on the alert this month for a cloud of winged ant-like insects anywhere around his home. Don't assume that they are ants. It may be a swarm of termites!

In the early spring and fall, all three types of termites found in Marin send out swarms of flying "kings" and "queens" to start new nests. Swarming is heavy and noticeable on a sunny day following rain, but continues to some degree from late February through late October.

Termite colonies send out swarms only after they've been established for three years or more. The flying reproductives can go only a short distance, seldom more than 100 feet unless helped by winds. So if you see a cloud of swarmers or their discarded wings, there's a termite nest nearby.

The swarmers can act as an early-warning system for you. The nest is still fairly small when the first swarms are sent out. If you detect an early swarm, therefore, you've avoided the worst damage. Later, the nests grow to 250,000 termites or more.

The three types of termites in Marin have somewhat different habits for nesting and swarming. But all three types have infested homes in every part of Marin. And contrary to popular belief, they can infest both new and old homes. So every Marin homeowner should be alert this month.

If you see a swarm or discarded wings, call Hinkley & Gordon for a complete Structural Pest Control Inspection. The cost of a Hinkley & Gordon inspection, the most thorough in Marin County, costs just $50 for the average home.

This inspection isn't just a gimmick to sell you a "termite job." It's the best way to avoid one.

South Of The Border Rhythms Live On In Baja Marimba And Cugat Records

By WILLIAM LAFFLER

Musical fads come and go, but the rhythms from South of the Border seem to stick around.

During the days of the big bands' the rhumba produced a change of pace and gave dancers a chance to show their skills. Then came the conga, which was more of a group activity and therefore exceedingly popular.

Herb Alpert revived interest in Latin-flavored music not so many years ago with his imaginative band arrangements — and his sound is still here today.

At the time when Alpert was creating his new sound, Julius Wechter — who wrote "Spanish Flea" and "Brasilla" for Herb's Tijuana Band — was making soothing ripples with his Baja Marimba band.

Wechter started his band in 1965 and scored a hit with a single, "Coming in the Back Door," which led to several successful albums.

THE BAJA MARIMBA band also toured the country, giving eye appeal at each performance.

Wechter and his musicians are in the recording groove again with a melodic album, "The Baja Marimba Band's Back" (Bell 1124).

For this session Wechter wrote three new songs — "Taco Belle," "Pa" and "Ventura." But he also delved into the work of other composers, notably Neal Hefti with "Tomatoes," Paul McCartney with "My Love," Paul Williams with "Just An Old Fashioned Love Song" and old-timers Jimmy Van Heusen and Johnny Burke with "Here's That Rainy Day."

JUST THE MENTIONING of the theme of Latin-American music should evoke the name of Xavier Cugat, one of the most enduring of all the band leaders.

Cugie generally is remembered as the suave Latin type whose trademarks were a small dog and a beautiful woman. And he played a fiddle, especially when the song was "Siboney."

Some of Cugat's most notable performances may be heard on "The Beat of the Big Bands" (Harmony KH 32264). This album is the latest addition to Columbia's low-budget recreation in simulated stereo of music recorded before hi-fi emerged.

Some of the tunes are bona fide Latin American, while others have a northern flavor, such as "Night Must Fall" and "Play, Fiddle, Play."

If you're a sentimentalist, you should enjoy this album. It also will give you an excuse to limber up your rhumba muscles.

TAPE DECK Britian's greatest exponent of the Latin sound has been Edmundo Ros, who won the affection of American soldiers during World War II when he was heard on the British radio networks. Like Mantovani, Ros has maintained his high standards for more than three decades. On "This is My World" (London SP 44189), an Ampex tape release, Ros mixes Latin tunes with such diverse music as "Russian Lullaby" and "Arrivederci Roma," so it's an international event.

Since the Dolby system of noise reduction is used, this tape is the finest sound that can be heard on present equipment.

The Voice Of Melchior Is Heard Again

By WILBUR LANDREY

Lauritz Melchior died earlier this year at the age of 83, the greatest heldentenor of his time, perhaps of all time and, some say, the unique male voice after Caruso.

Melchior was the Wagnerian hero at the Met from 1926 until 1950, when he ran afoul of Ruldolph Bing and departed for Hollywood movies and a renewed concert and recording career.

Between 1926 and 1935 he made a series of recordings in London, Berlin and Vienna which have just been reissued, in a two-record album under Angel's budget Seraphim label (1B-6086).

These are, of course, mono recordings, but in most, the sound is fairly good.

Melchior was near the peak of his powers in these years. The golden voice, the passion and intensity are all there in selections from Die Walkurie, Siegfried, Gotterdammerung, Rienzi, Tannhauser, Tristand und Isolde and Lohengrin.

For good measure there are also non-Wagnerian selections — from Meyerbeer's L'Africaine, Verdi's Otello and Leoncavallo's I Pagliacci.

LAURITZ MELCHIOR
Grestest of his time

BERNARD HAITINK has recorded the Brahms Symphonies 3 and 4 with the Concertgebouw Orchestra of Amsterdam and now adds No. 1 to those released in this country by Philips (6500 519). Presumably No. 2 is to complete the series later.

The memory of Beethoven's middle symphonies breathes through Brahms' first symphony. Here was the most powerful symphony since the death of the great master.

The Brahms symphonies are among the most familiar pieces in the standard repertory. Haitink and the Concertgebouw give an impeccable performance.

THE BALLET "Chopiniara", also known as "Les Sylphides," came about when Michel Fokine (1880-1942) took a score of Chopin's piano pieces orchestrated by Alexander Glazunov and created a ballet around it.

The familiar Chopin pieces in their ballet setting are played by the Bolshoi Theater Orchestra under Algis Zuraitis (Angel-Melodiya SR-40231).

TWO GUITAR records:

Sergio and Eduardo Abreu play, in first recordings, concertos by Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco and Enrique Garcia Asensio (Columbia M-32231). The Brazilian brother guitar duo is very fine. The concertos on sides one and two contrast sharply. Castelnuovo-Tedesco's is lyrical and could be the background music for a movie romance, Asensio's is experimental, with each of its four movements built on a tonerow of chord clusters.

"Clare de Lune", a selection of romantic guitar pieces by Debussy, Ravel, Falla, Albeniz and Villa-Lobos played by Brazilian guitarist Laurindo Almeida (Angel S-36064)

RECOMMENDED: Schubert's four sonatas for violin and piano played by Arthur Grumiaux and Robert Veyron-Lacroix (Philips 6500 341).

Haydn's Cello Concertos in C and D played by Christine Walevska with the English Chamber Orchestra under Edo de Waart (Philips 6500 381).

Record Sales Still Climbing

A 10 per cent rise in manufacturers' sales of phonograph records and prerecorded tapes in 1972 over 1971 has been announced by the Recording Industry Association of America.

Combined record and tape sales, at list price value, amounted to $1,924,000,000 in 1972, up from $1,744,000,000 in 1971.

MARIN POET'S CORNER

TASTE OF AUTUMN

How fast the moon comes round to full again
Searching the sky in the Fall of the year,
Quivering the lake like wind-rippled grain
And shivering a warning that Winter is near.
I taste a storm that blows from Rubicon peaks
Where wrinkles in last year's cover of snow
Made permanent furrows of unmelted streaks,
For a squadron of geese notching sun's afterglow,
Ground squirrels scurry to provisioned nest
And bears enter caves for sleep without dread
Of hunter's gun, or trap steel-set to molest.

Summer is over, and there is much to remember:
Long lazy days, and the books we intended to read,
The unpainted picture, the half-written poems. . .
Now, crickets are strumming the songs of September!

CALIFIA THE MAGNIFICENT

Whose raiment robes befit a Queen
Coloured as azure skies so adornly dyed,
Bearing feathered Indian crown as
The Queen of Tribes
So descent from Incan familied Machu Picchu
And Mayan pyrmidic Chicen Itza,
Sits enthroned high atop Tamalpa.

Before her feet in homage offering
Indios tribal men lay clam shells,
Silver bait and ground spear-heads
Tokened reverence of her Queenly cause. . . .

ENGLAND'S DIANA RIGG takes New York by storm in her new situation comedy series on NBC Television.

MONDAY, 8:30 P.M., CHANNELS 3 and 4

TUNING IN ON TELEVISION

By JACK GAVER

Bobby Van and wife, Elaine Joyce, will work together as a team for the first time in a one-hour comedy-variety program to be aired Nov. 15 on the CBS network. Recently, both starred at the same time in different Broadway musicals, he in "No, No, Nanette" and she in "Sugar."

One of the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" dramatic specials on NBC during the new season will be "The Borrowers," a fantasy based on Mary Norton's children's book. The 90-minute program will star Eddie Albert, Tammy Grimes and Dame Judith Anderson. The story is about tiny people who live in secret little nooks in houses.

The Professional Golfers Association and ABC have a new three-year agreement that extends the network's coverage of the annual PGA championship through 1976.

NBC has placed four actresses under contract for future use on series or special programs. Diane Baker, Sheilah Wells and Marilyn Hassett have had extensive motion picture and television experience. Jane Alexander, the fourth, is a distinguished stage actress.

ABC will present an adaptation of Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice" starring Sir Laurence Olivier and his wife, Joan Plowright, sometime during this season as a three-hour program. The play was filmed during the summer in England.

Betty Garrett and not Sada Thompson has the continuing role of the Bunkers' new neighbor in the CBS "All in the Family" series. Miss Thompson, notable Broadway actress, started work in the series but left by mutual agreement when she decided she couldn't stay away from her family.

HE CONCEDED THE OSCAR

Dan Dailey, star of NBC-TV's "Faraday and Company" on "NBC Wednesday Mystery Movie," was nominated for an Oscar in 1948 as best actor for his role in "When My Baby Smiles at Me."

"But I didn't attend the ceremony," he says. "I conceded to Laurence Olivier, who was nominated for 'Hamlet.' As it turned out I was right."

Falk Likes Columbo

New Version Of 'Miracle'

As a Christmas season special, CBS Television Network will present a two-hour TV version of "Miracle on 34th Street," starring David Hartman, Jane Alexander and Sebastian Cabot.

The 1947 movie of that title, starring Edmund Gwenn, has been shown many times on the tube. And the story, about a man who claims to be Santa Claus, was also the basis for a Broadway musical some years ago.

The date for the new CBS version is Dec. 14.

Love Thy Neighbor Blonde Sees Role As 'Simple, Practical'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Joyce Bulifant, the half bright blonde of the "Love Thy Neighbor" series, has put her home on the sales block to escape the 50-mile round-trip drive to work every day.

Unlike the housewife she plays in the situation comedy, Joyce has no black neighbors. Indeed, she has few neighbors at all.

She and husband Edward Mallory (writer-director-actor) live in Granada Hills, a horsy section of suburb in the distant regions of the San Fernando Valley.

There, on an acre of ground, Joyce is far removed from the tract development livings which is the basis of the ABC series.

IN ADDITION to the main house which is an old fashioned farm building, there is an enormous red barn converted into family room, a private office for Ed and a projection room for showing motion pictures.

The barn is a gathering place for the entire family. It is at once rustic and homey with used brick on the floor, rich wood paneling and a cheery fireplace. There is also a guesthouse with a living room, bath, kitchen and bedroom. There is a swimming pool, of course.

Why leave this agreeable setting?

"Spending an hour on the freeway every day is too much" Joyce says.

DESPITE THE long drive and demands of the series Joyce is luckier than most television series performers. Her presence isn't required before 10 a.m. for rehearsal and work stops at 6 p.m.

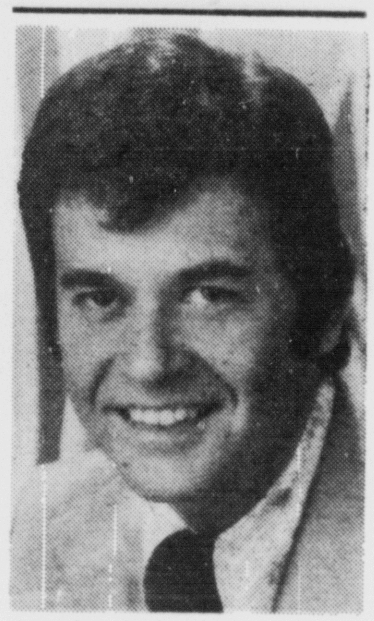

These hours enable her to have breakfast and dinner with her family. She is the mother of Charlie, 13, and Mary, 7, by her first husband, James MacArthur who costars on "Hawaii Five-O" and Edward John, 2, whose father is Ed Mallory. The couple was married four years ago.

Joyce and MacArthur remain on friendly terms. On Christmas and other holidays MacArthur and his mother Helen Hayes visit young Charlie and Mary. MacArthur has remarried since the divorce six years ago, too. His wife is actress Melody Patterson.

JOYCE HAS furnished her home beautifully with early American and English antiques, most of which came from her mother's farm in Bucks County, Pa.

The children are fond of cats and dogs, accounting for a pair of standard poodles, Suzie and Charcoal. Cats come and go. There is a neatly kept graveyard in a far corner of the property where Charlie and Mary bury feline victims of age and country predators. The funerals are sad events.

A young Mexican-American couple — who have an infant of their own — take care of household tasks and the gardens. Joyce is generally too busy to do the family cooking.

AMIABLE Dick Clark, long-time host of "American Bandstand," is also the host for the ABC-TV special, "The Rock and Roll Years," an hour-long exploration of the history of rock music, Thursday at 8 p.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

DURING THE summer months the Mallory family rents a cottage on the beach to escape the scorching heat. Charlie is addicted to surfing. Joyce, Mary and the dogs take long walks on the sand.

Weekend trips to nearby mountain and desert communities are a favorite pasttime. When Joyce and Ed have four or five days away from work (he is a regular cast member of "Days of Our Lives") they pack up the family and head for Yosemite National Park.

Joyce is a happy, uninhibited extrovert who is very close to the character of Peggy Wilson in the series, although not so flighty. She is a good wife and mother who puts her family ahead of her career.

SHE HAS MORE than passing respect for her role in the show, saying "Housewives in real estate tracts are pretty much with it. They aren't the frumpy stereotypes of a generation ago."

The network buys Joyce's wardrobe, tailoring gowns, pants and dresses to her five-foot, three-inch, 110-pound dimensions. The fashions are much like those she wears off-screen.

"Peggy is a simple, practical person," Joyce concludes. "So am I."

Dan Still Dances

Dan Dailey, star of NBC-TV's "Faraday and Company" segments on "NBC Wednesday Mystery Movie," says he still likes to dance: "If anybody asks me, I do it. But nobody asks me."

NORMAN FELL as Nathan Davidson points an accusing cigar at Charlie the salesman (Bernie Kopell, left) in the episode, "The Spy Who Came in on a Hanger" in the new NBC-TV comedy series, "Pins and Needles," Friday at 9 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4. Nathan thinks Charlie has sold a dress design to his arch competitor.

Days Of Our Lives Singer Bill Hayes Different Off TV

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bill Hayes, who plays the flashy singer in the soap opera "Days of Our Lives," is an unflashy vocalist off-screen with a new album on the market, "Bill Hayes, The Look of Love."

The title is fitting for a couple of reasons.

Hayes is more than somewhat agog over one of the show's co-stars, Susan Seaforth. He's also a loving father of five offspring, aged 17-25.

For years Hayes was thought of as a singer, starring as vocalist on the old Sid Caesar "Show of Shows" for almost five years. He also earned a gold record for his rendition of "The Ballad of Davy Crockett."

NOW HE HAS settled down to dramatic acting on the daytime show playing a man who is an ex-convict and smooth ladies' man.

Bill lives in a six-bedroom house on a pleasant, unpretentious street in the San Fernando Valley. He knows little about decorations and furnished the place with the aid of Miss Seaforth and his daughter, Margaret, 17.

He and his wife were divorced more than four years ago, after which Hayes moved from New York to Hollywood and purchased his present home.

AT THE TIME most of his youngsters were living with him. Now there is only Margaret who attends a local high school. Son Tom is an undergraduate at DePauw University in Indiana where Bill was graduated.

Two of his other offspring, Carrie, now 25 and married, and Bill Jr. also attended their father's alma mater. Another daughter, Kathy, lives in Michigan.

There is always plenty of space for the Hayes children when they come to California. For that reason Bill maintains the large house.

THE DEMANDS OF a daytime soap opera are heavy on the performers. Bill arises at 5:15 a.m. to prepare a sparse breakfast. It is about a 10-minute drive to NBC where rehearsals begin at 7 a.m.

The cameras and tape machine roll early in the afternoon, and by 3 o'clock the cast is free for the rest of the day. But for Bill Hayes it means returning home to pore over the script and memorize dozens of lines of dialogue.

Dinner is generally prepared by Margaret who has diligently applied herself to becoming a good cook after surviving several years of pizzas, frozen dinners and take-home chicken joints. On occasion, Bill broils steaks and bakes potatoes.

HAYES HAS little enough time for sports or hobbies. On weekends, more often than not recently, he devotes himself to arranging music for his recordings and performances on the show.

He relieves the work monotony by attending the theater — usually with Miss Seaforth — and going to motion pictures.

On the rare weekend when he can get away Bill is off to Tucson, Ariz., to visit his parents. Otherwise he concentrates on the painful task of committing his script to memory.

One of the most enjoyable facets of his role in the series is buying the flamboyant wardrobe favored by the character he portrays. Bill's closets bulge with bright sports shirts, slacks and fancy leather and suede jackets.

"MY CLOTHES represent a sizeable investment," Bill says, "and I have to pay for them. But I spent so many years wearing dark suits back east that I don't mind the bright colors. I love the change."

Next summer Hayes will take his entire family to Europe for a vacation — and Miss Seaforth may go along too.

'DAYTIME TV IS TOUGHEST'

A few years ago when Yale Summers went from a daytime series to a regular role in "Daktari," the night-time series set in Africa, he was asked if it was difficult working with animals.

"I said that after working in a daytime series, working with lions and boa constrictors was a breeze," says Yale, who now stars as Rodney Harrington on the NBC Television Network's daytime series "Return to Peyton Place" (Mondays-Fridays, 2-2:30 p.m. PT, in color).

"There's nothing quite as difficult as daytime television for an actor. It's like doing a different half-hour play every day. There's all that dialogue to learn and not an awful lot of time to learn it."

"It's ironic," says Yale, "but I've found that the difficulty of the acting assignment is in adverse proportion to the credit you receive."

TV Popular In Austria

Figures released by the Austrian Federal Chamber of Economics indicate that almost 40 per cent of all Austrians above the age of 15 — two million people out of five and a half million — watch television daily.

Prime viewing time starts immediately after the evening news at 8:15.

According to the survey, 14 per cent do not tune in at all, 12 per cent are infrequent viewers, while 70 per cent watch at least once a week.

Gale Gordon Sheds His TV Characters

Gale Gordon, who has mastered the blustery, pompous characterization as well as any other performer in television, is, in person, poles apart from the Uncle Harry role he plays on "Here's Lucy."

The strident, Uncle Harry voice becomes soft and subdued when he speaks off-camera. And his manner is the exact opposite of the overbearing foil he becomes for series star Lucille Ball's humor Mondays on the CBS Television Network.

Gordon is actually a mild-mannered gentleman given to pensive moments. Yet, within his calm demeanor lurks the animated actor who has given radio and television such memorable stuffed shirts as Mayor Latrivia of "Fibber McGee and Molly," Principal Osgood Conklin of "Our Miss Brooks," and Harrison Carter of "Here's Lucy."

What is his explanation for the two vastly different Gordons?

"Long ago I learned really to get away when I leave the studio. To me, acting is a job, and a very nice way to make a living. But I don't believe in taking my dramatic mannerisms home with me. I enjoy my home workshop, and building or fixing something on my ranch at Borrego Springs, Calif., almost as much as appearing before cameras."

Insomniac's New Friend

Tom Snyder Will Take Over After Other Talk Show Hosts Have Gone To Bed

By MIMI MEAD

NEW YORK, N.Y. — If you happen to be up very, very early on the morning of Tuesday, Oct. 16, or perhaps very, very late on the night of Monday, Oct. 15, you will be able to catch the premiere of NBC's new "Tomorrow" show, hosted by Tom Snyder.

The 60-minute talk show will air Mondays through Thursdays at 1 a.m., following Johnny Carson, and NBC has every hope that in its way it will be as solid a success as its neighbors, the "Tonight" and "Today" shows.

THE NETWORK is banking on three things: evidence that there is indeed a late, late television audience; the format of the show; and the charm of its host. As far as the audience goes, producer Rudy Tellez, a former producer of the "Tonight" show, said that the network was greatly encouraged by the success of "The Midnight Special," a 90-minute Friday night variety show airing at 1 a.m., premiered last February and renewed for next year.

"The Midnight Special has a potential audience of four and a half million to six million people. And what's more, demographically it gets the best audience, 18 to 49 years old. As the week grows older, the audience grows younger for some reason," said Tellez in New York recently.

"I think we'll get the all-night radio talk-show addicts," said Snyder, a very smooth, glib talker, six feet four inches with a quick smile and an easy wit. He is quite serious about his commitment to the "Tomorrow" show.

"WE'LL GET THE Barry Farber and Joe Pine audiences. We'll get the kids in the college dormitories who have finished their term papers. They haven't looked at TV in years. They've been too turned off. I hope the audience is there. I think they are there. We'll have competition from the old Broderick Crawford movies, of course, but I think that at one o'clock in the morning we might get some people back to TV who have gone for a while."

Although billed as a talk show, neither Tellez nor Snyder consider it similar to any other talk shows. Its format will be conversations between Snyder and one guest at a time. For the most part the guests will be experts in their fields, not just wandering celebrities who happen to be in town.

At first, the show will be taped at 10 p.m. in Burbank, Calif., and aired a day later. But they are hoping to do some live production as soon as possible, which would necessitate a three-hour hold for the West Coast in order to air the show at 1 a.m.

"THIS IS PRIMARILY a 'back-of-the-book' talk show," explained Snyder, using the term applied to feature material in a news magazine.

"There will be no jokes, no band, nobody coming on and saying, 'He-e-e-e-ere's Tommy'," he added, grinning. "I am not trying to compete with other talk shows. I don't think anybody who does TV can do a program based on what's on other channels.

"We aren't going to have 12 minutes of one guest and then he moves over and another comes on and pretty soon you have 18 guests in a line. Neither are you going to see four people sitting around a table talking earnestly. We're going to have one person at a time."

Snyder was born in Milwaukee and started in broadcasting in 1956 in the news department of radio station WRIT. He subsequently worked in TV in Savannah, Ga., Atlanta, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, and in 1970 joined KNBC in Los Angeles as anchorman for the nightly 60-minute newscast as well as a live 90-minute interview show on Sundays.

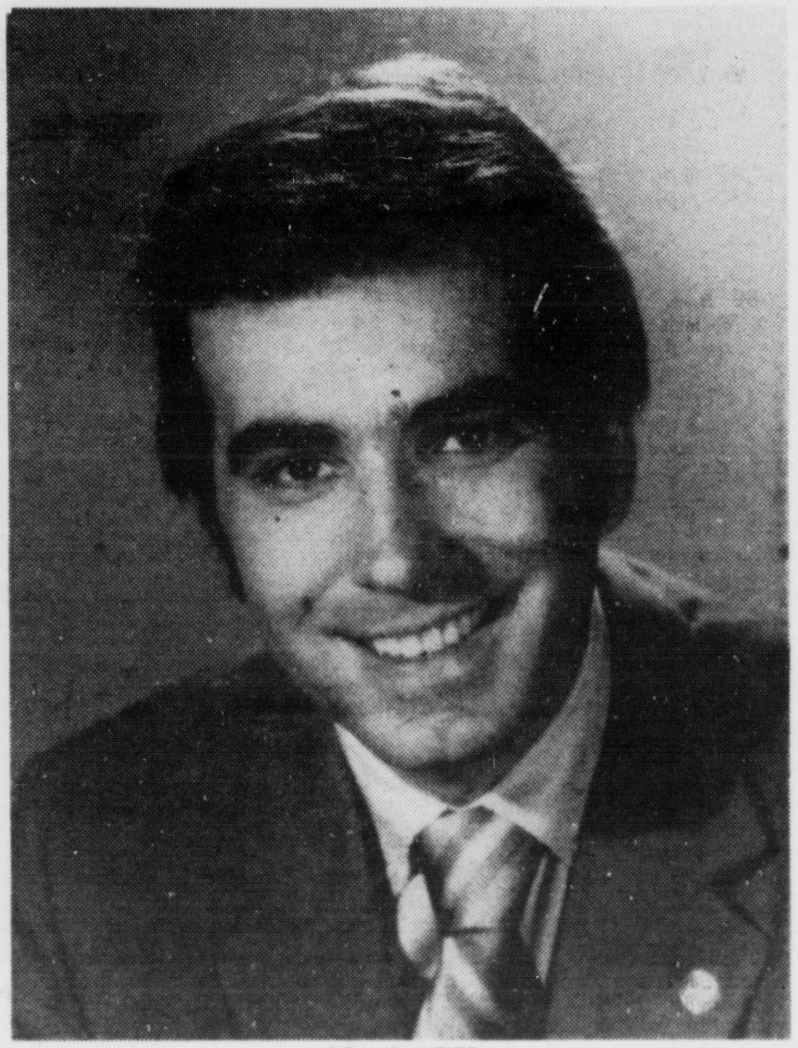

THE NETWORK describes him as breezy and sometimes brash.

"I am not Johnny Carson," he said seriously, "nor will I do anything he does. There will be no competition for the guests or set designers or anything between his show and mine. I have tremendous respect for him. I don't think anybody in the country or the world puts himself on the line every night, night after night, like that, not in the history of entertainment."

As for his own views, "I don't think it's possible to go on and talk to people for any length of time without a certain amount of advocacy. I expect that in the course of these programs some of my own beliefs and biases will become evident to the audience. I am not a plastic man. We will not avoid controversy, but there are bigger controversies than Watergate.

"There is 6 per cent more beef on the hoof this year than last, for instance. Why isn't there more meat?"

Joan Rivers Has Changed Her Routine

Until recently, her act dealt with the woes of the single girl. "My mother was certain I would never marry," she explained. "I was certain I would never marry, and my act is always autobiographical."

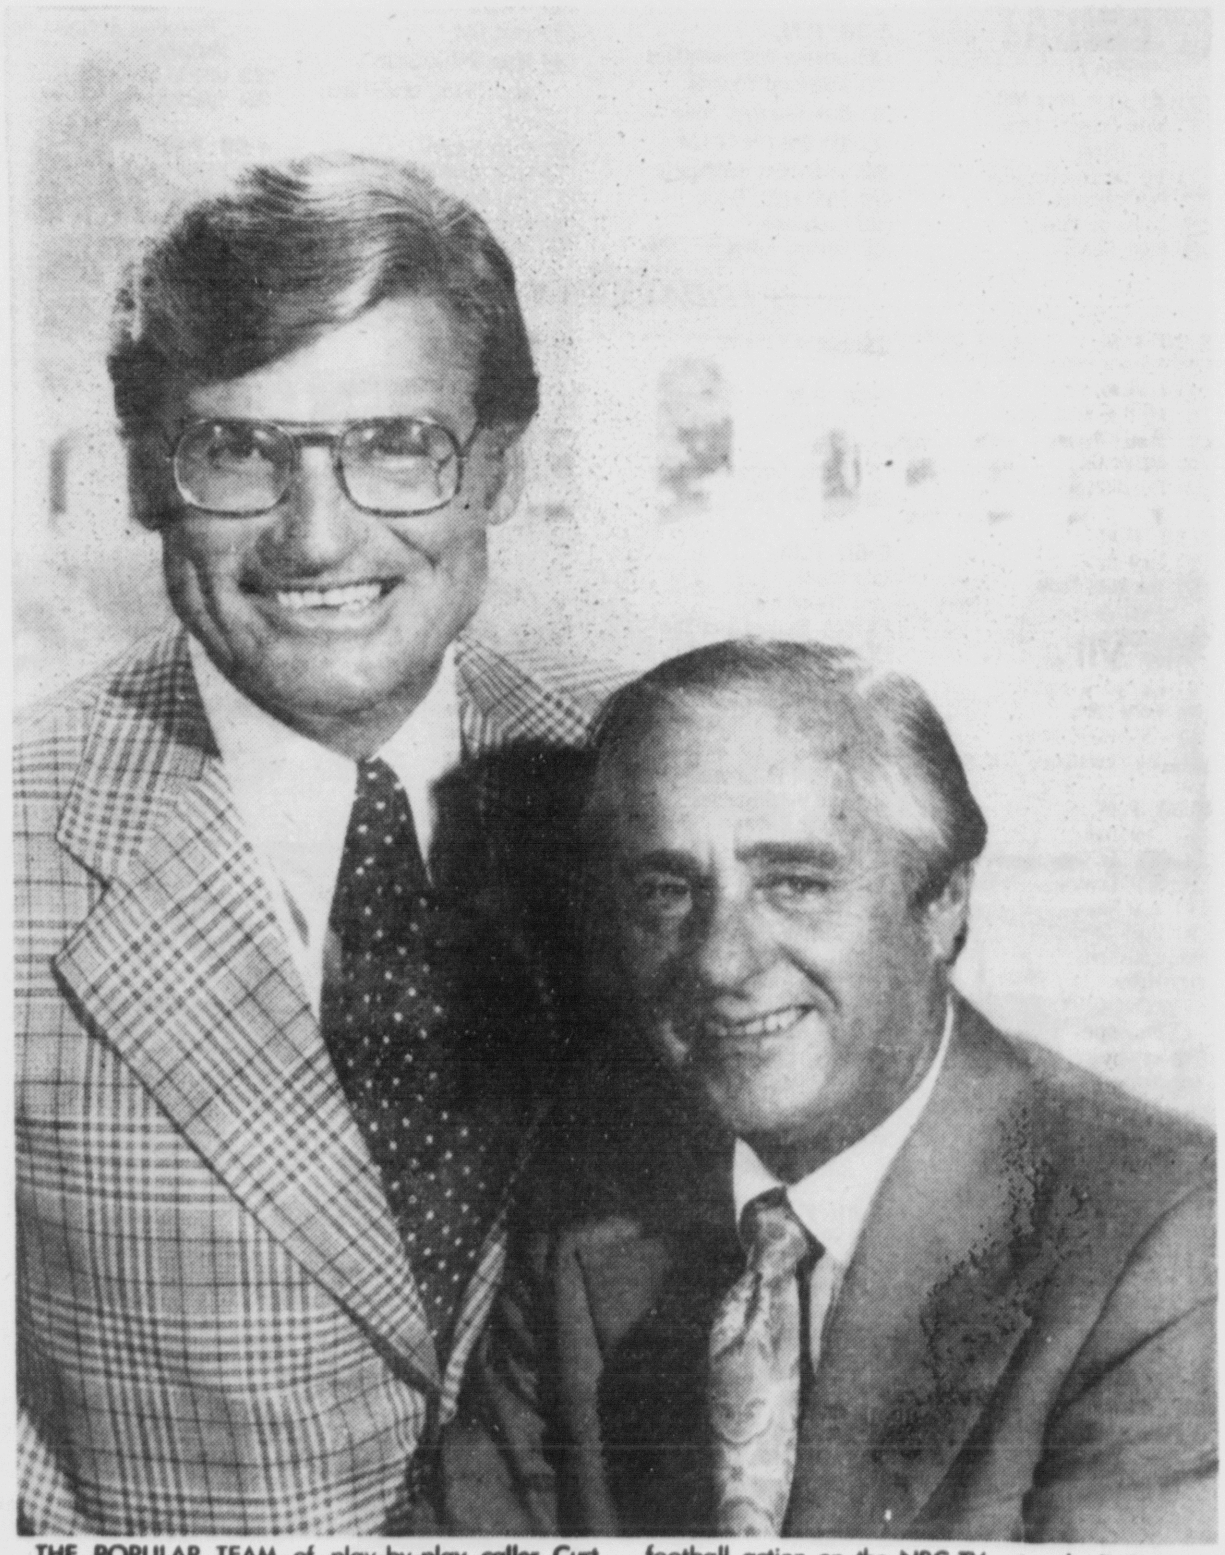

Then, seven years ago, she married but she kept the same comedy format. She retained it through a period of separation with her husband, Ed. But when the marriage was mended, she decided to mend her comedy act, too.

Now, Joan does not do the single girl bit. "I do the married thing," she said. "You know, housewife, cooking, husband cheating on you. All ofmy routines are still my experiences, even though I exaggerate quite a bit; but they are all mine. They have all happened."

WRONG-WAY AWOL

James McEachin, star of NBC-TV's "Tenafly" segments of "NBC Wednesday Mystery Movie" series, says he once went AWOL from a hospital where he was recovering from wounds during the Korean War to return to combat.

"I look back on it now," he says, "and think I must have been crazy. But I was always anxious to be where the action was."

A WINNER ON ARTHRITIS

David Moessinger, who wrote and directed "Jason Be Nimble, Jason Be Quick" for the ABC Television Network's "Marcus Welby, M.D.," has been awarded a special citation for outstanding writing in network television entertainment by the Arthritis Foundation.

"Jason Be Nimble, Jason Be Quick" originally aired on "Marcus Welby, M.D." Nov. 28, 1972, and was rebroadcast on May 1, 1973. In the teleplay 12-year-old Jason, who is striken with rheumatoid arthritis, must cope with the problems and adjustments of the disease as well as with the conflicts between his estranged parents.

What Is the Spell Of the "Born Leader"? By Vance Bourjaily

"I Lost My Daughter, Tuesday Weld, When I Helped Her to Stardom"

Child Crises: Which Ones Are Serious— Which Are Not?

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR RICHARD BACH,
author of "Jonathan Livingston Seagull"

I thought "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" was about everlasting life and even wondered if you are a Christian Scientist. My friend thinks you wrote about reincarnation. Is either of us right?—Mrs. Wayne Figg, Dimondale, Mich.

● One thing that Jonathan isn't, apparently, is a Christian Scientist, since the only newspaper in the world that does not accept advertising for the book has been The Christian Science Monitor. If by "reincarnation," your friend means the living of many life experiences for the purpose of learning the nature of reality, the book is at least in part about reincarnation. If by "religious," you mean "a way of finding what is true," Jonathan can be quite a religious book indeed. I saw the story happen in what appeared to be a rather vivid dream before I slept. The book was not, as some accounts have suggested, dictated to me by a vaporous talking seagull.

FOR TERRY ANNE MEEUWSEN, 1973 Miss America

What advice did you give the new Miss America when she was crowned this September?—M. L. A., Mahopac, N.Y.

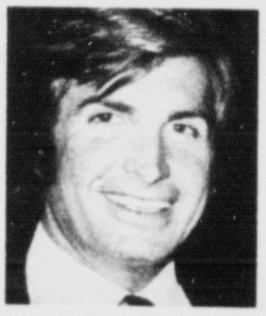

● That she make it a point to take five minutes out every day to sit down quietly by herself and get her head on straight. It's hard to keep from getting swept up in the rat race. No one can imagine the constant pressures Miss America is under. It would be all too easy to lose one's identity.

FOR JULIET PROWSE

Is it true that you married your nephew, who is ten years younger than you are?—A. C., Rome, Ga.

● Not exactly. My husband is eight years younger than I am, and we met when I played his aunt in "Auntie Mame," so only in that way is he my "nephew." Incidentally, we have a beautiful little boy named Seth who is one year old.

FOR GEORGE HAMILTON

You used to go with Lynda Robb, President Johnson's daughter. Do you still hear from her?—Paula Gabhardt, Norwood, Ohio

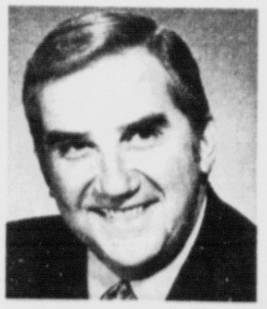

● The last time I heard from her was about a year ago. Lynda and her husband came to Los Angeles and we had dinner together at the time. Yes, we are still friends.

FOR SEN. ROBERT TAFT, JR. (R-Ohio)

Could better rail service help relieve the energy crisis, or do trains gobble up as much fuel as everything else?—N. Pierce, Reno, Nev.

● The average passenger miles per gallon of fuel for a jet plane is between 21 and 22. For an automobile it is about 32, as compared to 80 for cross-country passenger-train service and 200 for suburban train, two-deck service. These figures, I think, certainly point to the advantages of using trains.

FOR ED McMAHON

Who is your favorite replacement host on the "Tonight" show? Also, how and why do you and other celebrities put up with the abuse heaped on you by Don Rickles?—Mrs. Walter Doll, Quincy, Mass.

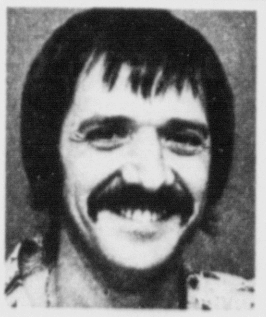

● Joey Bishop is my favorite replacement host. He's done the job more than any other person, and I feel comfortable with him. Those of us who know Don Rickles are very aware that "Mr. Warmth" really is a warm human being. He's only acting and wouldn't deliberately hurt anyone.

FOR MARY TYLER MOORE, actress

I read recently that you are a diabetic. So am I, and I was wondering if you find it difficult to keep your diabetes under control with your busy schedule?—Penny Holmes, Great Falls, Mont.

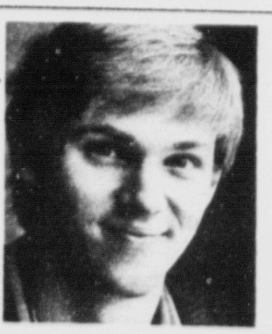

● Yes, I am a diabetic, but I don't consider it a handicap in any way. As a matter of fact, I think the fact that I have to organize and regulate my diet and exercise gives me more pep and energy. I feel great.

FOR SONNY BONO

What was the first hit song that you recorded? And do you write all of your own songs?—Tina Thomas, Pueblo, Colo.

● Our first "big" hit was "I Got You Babe," which I wrote. I write songs for many other performers besides Cher. And Cher has had several hits that I didn't write.

FOR RICHARD THOMAS of "The Waltons"

Is it true that on your way to the Shubert Theatre for the Emmy Awards program you destroyed your car?—Regina Philips, Austin, Texas

● It's true. I didn't expect to win, but on the way to the theater I thought, "But what if I should win?" So I began thinking about an acceptance speech and ran my car into a pole. [Editor's note: Richard did win the Emmy.]

FOR SEN. JAMES B. PEARSON (R-Kans.)

How could the Amateur Athletic Union suspend athletes and officials for joining a swimming team that toured Red China? I thought the trip had U.S. approval.—J. Rankin, Gary, Ind.

● It has been apparent for some time that these groups that govern amateur athletes are more concerned about the protection of their own rules and regulations and the perpetuation of their power than about the welfare and success of amateur athletes. We cannot continue to allow these self-appointed sports bureaucrats to interfere with our athletes, or with our foreign policy.

When a Great Leader Charms Us— Is It Really Only "Charm"?

"I cannot guarantee that I will always like the way I behave with men who have these various degrees of magnetism. This feeling is not unusual in the men around Harold Hughes. I remember one of his staff saying to me . . . , 'When I go in to make a pitch to him, I always get myself up for it. . . . But he always takes me. I may get to make my point after he does, but he always has to take me first.' "

John Neubauer

My subjects are examples of human magnetism, Tony, and Harold Hughes.

Let me start with Tony, who is still vivid to me from the time we were ninth graders together, 36 years ago. I changed schools in tenth grade, and saw him only once again afterward, before he was killed in the Second World War. He had a lot of charm.

At the age of 14, Tony could cause anybody—man, woman, boy and especially girl—to like him immediately and forgive him eventually. Tony was incorrigibly, sometimes offensively, mischievous, and needed a lot of forgiving. It didn't occur to me then, as another boy, reacting with pleasure or with hurt feelings, depending on whether I found myself in or out of Tony's favor, that the purpose of the offense might be to test the charm.

Using Tony as my example of magnetism at the tricky level of charm, I can begin to see both what produced and what limited it. It seemed to be a product of vitality, physical attractiveness, great verbal ability and warmth—or, at least, the appearance of warmth. When you felt that Tony liked you, you felt that liking you was the center of his life. That wasn't so, of course, so one limit of his magnetism was dishonesty, and there were others like it: Tony was amoral, unstable and full of self-doubt.

Nevertheless, I think he could have made his mother walk off a cliff with one sparkling, blue-eyed glance, and his stepfather was just plain scared of the kid. His smile would have melted anything except, I guess, the Luftwaffe bullets that knocked his P-40 into the English Channel in 1943.

But about charm: I have learned since, as I don't suppose I did with Tony, that while one may have a good time with a charming person, and perhaps be persuaded by him or by her for a time, the insecurity and instability and lack of moral center sooner or later offset the charm. One learns, then, after a while, to handle charming people. Or rather one learns to handle oneself around them, to resist their need to be loved, rejected, loved again.

And then there is the case of Harold Hughes, senior senator from Iowa, where I live. His degree of magnetism is to charm as a jet engine is to a firecracker.

Harold Hughes first saw me about 18 months after his election as governor of Iowa. That was in 1964, when I appeared in his office in Des Moines, from Iowa City 110 miles away, as a constituent, one of a solemn-faced group come to demand an accounting on conservation matters.

Harold Hughes was 46 then. So was I.

In 1968, Governor Hughes took me on as a member of the staff in his campaign for the U.S. Senate, which he won—in spite, so the party professionals out here still say, of his having nominated Eugene McCarthy for the Presidency in Chicago. Since then I've either seen, or exchanged letters, or talked on the phone with Senator Hughes two or three times a year.

Somewhere, I have a letter from him apologizing for his delay in answering one of mine, in which he remarks that secretaries had shuffled it around, "not realizing that you are a personal friend." I would feel quite content to accept the phrase, but not quite honest.

I take it to be part of the particular loneliness of public life that when a man reaches a certain level in it he can no longer make new friends in any full sense of the word, unless it be with others at the same level, and only then if both men have decided against competing to rise to the next level. For all the rest of us, he finds himself the prisoner-king of a realm of jockeys and sharpshooters, wherein the highest rank a new acquaintance may attain, except by some miracle of affinity, is something short of friendship—an honorable and useful courtier, perhaps, a favorite jester; at best a trusted counselor and confidant who, taking the risk of independence, may deserve knighthood or dismissal, depending on how things turn out. But it is only with an old friend, from the time before it all began, that the public man need never be on guard; so be it.

There were one or two times in the 1968 campaign when Harold Hughes and I were close; but they came when he indicated a need for someone to talk to, and I was at hand, and it would have been stupid of me to presume that the tone of an evening's dialogue would carry over to our work next day.

It's as simple as this. In hot weather, and if there's no one else to do it, and no matter how big and strong the candidate may be, you carry the suitcase to the motel room. You know what breaking into a sweat would do to his shirt collar. I remember Harold Hughes saying to me quite ruefully on a day like that, as we started out campaigning, "You've got to take care of the product if you want to show it, don't you?"

I am, then, no more than one of a

by Donna Arnold — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

At 205 pounds, I had a fat chance of dating the one fire fighter I'd really set my sights for. That's when I decided I'd better find a way to lose weight.

It took me eighteen years to get up to 205 pounds. Then I got a glimpse of the Casanova of the Fire Department, Ricky Arnold, and it took me only nine months to come down off that peak and turn his head. But of course, I needed a little help.

Fortunately, I found it soon after I went to work for the Department in Savannah, Georgia. That was the only place I could get a job, thanks to the kindliness of the Fire Chief.

He saw something beneath all those years of custards, cookies, fried chicken, potatoes and gravy — which is more than they did at another place where I was interviewed. You see, a girl friend and I had tried to get telephone operator positions there, but the supervisor said we were so fat, neither one of us would be able to get between the seats at the switchboard. This upset us so, we both went out and ate away our frustrations.

But to get back to the Fire Department, the girls who worked in the investigation division, like me, were put on the second floor. And I'll tell you, those fire fighters had a ball watching our legs going up the stairs. Why, they never missed a pair — of slim ones anyway.

As for mine, if they bothered to look up, all they saw was oversized knees, rubbing together. That didn't stop me, however, from looking down and developing a crush on Ricky.

At this point, I'd like to say that in every overweight person's life, there comes a moment of decision, motivated by desire or shame or ambition or fear. A moment when a person knows it's time to lose weight. And I knew when I saw Ricky that the only way I was going to get his attention was to take off those pounds.

Past experience told me that reducing pills weren't for me. A girl friend at work, however, had some of those reducing-plan candies, Ayds®, so I tried them. And I liked them so much, I bought a box of the chocolate fudge kind and started on the Ayds plan right away. Incidentally, I read the contents on the box and it was reassuring to learn Ayds contain vitamins and minerals but no drugs.

I'd never been a breakfast eater, even though I know that's an important meal. But before lunch, I'd have two Ayds with hot coffee, as the directions say, and they really helped curb my appetite. I was completely satisfied with a salad and maybe meat. For supper, I'd have two more Ayds with coffee, followed by broiled meat, salad again, a vegetable and perhaps fruit. But Ayds were the biggest help to me in the evening, because they kept me from filling up on tons of calories while I watched television. And for someone who was used to eating a hundred miles an hour, that's doing something.

Well, even the first month on the Ayds plan, that weight really started to come off. It must have shown, too, because Ricky actually asked me for a date. He took me to the beach and I felt so wonderful, I refused to eat even a custard. Love had completely taken me over! I was determined that the Ayds plan and I were going to get me my man.

Of course, Ricky still played the field while I was going down, but I was getting to him. When I dropped below 150 pounds, one of his friends asked me out and I went just to make him jealous. And to get back at him for once saying I looked like I had inner tubes under my chin. Well, Rick got so furious at my dating another man, I knew I'd turned the tide.

Anyway, the happy ending is that Rick and I got married a little better than nine months after I'd been on the Ayds plan. I was just below 125 pounds.

Don't think I've given up the plan entirely, though, even now. There is always a box of Ayds ready, if I need them. You see, Rick insists that I get weighed every single day. He checks on me, too, because he won't tolerate my being over 130 pounds. So I know I have to stay between 125 and 130. And the Ayds plan helps keep me there.

As you can see, I've lost just about half of me. I'm now down to 126 pounds and, girls, losing those 79 pounds has won me my man – the Casanova of the firehouse.

Believe me, this is a true story. There are plenty of witnesses. The fire fighters Ricky worked with, thirty men per shift with three shifts, all saw how the Ayds plan worked for me.

Is It Only Charm?

number of men Harold Hughes seems to have found more useful than irritating, likes pretty well (I think I can say that), and can count on.

Nor have I, to be wholly truthful, set forth one final awkwardness; to do it, I've got to confess that many of the times I've felt less than comfortable with Senator Hughes have had nothing to do with his position, but were rather a consequence of the personality that put him into the position. Harold Hughes is, quite simply, an overpowering man. I sometimes wonder if he realizes the strength of his magnetism.

This is the thing I continue to ponder, for the phenomenon of human magnetism seems to me a central mystery to be solved in trying to understand how certain men alter history. It is a quality to which we give different names at its different levels of strength.

At a low level—Tony's level, I suppose—we call it charm. At the next we recognize it, perhaps, with an old-fashioned term like character. At a still higher level we call it personal authority, and can be awed (and discomfited) by it. Yet it causes some rebellion in me, too, and some cynicism—I cannot guarantee that I will always like the way I behave with men who have these various degrees of magnetism. This feeling is not unusual in the men around Harold Hughes. I remember one of his staff saying to me, during the '68 campaign:

"You know, I think I'm pretty good. When I go in to make a pitch to him, I always get myself up for it. I'm going to get him this time. But he always takes me. I may get to make my point after he does, but he always has to take me first."

"God," I had to say. "He even takes me over the telephone."

Once I failed to see that magnetism might exist at levels more potent than charm, a degree that we more often associate with harm politically than good, learning finally to prefer the intelligent, conscientious officeholder who gets his work done. Probably it should have been obvious to me that magnetism at the higher levels is the most essential of the various qualities that combine as leadership, and therefore find myself involuntarily sympathetic with Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon, who have seemed to lack magnetism or even to hold it in negative quantities. "When Nixon comes in green on color TV," my wife said once, "I don't even pink him."

But whatever its origins in personal security, in ego, in great physical and intellectual energy, in moral wholeness, a grown man's degree of magnetism is probably inalterable, like his shoe size or the color of his eyes.

Harold Hughes has more of it than any other man I ever met.

Senator Hughes' voice is a strong, clear bass ("I can't get within an octave of baritone," Harold Hughes once told another writer). The only other American voice I know that resembles it belongs to Johnny Cash, the country singer, but as a speaking voice, Cash's is second best.

Energy is the constant quality in magnetism at every level. But rarest of all, even in the kings and emperors who are supposedly bred and educated for it, is magnetism in its highest degree: dominance.

An actor like George C. Scott sometimes conveys it and I feel it in Senator Hughes. With this kind of person (I'd be more confident in saying so if I knew more than one example) I think the moral certainty has been raised to moral commitment. The emotional certainty is now emotional commitment—yet, oddly enough, the totality of the self-confidence seems somewhat diminished. There is in Hughes (and I would guess other men and women like him) an undisguised strain of humility. I think what has been added to the other qualities, besides commitment, is the kind of intelligence that will not allow any conclusion to be foregone. It reflects. It broods. It asks.

It may not, perhaps, suffer fools gladly, at least not for very long. But genuine dominance, if that is what I've encountered, is not arrogant; it doesn't need to be. FW

Want to Break Those Bad Habits? A New Approach

"Since neurotic behavior originates in learning, its elimination is probably a matter of 'unlearning.' "

"Don't be silly, I've taken them every night now for 20 years, and they haven't become a habit yet!"

By Richard Allen Stull

A tempestuous Broadway star once cajoled her doctor into allowing her to order some sleeping pills. "Be careful how you take these," he cautioned. "First thing you know they'll become a habit with you." "Don't be silly," she scoffed. "I've taken them every night now for 20 years, and they haven't become a habit yet!"

Every one of us is a creature of habit. "Habit is a cable," observed Horace Mann. "We weave a thread of it every day and at last we cannot break it." Each New Year we reflect on our good and bad habits and make resolutions to do something about the latter. We usually fail. This is because habits are so strong. Perhaps what is needed is a new approach. Instead of being so concerned with the elimination of bad habits, perhaps we should spend our time thinking about the formation of good habits.

Psychologists suggest the following rules for breaking involuntary habits and establishing new ones:

1. Make an old involuntary habit voluntary. Deliberate exercise of a bad habit can give us control over the undesirable response, so we can inhibit it at will. Typists, for example, often correct the bad habit of typing "hte" for "the" by consciously practicing "hte."
2. Substitute a new response for the older one. The best way to overcome a bad habit is to replace it by a good one. A new response must be associated with a given stimulus by reconditioning. Dieters often replace the chain of "take, unwrap and eat candy," with "take, wash and eat celery."
3. Start the new habit with all possible initiative. Commit yourself publicly to a new course so that fear of ridicule will strengthen the incentive.
5. Exercise the new habit voluntarily as often as possible. Repetition provides regular reinforcement. Unreinforced habits tend to become extinct.

A golf professional, hired by a big department store to give golf lessons, was approached by two women. "Do you wish to learn to play golf, madam?" he asked one. "Oh, no," she replied. "It's my friend who wants to learn. I learned yesterday."

A relatively new psychological concept is the method of treatment known as the learning-maturity concept. Stated simply, this means that emotional stress is the result of miseducation, or lack of proper education, and that emotional stability can be achieved by learning the qualities that comprise maturity. This concept is in direct opposition to Freudian analysis, which is anchored in the concept that emotional stress is conditioned early in life by some unacceptable experience that is relegated to the dark depths of the subconscious where it preys on its host forever.

The learning-maturity concept insists that, regardless of the omissions and commissions of the past, we have to start in the present, here and now, to acquire some maturity so that the future may be better than the past. The present and the future depend on learning new habits and new ways of looking at old problems.

The best presentation of this new theory of psychotherapy as a serious alternative to the repression theory of Freudian psychoanalysis is that of Dr. Joseph Wolpe. In his work, Dr. Wolpe has applied the known laws of learning to the special problems of neurosis and developed new techniques of therapy.

Dr. Wolpe calls his method "psychotherapy by reciprocal inhibition." Briefly, this means that in general it is possible to overcome a habit by forming a new and antagonistic habit when you are faced with a similar situation. For example, an overly dependent adult is encouraged and taught to assert himself in practice situations until he can reach out and take a stand on his own. Since neurotic behavior originates in learning, its elimination is probably a matter of "unlearning." What distinguishes this new method of treatment is the much shorter span of time required for what may be an even more successful approach than the lengthy and expensive exploration of a hidden past.

In earlier days, America's pioneering psychologist, William James, anticipated this approach when he said: "The sovereign voluntary path to cheerfulness, if our spontaneous cheerfulness be lost, is to sit up cheerfully, look around cheerfully, and act and speak as if cheerfulness were already there. If we act as if from some better feeling, the bad feeling soon silently steals away."

In this old and new theory, effect becomes more important than cause, and emphasis is in doing and practicing the new rather than exploring the reasons for the old. If this principle is, indeed, a master key to the cure of neurosis, a much brighter future lies ahead for the victims of neurotic suffering.

Did You Know Cats Are Born Deaf?

It's true—cats are born deaf. But they soon develop a hearing range of from 20,000 to 25,000 vibrations per second. And, because their ears are much more intricate than ours, they can harbor trouble. When you groom your cat, wipe the ear flaps clean with baby oil and look inside. Never probe with a sharp instrument. If your cat is always pawing and scratching at his ear he may have ear mites, a pesky problem (common to strays) that usually needs a vet's attention. If your cat develops bare patches on the outside of his ears, he may have Notoedric Mange. This will respond to a prescription ointment, but keep your hands clean when applying. Blood blisters, caused by scratching, can collect between the layers of skin. Don't try operating; let your vet do it. Meniere's Disease is an infection of the inner ear that will cause your cat to roll drunkenly from side to side. It's an unpleasant disease, but it does respond to antibiotics.

The Doctor Lets You In

How Much Can Your Heart Take?

You just had a checkup. All is okay—even the electrocardiogram (EKG), in which you lay with electrodes plastered over your chest and leg. Yes, but how does your heart react when you are not lying down? Now methods have been devised to show heart action as it is under stress. Called Heart Stress Tests (HST), they come in a variety of forms. One is the Master 2-step test, in which the patient walks up and down a two-step stool with electrodes on his chest and leg. Another is the stationary bicycle test, in which the patient pedals while his heart action is recorded. The HST does two things: It shows heart action as it is under daily stress, and it tells how much exercise your heart can take without getting hurt. As part of your regular health examination, ask your doctor to send you for a stress test. It's one of the best ways we have of predicting proneness to heart attack.

Joe Weider, fitness expert and trainer of champions since 1936 says:

"Give me 5 minutes twice daily for only 7 days and you'll lose up to 3 inches from your waistline, up to 6 pounds of unwanted weight, and 'shape up' — or I will return every penny."

LET'S FACE THE FACTS WHY YOU'RE OUT OF SHAPE

You eat the wrong combination of foods, you do not get enough exercise to thoroughly work your muscular, metabolic and respiratory systems daily. Because of this, fat accumulates around your waistline, heart and other body organs, slowing you down, aging your body and destroying your vitality, virility and youth. There is only one way to firm up and shape up: that is through proper exercise and proper nutrition. Effortless exercisers, reducing pills, sauna shorts, weighted belts, dangerous and painful diets and other gimmicks designed to appeal to your laziness will not work and have been exposed by the medical profession as frauds, ineffective and in some cases dangerous. They can only reduce your pocketbook.

Face up to it...If you want to slim down, firm and shape up, you must work off the inches, and there is no safer, faster and more enjoyable way to do it than with our patented, truly miraculous "5" Minute Body Shaper Plan.

HOW DOES THIS INGENIOUS "5" MINUTE PLAN SLIM, FIRM AND SHAPE YOU UP?

Its miraculous slimming action is based on doing one simple "5" Minute Continuous Rhythm coordinated exercise, lying on your back! That's all you do! That's all your body needs to help make up for the lack of activity it doesn't get most of the day. The action is designed to supply your waistline and hipline (where fat accumulates quickest, giving your body a flabby, weak and distorted look) with the activity it needs to slim you and keep you slim. It also burns off excess fat FAST by speeding up your metabolism and respiratory system, using up stored calories, carbohydrates and fats and releasing excess water, thereby shaping and firming up your total body!

It's safer than strenuous gym workouts, beats the time consumption and dangers of gym workouts...or any other vigorous sport.

The unit weighs about 16 ounces and fits any wallet-size case. You can carry it with you and use it — anytime — wherever there's floor space for your body. Even while watching television.

WHAT THE EXPERTS SAY:

Medical Doctors, Chiropractors, Osteopaths, Athletic Coaches...agree its the most successful Waistline-Weight Reducer and Shaping Up Plan ever invented!

"Doctors have always known, exercise done while lying on the back virtually eliminates strains while slimming and reshaping the body. Yours is the finest Body Shaper Program on the market." RICHARD TYLER, D.C.

Tuesday Weld's Mother Says:

"When I Helped Tuesday Become a Star— I Also Lost My Daughter"

By Yosene Ker Weld

Pictorial Parade

Tuesday, as she appeared at recent "Play It as It Lays" cast party: Some compare her with Marilyn Monroe.

Mrs. Weld is coauthor of a forthcoming book about her daughter and herself, "Tuesday Says I'm Dead," scheduled to be published next year by Curtis Books.

This is addressed to all mothers—and fathers—who ever wondered if perhaps their precious little Susie or Johnnie might not be destined for Hollywood fame. Who, in other words, have considered joining that most infamous and maligned club—the "Backstage Mothers."

I am writing because I have "been there." I know. Today, at 29, my daughter Tuesday has attained much of the success I always dreamed of for her. She recently won the Best Actress Award at the Venice Film Festival for her role in "Play It as It Lays," and some profess to see her as the new Marilyn Monroe or Liz Taylor.

Let me tell you what it has been like for Tuesday and me.

As a baby and as a little girl, Tuesday was all love and kisses for her "Mommy." She was so possessive that she demanded most of my time, even pushed aside her sister and brother, to their bewilderment and anger.

I think she was pleased when I introduced her to modeling because it meant she could be with me and have my full attention focused on her.

For me, however, it was the job of a workhorse. After my chores with the other children, I'd get Tuesday ready, then lug heavy suitcases full of clothes from interview to interview, carrying a large portfolio of pictures and résumés, and often toting Tuesday as well. When Tuesday was first getting started modeling in New York, I'd sometimes be so tired and disappointed at the end of the day, I'd feel like sitting on a curbstone and crying.

But of course, I didn't, I couldn't. For the last thing I wanted to do was destroy my child's morale. If a child's deep desire to succeed and great faith in itself is destroyed, there's no use trying. It's utterly senseless for a mother to "push" a child. If the child doesn't want it, there's no way.

For instance, when Tuesday and I first started on our "go-see's," as we called interviews, she sometimes refused to be the little girl I knew she could be. Her shyness would give her a "set" look, and she would become withdrawn around the other chattering children and confident mothers.

But don't get me wrong. Despite a few "disasters," Tuesday took naturally to modeling. Even at three-and-a-half, when she had her first job at Best & Co., she loved the work because it involved getting dressed up and having special attention. Tuesday was as good as gold. She took direction without question and had the stamina to continue long after the other children had started crying and had been taken home. She might get stubborn, but she never tired on the job.

One thing a mother of an especially talented child must watch out for is the demands that talent and ambition can make. Tuesday wanted all of the attention, all of the time. But I had two other children to think about. When Tuesday was eight-and-a-half and at the peak of her young career, I took the family to Florida for a quieter life and healthier climate, but especially so the older children could have the best swimming coach in the country. Earlier, both Sally and David had developed into championship swimmers. For those two years Tuesday lived like other girls her age. But with attention focused on her brother and sister, she was bored. We moved back to New York, and soon little girl friends, now the smart young models and budding actresses, came to welcome Tuesday back to the city. It was obvious that Tuesday would want to get back to work again.

"Would I advise others to join the 'Backstage Mothers' Club? I think not. The initiation fee is terribly high—and you'll be paying dues the rest of your life."

It's hard to imagine, considering how beautiful Tuesday was as a youngster and as a teenager, that she was ever an "ugly duckling." But she went through an awkward stage between 10½ and 12, suffering from skin problems and overweight. Worst of all, her hair, once long, blonde and silky, came in frizzy curls, brunette and unmanageable. I went to the top hair specialists, had it straightened and made her a blonde again. I concentrated on diets and complexion care. Tuesday came out of it beautifully. All it took was time, some money, constant care, and just plain growing up.

Mothers often ask me how they can tell if their child has a chance. I think the mother's own instinct has a lot to do with the decision. One can tell quite early if a child is musical and has a sense of timing. Timing is fundamental to success, I believe. But the most important thing to look for is a depth and quality of sensitivity. I knew from the beginning, when Tuesday was a little baby, that she had a special awareness. But I always felt she was holding something back.

Another route in which I don't believe is too much special coaching—acting lessons, acting schools. Tuesday received her training by starting at the bottom. From the very beginning, I encouraged her to listen and to observe, particularly the director and the feature players' work of any kind, even as a standby or as an extra in a mob scene. Tuesday had all the exposure to the business of acting that I could manage to get for her.

The greatest heartaches were yet to come. For, like so many actors and actresses who have had "Backstage Mothers," Tuesday grew resentful as she grew older. The pulling away began when she was working in Elia Kazan's "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs" on Broadway. Tuesday was just 13, but the people in the cast, most of them in their twenties, accepted Tuesday. And she reached out to them, too.

When we came to Hollywood, she wooed friendships with older and older show biz people, and because she had them, she felt she needed her mother less and less. Soon she completely disregarded any advice or counsel and stayed away from home most of the time. Several years ago she began to talk about me, outrageously, to the press.

I have had job offers to be an agent for other children. But Tuesday's lack of understanding has been such a bitter disappointment to me that I just cannot bear to put myself in that position again. The joy and pride have been great, but I cannot honestly say they outweigh the sacrifice and pain. I fear when I helped Tuesday become a star—I also lost my daughter.

It's a terrible shame that the only communication between parent and child is what they say about each other in print. But I don't know if it's possible for Tuesday and me ever to resume a natural mother-daughter relationship.

Perhaps, someday ... but it's not very likely.

In the meantime, I live with my regrets. Would I advise others to join the "Backstage Mothers" Club? I think not. The initiation fee is terribly high—and you'll be paying dues the rest of your life. FW

Do Your Words Tell More Than You Realize?

By John E. Gibson

True or False: The silent, taciturn, man-of-few-words, who seldom gives voice to his thoughts, isn't likely to have many. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you have a fluent command of language and are seldom at a loss for words, you may be envied—but it won't make it any easier for you to get along with people.

2. If your language "turns the air blue" occasionally, it can cut down on your chances of being stricken by stress-ailments.

3. The silent, taciturn, man-of-few-words, who seldom gives voice to his thoughts, isn't likely to have many.

4. Frequent use of the phrases "To be perfectly frank . . . ," "To be honest with you . . . ," etc., is an indication that the speaker is basically an honest person.

5. Silence is often far more expressive than speech.

ANSWERS

1. False. Studies show that fluency in speech and "skill and ease in interpersonal relations" tend to go hand in hand. The more articulate you are in expressing yourself, the more it facilitates mutual understanding.

2. True—according to findings of research at Britain's University of Manchester, which show swearing to be highly effective as an emotional safety valve for all sorts of pent-up tensions. It's pointed out that the alternative to swearing—i.e., "swallowing a bellyful of resentment without protest"—may implant the seeds of a duodenal ulcer. It's also observed that: "If the disposition to swear is as deeply ingrained in human life as it appears to be, it could be put to further good use in international affairs as a substitute for war!"

3. True. As one human-behavior specialist has observed: "If a man has no free communication with others, his internal thinking tends to grow inhibited. Thinking demands discussion and conversation, test and confrontation. When it is denied these things, it suffers."

4. False—according to the findings of psychiatrist Sandor S. Feldman. "Habitual use of such phrases as 'Frankly speaking' or 'To be honest,' " he finds, "indicates that the person is not always frank and honest." It's pointed out that if it were characteristic of the person to speak nothing but the truth, he would not feel it necessary to emphasize the fact that he is being honest in this instance.

5. True. "Silent language," when judiciously employed, can be one of the most effective forms of communication. It can say things and convey feelings that could be put into words only with greatest difficulty—if at all. For example, a significant pause before replying—or not answering at all—can have a far more telling effect on the other person than anything you can possibly say. Silence, as one authority has observed, is a powerful and often unanswerable figure of speech. It is also noted that "Silence is one of the hardest arguments to refute."

The Diet Watch

Two New Nonfattening Snacks

Yes, snacking can be nonfattening and satisfying. A delicious snack is a cup of popped corn (25 calories). Instead of pouring butter over it (at 40 calories a teaspoonful), sprinkle it with a teaspoonful of grated cheese (about ten calories), for a total of only 35 delicious calories! By contrast, a skimpy snack of five potato chips runs about 60 calories. . . . From Hollywood comes word of a popular low-calorie healthful lunch or supper that fills you up: Slice half a cucumber into a soup plate, add a dash of lemon, a half-cup of yogurt and a teaspoonful of dried onion soup. Stir up and dine on a fresh-as-spring meal at a cost of about 90 calories. You can also mix in four or five leaves of cut-up romaine, which adds about ten calories and at least three times as much vitamin A as ordinary lettuce.

RON TURCOTTE:
"I'll Let the Horse Do the Talking"

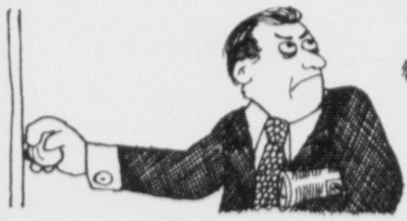

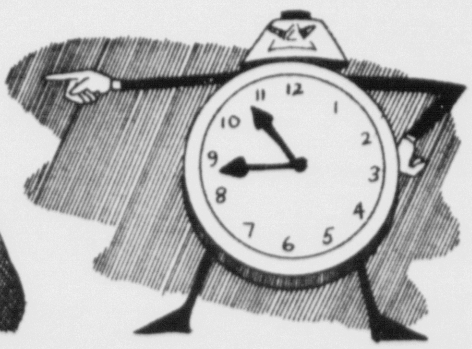

Wide World

Ron Turcotte, who rode Secretariat to his spectacular "Triple Crown" victories this year, thanks his lucky stars he was born small and remained that way instead of developing into an average-size specimen like everyone else. Turcotte's small stature enabled him to latch on to a career as a jockey when he lost his job in a Canadian lumber camp, and his victories aboard Secretariat and other top thoroughbreds have hoisted him into the $250,000-a-year bracket. . . . Turcotte, a French-Canadian, followed his dad into work as a lumber-cutter. But when hard times forced the lumber camp to close in 1960, Ron went to a nearby racetrack to search for a job and was hired as a $35-a-week "hot-walker"—a boy who walks racehorses around the track to cool them off after they've been exercised. Because of his size and because he'd had experience aboard workhorses, he decided to become a jockey. He apprenticed first as a rider of yearlings and gradually acquired the skill to handle mature thoroughbreds. Unlike such colorful jockeys as Willie Shoemaker and Eddie Arcaro, Turcotte disdains a showy style. "I've been lucky enough to have ridden horses with a lot of personality and spirit, so it doesn't matter if I'm not colorful myself," he says. (After dinner, he and his wife Gaetane, a childhood sweetheart, play cribbage, and are in bed by ten.) The 31-year-old Turcotte has been winning consistently for several years, but reached the jackpot with his victories in the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes last year and his "Triple" success this year aboard Secretariat.

Jobmanship

The Hidden Causes of Lateness

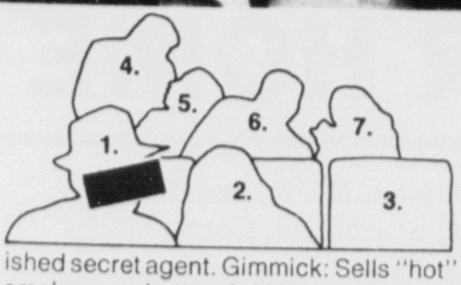

Even though you're a good worker, you'll eventually strain your boss's patience if you're frequently late. When it's an emergency or serious family illness, everyone understands. But if you are often late, you may be able to help yourself. (1) Perhaps you should alter your personal schedule to face the facts. You'll often hear people say, "It only takes me half an hour in the morning to dress and eat." Some people do manage in half an hour, but many others really require 40 minutes or an hour. Till they face the truth and set the alarm clock accordingly, they'll be late. In considering your schedule, also examine the possibility that you're trying to accomplish too much in the morning. You may have developed the "I'll just do one more little thing before I leave for work" habit. (2) Perhaps you're still fighting long-gone battles. Psychologists say that much chronic lateness is due to resentment. This resentment, which may have begun with parents or some person who currently controls your life, may be turned toward all authority. Since the time clock represents authority you may find it hard to conform to it.—By S. R. Redford

Child Crises: Which Ones Are Normal-Which Are Not?

By Grace W. Weinstein

Some parents can accept such behavior calmly, others are driven frantic. But child-development specialists agree that every one of these things is normal: at the appropriate age and stage of development.

No one objects to an eight-month-old needing a bottle, wetting his bed or relying on a security blanket. But many parents become upset when a four-year-old still sucks his thumb or has trouble staying dry through the night. When can you reasonably expect a child to grow out of infantile behavior patterns? When does this behavior reflect emotional disturbance and become a signal for help?

New York child psychiatrist Abraham Chaplan offers two guides for anxious parents: (1) Is the action appropriate to the child's stage of development? (2) Does he carry it to extremes? Says Dr. Chaplan, "If a five-year-old sucks his thumb or has a security blanket but is otherwise involved in normal activities, leave him alone. If he also talks baby talk and plays only with stuffed animals instead of with friends or the toys appropriate to his age, then be concerned and seek help."

A normally active first grader who still sucks his thumb but is getting along well in school and at home may be offering you a valuable clue to his emotional state. When Bobby is tense and anxious and sucks his thumb more often than usual, it's an indication that he needs parental comfort and support—maybe an older child bullied him in school, maybe he lost a game for his team, maybe he's just overtired. "It's good to have such a barometer of the child's emotional needs," Dr. Chaplan points out. "The same needs, if suppressed, might show up later as more serious problems."

"The intensity of involvement is the issue. . . . The child who puts on a cowboy suit for Halloween and can't stop being a cowboy for three weeks after Halloween is over may need help."

Laura, completely fearless as an infant, is afraid of the dark. But Laura is four years old now and her fear is natural. Fears—of animals, of fire engines, of separation from mother—are all completely normal in preschool children. A normal youngster will be able to accept comfort for his fears—and overcome them as he grows up. An eight-year-old should no longer be so afraid of the dark that he won't go to bed, although he may still be happier with a night-light. A six-year-old should be able to leave his mother and stay in school, even though he is still dependent on her.

Andrew is aggressive. He bites and kicks his playmates in the sand pile, and lashes out at his mother, too. Andrew is two years old and can't put his feelings into words very well yet. By the time Andrew is four he should be able to express his anger, at least part of the time, verbally rather than physically. At the same time, as part of the socialization process of growing up, he learns the give and take of getting along with others, family and friends, and should be angry less often.

Many children like Eric lead a rich fantasy life in the preschool years, complete with imaginary playmates. Try to accept the invisible friend gracefully—and not sit on him when he occupies your chair—unless this behavior, too, goes to extremes.

The key question here is: Is the line between fantasy and reality blurred? Most children with imaginary friends are pretty clearly aware that they are imaginary. Ask yourself: Can the child tolerate an interruption of his fantasy? How large a part does it play in his life? Will he play only with an imaginary friend and never with real friends? Can he cope with the real world?

"The intensity of involvement is the issue," according to Dr. Chaplan, "and an inability to stop. The child who puts on a cowboy suit for Halloween and can't stop being a cowboy for three weeks after Halloween is over may need help."

The same applies to adolescents. "It's perfectly normal for a 14-year-old to daydream in his room," says Martin Adler, Director of the Dumont (New Jersey) Community Center for Mental Health, "but if he can't snap out of it when you call him for dinner, something is wrong."

From infancy through adolescence, try to know your child. Learn to recognize his patterns of behavior, and watch for sudden dramatic changes in behavior.

But don't worry excessively. Most childhood problems are temporary, a normal—if unsettling—part of growing up.

Here's real relief from constipation

If you've been taking magnesia, salts, oils or harsh chemical laxatives once a week or more and you're still not satisfied—here's a better way to end constipation worries. Take gentle, effective Serutan. It's different!

Unlike other laxatives that may cause irritation or griping, Serutan, taken daily, forms a soft gel which moistens food wastes and shapes them into a well-formed stool. Serutan produces the proper amount of bulk needed to help bring peristaltic stimulation to your sluggish colon. This is utterly different than forcing your system with harsh chemical laxatives which may dry you out. You can take gentle Serutan every day because it is a pure vegetable hydrogel and contains no harsh roughage, no chemical laxatives. Take Serutan every day to get regular—and keep regular.

Delicious Fruit Flavor

Serutan is available in delicious fruit flavor. Get Serutan fruit flavor or unflavored powder, or toasted granules. When you read Serutan backwards, it spells "natures." And nature's way is best.

Some Verse— Written in Love for Some People I Know

By Marjorie Western Riley

Reminiscences of a Grandmother

I remember . . . I remember . . .
The babies, one and all,
Once so dear and round and dimpled,
Now so wise and straight and tall.

I've always pinned on babies
Every hope I have for Heaven—
And that's a lot of pinning
Because there were—well—SEVEN!

For twenty years the kitchen floor
Was covered, ankle deep,
With applesauce and Campbell's soup,
And also Cream of Wheat.

One little lad I knew quite well,
When once he had been fed,
Would place his blue bowl upside down
Upon his flaxen head.

Another smeared his egg-and-toast
Like paint upon the table,
And all in all, the scene recalled
A filthy, ill-kept stable.

A third young man would often hurl
His pudding to the floor,
And roll in it remorselessly
The while he yelled for more.

Yes I remember . . . I remember . . .
The babies, sweet and wet.
And I'll baby-sit YOURS, darling,
Just as soon as I forget.

Temperature: Wintry

The gentle words, "I'm sorry, dear,"
Fall very softly on the ear,
Melting ice and cold resentment,
Reinstating sweet contentment.

I said them to my mate last night
(Although, of course, I HAD been right).
I said my line; he had his cue
To say, "Dear, I am sorry, too."

He spoke the words, but not in quite
(And I am sure I heard them right)
The way I longed so much to hear.
He said: "I'm glad you're sorry, dear."

The snow drifts high outside the door,
The ice is very thin. . . .
Although the calendar says June,
The cold war's on again.

To My Husband, with Love

For thirty-one relentless years,
Through, well, inclement weather,
Though we were adults when we met,
We have grown up together.

And though my verse is often aimed
At you in little phrases
More tart than sweet—you only laugh,
The acid never fazes.

So look upon my poems, Love,
As tribute to the strong—
We both know that a laughing time
Can only last so long.

And, darling, from that circled day
When you and I shall part,
Should I remain, no poems will Come laughing from my heart.

Great Chicken and Beef Stew—for Dieters

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares a scientifically measured diet recipe. Says Marilyn: "I picked this recipe out of 'The Ladies' Home Journal Family Diet Book,' by Evan Frances (Macmillan, $6.95). It was so good, I wanted to share it with you!"

CHICKEN AND BEEF STEW
360 Calories Per Serving*

2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 (3 lb.) broiler-fryer, cut up
1 teaspoon unseasoned meat tenderizer
2 lbs. boneless beef chuck, cubed
3 cans (10½-oz. size) beef bouillon
2 cups water
12 peppercorns, cracked
4 parsley sprigs
4 whole cloves garlic, crushed
2 bay leaves
6 whole carrots, peeled
12 small white onions, peeled
6 leeks, trimmed
6 stalks celery (cut in 2-inch pieces)
2 teaspoons salt
Chopped parsley

1. Slowly heat oil in Dutch oven until hot. Brown chicken a few pieces at a time, until golden. Remove when browned, set aside.
2. Sprinkle meat tenderizer over beef cubes according to label directions.
3. Brown beef on all sides, a few cubes at a time. Drain all fat from pan.
4. Return beef to pan. Add bouillon, water, peppercorns, parsley, garlic, bay leaves. Bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, 30 minutes.
5. Add chicken. Simmer, covered, 45 minutes. Take out meats with slotted spoon. Strain broth into a bowl. Let stand 5 minutes; skim off all fat.
6. Return beef cubes and broth to Dutch oven, together with carrots, onions, leeks, celery and salt. Simmer, covered, 30 minutes. Add chicken pieces and simmer 15 minutes longer.
7. Let stand 5 minutes off heat; skim fat. Place in tureen. Sprinkle with chopped parsley. *Makes 6 servings

*1 serving is 1/6 of the meat, 1 carrot and 2 onions or 1 carrot and 1 leek, 1 cup celery and ⅓ cup broth.

...High Style Shoe
Selling at retail for as much as $42.95

YOURS FREE

Plus a regular depression proof income of up to $200 a month for spare time hours just for showing friends how they can save as much as 50% on shoes and you can buy shoes for yourself and your family at wholesale prices!

I've given away thousands of boots and shoes like these to men who were fed up with the hopeless job of trying to make their income stretch over constantly increasing prices. They faced up to the fact that there was only one answer—more money—and they got a free pair of shoes or boots for just making that simple decision.

Offer Hanover shoes to your friends and you'll find hard times and high prices working with you instead of against you. Men who have taken Hanover's offer are showing earnings of as much as $200—$250—and more each month. When you can show a man that he can save as much as 50% on high quality shoes; when you can prove that point for point the Hanover shoe that sells for $24.95 is equal or superior to a shoe that sells nationally for $42.95, they not only jump at the chance to buy, they come back to you time and time again for more.

Or to put it another way, you can show a friend now wearing "bargain counter" shoes that he can wear high quality, finely styled Hanover shoes—probably better shoes than he has ever worn in his life—for less money than he now pays.

Jumping on the Hanover bandwagon is the simplest thing you can imagine—and doesn't cost you a cent. Just mail the coupon below to me right now while you're thinking of it. I'll mail you—entirely free—a full selling kit including the full color Hanover catalog of nearly 200 styles of shoes. You'll find dress boots, dress shoes, casual shoes, slip-ons, work shoes, fleece-lined boots for working outdoors or hunting. You'll have more shoes at your finger tips than the largest shoe store in the country. Show the catalog to your friends and neighbors and let them take their pick. And you get a liberal commission on every pair.

And how do you get the free shoes or boots? Get your selling kit and let your friends see it. If you take orders for ten pairs of shoes in the first 30 days you can select any shoe or boot in the catalog selling for no more than $24.95—and we'll send them to you free. And remember, a shoe of like quality to the Hanover shoe you select will sell for as much as $42.95 in shoe stores over the country.

If you need extra money; if you are sick and tired of trying to make ends meet, mail the coupon below to me right away. It doesn't even cost you a stamp—just fold it over and drop it in the mail. The information I'll send you could be the most hopeful uplifting story you have heard in years.

A.K., Conn: Biggest individual sale of my entire shoe career. 18 pairs in one hour. The secret was the marvelous styles and prices Hanover has to offer. My total commission was $64.50. Not hard to take for an hour.

J.R.S., Texas: Enclosed is an order for two pairs of alligator shoes for the same customer. Made $30 in commissions. Not bad for 20 minutes work.

NO STAMP NEEDED Cut out and fold over business reply card. Staple, glue or tape and drop it in the mail.

O.K., Mr. King.

I'd like to have information on the opportunity to make money spare time with Hanover Shoe. I agree to show the Hanover catalog to at least ten friends.

Men who have taken Hanover's offer are showing earnings of as much as $200—$250—and more each month. When you can show a man that he can save as much as 50% on high quality shoes; when you can prove that point for point the Hanover shoe that sells for $24.95 is equal or superior to a shoe that sells nationally for $42.95, they not only jump at the chance to buy, they come back to you time and time again for more.

Or to put it another way, you can show a friend now wearing "bargain counter" shoes that he can wear high quality, finely styled Hanover shoes—probably better shoes than he has ever worn in his life—for less money than he now pays.

Jumping on the Hanover bandwagon is the simplest thing you can imagine—and doesn't cost you a cent. Just mail the coupon below to me right now while you're thinking of it. I'll mail you—entirely free—a full selling kit including the full color Hanover catalog of nearly 200 styles of shoes. You'll find dress boots, dress shoes, casual shoes, slip-ons, work shoes, fleece-lined boots for working outdoors or hunting. You'll have more shoes at your finger tips than the largest shoe store in the country. Show the catalog to your friends and neighbors and let them take their pick. And you get a liberal commission on every pair.

And how do you get the free shoes or boots? Get your selling kit and let your friends see it. If you take orders for ten pairs of shoes in the first 30 days you can select any shoe or boot in the catalog selling for no more than $24.95—and we'll send them to you free. And remember, a shoe of like quality to the Hanover shoe you select will sell for as much as $42.95 in shoe stores over the country.

If you need extra money; if you are sick and tired of trying to make ends meet, mail the coupon below to me right away. It doesn't even cost you a stamp—just fold it over and drop it in the mail. The information I'll send you could be the most hopeful uplifting story you have heard in years.

TRUMPETER AL HIRT
Weight loss by surgery

Don't you wish you could just "cut that fat away"? Perhaps you can—sort of. In a new surgical operation called an ileo-bypass, fat is not actually cut away, but part of the small intestine is bypassed, thus cutting off a portion of the digestive system that absorbs nutrients. In the course of seven years, Drs. Burton Bergman and Leonard Waldman have performed more than 60 of these procedures. One woman lost 140 pounds after her ileo-bypass. Trumpeter Al Hirt underwent the operation with great success. Dr. Waldman says, "This is a radical way to lose weight. Nobody becomes thin, but the weight eventually stabilizes somewhere around the person's normal optimum. And as time goes by, eating habits change and self-confidence and personality improvements are seen." Although this is a drastic way to lose, if a person's health or life is in danger because of overweight, this may be the answer.

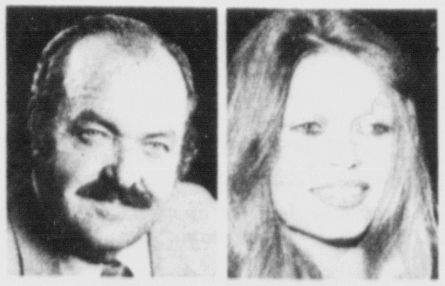

ACTRESS SIMI GAREWAL
Nudity vs. Marriage

Consider the plight of Simi Garewal, Indian costar of the new film "Siddhartha." The film was shot in India, where hand-holding is the most film censors allow. But it features a love scene on the balcony of a gleaming white palace. "There were about 10,000 onlookers watching as we shot and reshot this scene," Simi recalls, "and the crowd was so delighted that it roared its approval after each take!" But Simi has a problem, in that the movie has a nude scene. She says: "By playing such scenes, which will certainly be cut from the version shown in my country, my chances of getting married are probably reduced. Even though the scenes are artistic, they create an image that is not exactly what even the most sophisticated Indian man could easily accept." Simi also confides that the ultimate and most important goal in her life is rather old-fashioned: to become a wife and mother.

Car racing at 250 mph? With "wings" mounted on their sides only four inches above the ground to create 1,000 pounds of downward force, racing cars today are rocketing along at speeds well above 200 miles per hour. Even so redoubtable a charger as A. J. Foyt warns that the quest for ever-greater speeds may lead to greater danger in races where 25 or more cars are approaching record velocities. But champion Mark Donohue feels that "We haven't come anywhere near the limit for speed. The mechanical work is getting more and more advanced all the time, and the drivers are going to be able to respond to it, just as they always have. Back when the first cars were going over 100 mph, there were people warning that it was too dangerous. Two hundred miles an hour? Pretty soon we'll be coming close to 250 mph at Indy."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armoury

DO YOU FOLLOW ME?

Some people are skillful at following maps.
If it's right they should turn, they're not left, day or night.

But maps aren't for me, I just follow my nose,
And I'm lucky I get there at all, I suppose.
For my nose has a curve and a twist and a hollow
That most would find harder than road maps to follow.

It's ridiculous calling the Kennedy half dollar a sandwich coin. Did you ever try to buy a sandwich with one?

Dear President Nixon:

I'm going to Camp for the first time this Summer. I heard my Parents talking last night after I went to bed and they were talking about sending me to Camp Comfort. I hear you have Camp David. I'd rather go to your Camp. I don't care about comfort, I'm willing to rough it.

My neighbor's grandson was over at the cemetery with his daddy and he asked his father how many people were dead there. The adult answered, "All of them." Then the little one said, "Then how come those two are over there cutting the grass?" —Jean Morgan

I had decided to bake a cake one day. I don't usually bake cakes unless it is someone's birthday. So naturally when my young son saw me frosting a cake, he asked me whose birthday it was. LITTLE EMILY

"Emily, would you please tell your father not to copy homework from Jimmy Gullickson's father!"

AN EXPERT TELLS YOU HOW TO GET BACK IN SHAPE.

Even if you're not particularly interested in building he-man muscles, you owe it to yourself to keep your body fit. It's a sad fact of today's life that many men ignore this point and end up regretting it when they find they've become "old men" long before their time. Thanks to modern exercising techniques, "keeping fit" is now easier than ever. John Texier, Mr. France and leading fitness specialist tells you how.

Q. What does fitness mean?

A. For normally healthy people, fitness is a simple matter of maintaining muscle tone through exercise. In other words—using your muscles often enough and hard enough to keep them healthy and trim.

Q. How does lack of fitness show up?

A. The answer depends on how old you are. If you're still in your teens or early twenties, it's largely a matter of physical development. Young men with pipe-stem arms, caved-in chests, drooping shoulders or bird-like legs aren't fit. When you're a little older the first signs are usually a roll of fat around the middle and a lack of pep and energy. After 40, the whole body tends to become flabby.

Q. Can sports keep me fit?

A. Yes, indeed, if practiced regularly and for long enough periods. Swimming, jogging, gymnastics, tennis, handball, squash, skiing can all help keep you in top condition provided you practice the sport for at least an hour three or four days a week—every week.

Q. Isn't there an easier way?

A. Yes, there's an outstanding home training method which I use and recommend. It's fast, easy and guaranteed to give results.

Q. What's it called?

A. Bullworker training. It's based on Isometric techniques which have been proven to increase strength three times faster than sports or conventional calisthenics. In my opinion, it's the most advanced training system on the market today.

Q. How long does it take?

A. The 7-exercise introductory program requires only 70 seconds of exercise per day. The complete advanced training program takes about 5 minutes.

Built-in Powermeter
You can actually measure your musclepower g-r-o-w-i-n-g from the very first day.

Q. When do the results start?

A. Right from the very first day. The Bullworker is fitted with a built-in measuring device which shows you exactly how much progress you make every day. And the results can be very impressive—up to 4% more strength per week, up to a 50% improvement in the first three months. I've seen many men go on to double and even triple their strength.

Q. How long does it take to see visible results?

A. From 10 days to three weeks depending on how well you train and how regularly. Each new week brings even more impressive results.

Q. But it's hard work, isn't it?

A. Not at all. The whole point of Isometrics is that by "exercising" for only 7 seconds at a time, you avoid the excess muscle strain and fatigue of "crash" training programs which often do more harm than good. Bullworker training is gauged to each user's personal potential.

Q. Is there an age limit?

A. Generally speaking, men between 15 and 65 in good general health can expect to benefit from fitness and strength building training. Young men should use Bullworker to improve their muscular development: broad, powerful shoulders—rippling biceps—a deep, manly chest tapering down to a slim waist and hips supported by muscular, contoured thighs and calves.

Men in their thirties should use Bullworker to maintain peak physical form and for toning-up the muscles of their abdomen, chest, shoulders and upper arms. After 2 or 3 weeks you'll probably see muscles you didn't even know you had.

From 45 on, Bullworker should be used to regain and maintain a youthful vigorous body that belies the passing years. I've seen lots of Bullworker users in their fifties with more energy, power, and vigor than many younger men.

Q. How can I find out more about the Bullworker and perhaps actually try it out?

A. I understand that the American distributor is now offering the Bullworker on a two-week free home trial basis in order to give as many men as possible a chance to prove to themselves what an outstanding fitness trainer it is. If you're interested in getting back into shape fast, I recommend you contact the distributor for full details.
